Nixon May Halt Amchitka N-Test

WASHINGTON (NYT) — President Nixon, according to knowledgeable officials in the White House and state department, is giving serious consideration to the cancellation, or at least the postponement, of the underground test of a five-megaton anti-missile warhead scheduled for next month on Amchitka in the Aleutians.

Obviously weighing heavily in the president's consideration, officials suggested, was the opposition of the Canadian and Japanese governments.

Last February Canada's external affairs minister Mitchell Sharp sent a formal note to the state department protesting the explosion which would be by far the largest ever detonated underground by the U.S. Environmental risk was the basis of Sharp's protest.

The Japanese government, officials said, while registering its concern has not yet lodged a formal protest.

The Atomic Energy Commission, in an environmental impact statement last June, said the test "is expected to have only a minimal long-term impact on the environment" because the radioactivity released "will be trapped underground," because the possibility of the shot triggering an earthquake in this area of geologic faults is "very unlikely," and because the possibility of the explosion "causing a damaging tsunami (seismic sea wave) is even more unlikely."

Despite these assurances, there is concern lest something go wrong with consequent impairment of relations with Canada and Japan.

Charles Bray, a state department spokesman, said Wednesday that Nixon had not yet made a decision. When asked whether this could be interpreted as meaning Nixon was considering cancellation, Bray said his answer could be so read. Bray also emphasized that no date for the explosion had been set.

These remarks have given rise to speculation that Nixon might announce the cancellations just prior to, or during, his meeting with Japanese Emperor Hirohito in Anchorage next week.

Port High-Rise Curb Proposed

New zoning regulations for the Victoria Inner Harbor waterfront will be proposed to city council today, limiting building heights to eight storeys, and curbing offices and industrial operations.

The new regulations will apply to all normal construction in the area between the Johnson Street Bridge and the Bapco Paint Company property at the end of Belleville Street on the south side of the harbor.

The new C-3 zone does not, however, prevent a developer from building according to a special development section of the Municipal Act, under which any construction approved by council is possible.

For example, the Reid development, incorporating twin apartment towers of 21 and 24 storeys, can still proceed despite the new zoning.

IN WORKS

The bylaw has been in the works for several months, but may be amended by council before final approval.

It was expected that the bylaw, while limiting development to size and bulk less than allowed by the former zoning, will still give landowners a "fair return" for their land investments.

The bylaw requirements would permit buildings, using the maximum allowable limits, of the size normally associated with medium density apartment structures in the city, a planning department spokesman said.

NOT ALLOWED

Industrial uses in the new zone will not be allowed. Office space in any new structure will not be allowed to exceed more than 15 per cent of the space in the building. This provision was designed to prevent the high car traffic

STEWARD BANS SUN

A zealous B.C. Ferries steward isn't sure what exactly constitutes a liquor ad, but he isn't taking any chances.

The steward, who declined to give his name, would not allow copies of the Vancouver Sun to be sold aboard the Queen of Burnaby Wednesday because he thought a Bank of Montreal ad and an article on Canadian wines contravened the provincial government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising.

The bank ad, announcing the opening of a new branch, included a picture of a bottle of Canadian champagne smashing against an upright surface.

The article on wines was accompanied by a photograph of the inside of a Vancouver winery.

The steward said he was acting on a directive from the ferry authority's catering supervisor to "scrutinize all editions" of newspapers.

"I'm no judge on this, but we have to protect ourselves too, you know," the steward said.

"I've got too much seniority to be worrying about getting into trouble with the public."

No Freeze Extension Nixon Tells Country

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Nixon announced today his 90-day wage-price-rent freeze will not be extended beyond the Nov. 13 expiration date but said some form of stabilization machinery will be necessary after that.

In an unusual appearance before a joint session of Congress, Nixon also set as a national goal the creation of 100 million additional jobs during the next 10 years.

He said such a program was needed to cope with a new era in the U.S.'s international economic relationships which have seen a radical shift in the balance of economic power and "new challenges to our leadership and to our standard of living."

After telling the assembled senators and house members the freeze will end Nov. 13, Nixon declared: "But I assure the congress and the American people that when this first temporary and necessarily drastic action is over, we shall take all the steps needed to see that America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation.

CO-OPERATION

"The system of wage and price stabilization that follows the freeze will require the fullest possible co-operation not only between the executive and legislative branches, but also by all Americans."

Nixon urged the Democratic-controlled congress to enact as its first post-recess priority the $5.9 billion in tax cuts he proposed Aug. 15 when he announced his drastic new economic policies.

The proposed tax breaks — $3.2 billion for private individuals and $2.7 billion for business — will create half a million new jobs in the coming year, Nixon contended. Some labor leaders have disputed this, claiming the tax approach favored business and will not help unemployment.

THIRD TIME

Nixon's appearance before the joint session was his third since assuming office. It indicated the importance he attaches to rapid consideration of the economic measures which are aimed at cutting unemployment and halting inflation, both of which he claimed were legacies of a war now ending.

As for the 100 million job goal in the next 10 years, Nixon said new tax incentives will be needed and said he will propose a program of tax reform in the next session of congress.

"I shall present new proposals in both these areas: tax reform to create jobs and new approaches toward ensuring the maximum enlistment of America's technology in meeting the challenges of peace," he said.

WILL MEET

Nixon did not spell out what type of wage and price stabilization will follow the freeze. He announced he will meet with representatives of business, labor, agriculture and congress within the next few days to develop a plan.

Plug Proposed For Litter Law

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan announced today the Litter Act will be amended during the 1972 legislative session to provide penalties for retail stores which refuse to refund soft drink containers.

Kiernan also warned retailers to get in line with the intent of the act and start refunding containers immediately. The government announcement followed by three weeks a dismissal of charges in Victoria Provincial Court against a Canada Safeway Ltd. store which refused to give refunds.

The Litter Act requires retailers to refund containers of brands they sell at the rate of two cents per item. B.C. supermarkets have refused to give refunds at the store. Instead, they have referred customers to depots such as Victoria's Bottle Exchange.

Kiernan said he reviewed the decision of Judge William Ostler and consulted with staff in the attorney-general's department. He said the court found the act's intent clear but found it deficient by the absence of a specific penalty for refusing to make refunds.

"I will recommend to the legislative assembly that this legal loophole be plugged to give the act its full legal weight," Kiernan said.

"And I would suggest to the industry — including the chain stores — that they either get in line with the intent of the act or stop merchandising these products."

He said chain stores should not try to evade the law by trying to find loopholes.

Regulations under the Litter Act likely will be changed, said Kiernan, to allow a person to return up to 24 cans or bottles per day. Existing regulations allow only 18 containers per day per person.

Kiernan said he is studying the matter of refunds for liquor bottles but refused to indicate whether the act will be further amended to permit refunds for them. Beer containers and some wine bottles now are refundable.

The minister said he had not reviewed his decision with representatives of Pacific Reclamation Ltd. This is the non-profit company which has created the depot system.

Pacific Reclamation officials have said a refund at the store policy is financially unsound and poor ecological sense. Kiernan dismissed an industry argument against store refunds on health grounds. He said this is a facetious argument.

Another case against a Canada Safeway Store in Nanaimo was withdrawn after Ostler dismissed the charges in the Victoria case.

Belfast Guns Keep Shooting

Times News Services

BELFAST — Gun battles continued in Belfast today, and a British soldier was killed when a bomb he was defusing in a church hall exploded. He was the 101st victim of Northern Ireland's two-year wave of religious-political violence.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Heath recalled the British Parliament from summer recess for a two-day debate on the crisis starting Sept. 22.

Parliament will meet a month earlier than the Oct. 18 schedule. The decision to recall the members is a reversal of a previous refusal to accept a Labor opposition demand for a two-day debate made last month.

The explosion in Belfast came after British troops, bracing for a threatened "offensive" by the Irish Republican Army, came under a hail of sniper fire in Londonderry early today.

More than 100 bullets hit an army post in the Roman Catholic Creggan district of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second-largest city.

Troops returned the fire and gun battles raged for two hours after midnight Wednesday night — the time set by militant provisional wing of the IRA for a new upsurge of violence in the streets.

The midnight deadline was part of an ultimatum by the provisionals demanding the breakup of the Protestant-based Ulster government.

Authorities ignored the ultimatum and troops were placed on special alert for renewed guerrilla operations by the rebels, who want to drive Britain out by force and unite the north with the Roman Catholic-dominated Irish Republic.

OPTIMISM ARISES

On the political front, there was optimism over the prospects of a three-way summit meeting on the Ulster crisis, bringing together the prime ministers of Britain, the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Jack Lynch, leader of the Dublin government, said Wednesday night he will seriously consider the proposal made by British Prime Minister Edward Heath at their talks near London Monday and Tuesday.

CAHILL NABBED

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Joe Cahill, the Irish Republican Army leader deported from the United States, was detained by police after arriving back in Dublin today.

Detectives led him away after he stepped off the Irish International Airlines (Aer Lingus) jetliner flight from New York.

Authorities later announced he was being held on suspicion of belonging to an illegal organization under a measure that permits imprisonment without trial. The IRA is illegal both in the Irish Republic and in Northern Ireland.

Smoking Ban Not Quite an Order

Provincial government employees have been asked not to smoke in public areas.

A new rule issued by the Civil Service Commission states that "in the interests of courtesy to the public, employees are requested to refrain from smoking in areas where the public is served."

Commission chairman Arthur Richardson denied the rule is an extension of the government's ban on tobacco advertising.

"The rule is there because we had seven or eight complaints from people who said government employees blew smoke in their faces," he said.

The rule, issued in August as part of the manual of personnel administration, would not apply to outside workers such as highways department crews but to inside workers dealing with the public, he said.

He confirmed it is a request, and not an order, to stop smoking in public.

Asked if a civil servant could simply carry on smoking, he said "I suppose so."

12 Families Flee From Arctic Fire

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — About 12 families were moved from the outskirts of this sub-Arctic town late Wednesday as a 32,000-acre forest fire approached their homes.

Another 30 persons were moved earlier from Paradise Valley, about 18 miles south of Hay River.

Parts of the fire were a little more than a mile from buildings on the outskirts this morning and three to 3½ miles from the town centre, said Rudy Steiner, emergency measures co-ordinator for the Northwest Territories, but there were no immediate plans to evacuate the town of 3,500.

"I don't know of any buildings burned yet. There's just two we couldn't get to—there's too much smoke."

He said the persons who have moved are staying with friends and relatives.

The public weather office in Edmonton predicted lighter winds for the area today with temperatures in the low 60s. Rain expected Wednesday had been stalled north of Great Slave Lake and skies were expected to be sunny.

The town, built largely on a peninsula jutting into Great Slave Lake, is protected by water on three sides. But on the southwest, thick stands of pine and spruce are adjacent to the edge of town where an industrial park and modern homes and shopping facilities have been built.

That area was developed after floods in the late 1960s destroyed parts of what is referred to locally as the old town, three miles away, much of which still is occupied.

The two highways out of the town were blocked and only firefighting traffic was allowed. The fire was threatening a bridge over the Hay River on one highway, to Pine Point 60 miles east where a fire last week came near that mining community.

Uranium Plant Likely for Canada, Perhaps B.C.

Times Staff

A giant uranium diffusion plant in western Canada — possibly in British Columbia — is part of a U.S. plan to release its secrets for producing fuel for atomic power plants.

American experts at the Atoms for Peace Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, this week have been pushing for negotiations between interested countries and the U.S., which holds valuable secrets on gas diffusion techinques.

It was proposed that a western Canada plant serve the atomic power market in Japan and Australia and that one in Norway serve Europe. Both plant sites would have the advantage of cheap and abundant hydo-electric power, which is needed in great quantities to enrich the uranium for atomic power plants.

In exchange for releasing its techniques the U.S. would get a royalty, a share of the plant ownership and a share of control over the uranium and techniques involved.

The U.S. currently processes its uranium at three domestic plants.

Other countries, including France and Britain have gas diffusion facilities, but they are much less economical than the American method. The U.S. is starting to encounter problems handling its own market for diffused uranium and wants to transfer part of the market load on to other plants.

A spokesman for B.C. Hydro said today he had heard nothing about negotiations between the U.S. and Canada on the possibility of a plant being built in Canada. He said any arrangements would probably go through the provincial government if B.C. was involved.

"There's no way I can comment on this without seeing the actual details of a proposal," the spokesman said. "I don't think we (B.C. Hydro) would be as interested in this as would Atomic Energy of Canada Limited."

A. H. Laidlaw, secretary of AECL said the idea of a plant being built in Canada "had been kicked around for a while" by U.S. and Canadian officials and that a Canadian firm had proposed to build the plant if they were able to use the American techniques.

. . . FREEZE TO END

He called a meeting with labor leaders for Friday.

He pledged that whatever form of stabilization follows the freeze, it will be only temporary — "a way station on the road to free markets and free collective bargaining in a new prosperity without war."

He added: "Let us also remember that nothing would be more detrimental to the new prosperity in the long run than to put the nation's great, strong free enterprise system in a permanent straitjacket of government controls."

GIVEN MUCH

Turning to the international scene implications of his program, Nixon recalled that in the quarter century since the end of the Second World War the United States has given "generously of itself and its resources" to help other nations achieve economic prosperity.

"In the years ahead, we will remain a good and generous nation," he told congress, "but the time has also come to give a new attention to America's own interests."

He compared the situation to a poker game in which at first the United States held all the chips and had to give some away so that others can play.

"It is no longer true today," Nixon said. "Now others can play on an equal basis — and we must play the game as we expect and want them to do. We must play the best we know how. The time has passed for the United States to compete with one hand tied behind its back."

WAR ENDING

Repeating themes he has stressed in public appearances during the past three weeks, the president claimed the war in Vietnam is ending and the nation is entering a new era of peaceful competition which will require sacrifices and initiative to maintain a position of pre-eminence.

"I come before this joint session to ask the co-operation of congress in achieving a great goal, a new prosperity without war and without inflation," he said.

Revalue Yen Upwards, Rogers Urges

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — State Secretary William P. Rogers said today the United States wants a major upward revaluation of the Japanese yen and other foreign currencies as a first step toward restoring monetary stability.

Rogers also called for the removal of Japanese restrictions on imports and foreign capital as he opened two days of talks with Japanese cabinet ministers here.

He said these moves would help redress Japan's chronic surplus in its balance of payments with the United States and other countries.

In his remarks, delivered at a private session of the U.S.-Japan committee on trade and economic affairs and released by the state department, Rogers said:

REVALUATION TOP AIM

"We believe that any country in chronic surplus, as Japan is, has an obligation to take the necessary measures — including imports, eliminating export incentives, stimulating capital outflow and revaluing its exchange rate — to bring its global balance of payments into equilibrium."

Rogers then listed the first priority measure the United States is seeking as "a major realignment of the dollar against other currencies, including the yen, in order to establish a realistic exchange rate structure."

'U.S. Won't Retaliate'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Firms aided by grants from Ottawa to offset the effect of the U.S. import surtax could be charged with dumping, Finance Minister Benson said Wednesday.

But, he added, he did not think the U.S. treasury would take such steps.

The minister said it is within the power of the U.S. administration to impose heavier duties against those Canadian products receiving grants under Ottawa's planned $80 million assistance plan.

Benson added he does not believe Washington would retaliate against Canada even if other countries — such as Japan — tried to subsidize their exports to the U.S. to offset the effect of the surtax.

Benson said if the Japanese took the same action as Canada it might be that the U.S. would take action against the Japanese but not against Canadian firms.

Benson still has hopes that the U.S. government will grant a general exemption to Canada from the import surtax.

No Decision By Gunning

With just over three months to go to the municipal elections Dec. 11 two of the five Saanich council members whose terms expire in December have still to declare their intentions.

Two others have confirmed they will be seeking re-election and the fifth has said he will not be standing as an alderman.

The unknown quantities are Ald. William Noel and Ald. Mrs. Edith Gunning. Noel, who is nearing the end of his sixth year on council, said in an interview today he still hasn't made up his mind whether he will be seeking re-election but added: "The chances are I shall."

DECIDE LATER

Ald. Gunning merely said she would be issuing a statement of her intentions at a later date. She has also been on the council six years.

With seven years' council experience already behind him Ald. William Campbell said he intends to stand again in December.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, who was first elected a councillor in 1961 and first successfully ran for reeve (the title for mayors at that time) in an October 1964 byelection, announced last week he would be a candidate for the mayoralty.

Ald. Foster Isherwood said earlier this week he will not seek re-election as an alderman. When asked if he will seek election in any other capacity locally he said "I am leaving my options open."

Oct. 28 Meeting To Launch Hospital Society

A public meeting will be held Oct. 28 to launch the new Peninsula Hospital Society.

Members will be entitled to vote when the first executive is elected at the October meeting. The society will operate a new hospital to be built on Mount Newton Crossroad in Central Saanich.

While the date and the time — 7:30 p.m. — for the October meeting have been set, location will be decided after the directors get an indication of what attendance is likely to be.

Canadian Content Stays Firm on TV

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission has reaffirmed its Canadian content regulations for television.

The commission today announced it will continue to stand by its basic content rules though it is prepared to hear views on "minor modifications in the implementation of these regulations."

Briefs on the Canadian content regulations will be heard at Toronto hearings beginning Sept. 21. The commission last April modified the rules on foreign programming though it retained its Canadian content requirements.

In its announcement today, the CRTC said private television stations will still be required to provide at least 50 per cent Canadian programming in the broadcasting year beginning Oct. 1.

This will be raised to 60 per cent in the 1972 broadcasting year.

ACHIEVED BY CBC

The CBC already has met the 60 per cent requirement first announced by the CRTC in May, 1970. The commission allowed private stations a two-step rise —50 per cent in 1971 and 60 per cent in 1972.

The commission was deluged by letters from Canadians who thought the CRTC was abandoning its Canadian content rules after an April announcement relaxing the rules on foreign programming.

Today's announcement is understood to be a reply to these fears.

The April announcement allowed private stations to buy up to 45 per cent of their programs from one foreign country. The limit had previously been 35 per cent.

The commission said at that time it was allowing the change because of economic difficulties of private stations.

Murray Chercover, president of CTV Television Network Ltd., said at that time the CRTC decision recognized the difficulties faced by private stations in getting good programs from foreign countries other than the U.S. movement inevitable with office buildings.

Commercial use of ground floor space is allowed, as are retail shops and stores, theatres, hotels, clubs approved by council, parks and marinas approved by council.

No building higher than 70 feet will be allowed.

The floor-space ratio of any building under the new zone regulations may not exceed 2:1. As a comparison, the current Reid proposal has a floor space ratio of about 3.3:1.

No development in the zone may be erected below or within 50 feet of the high water mark of the waterfront, according to the regulations.

The bylaw would virtually prevent highrise buildings, and favor "slab" construction within certain limits.

Municipal Act regulations allow council to prohibit any development under the old rules for 90 days while they consider the new zoning laws. This would prevent a developer from rushing ahead plans under the old, more permissive zoning sections.

Trade Halted In Ardo

Vancouver Stock Exchange today halted trading in a speculative mining stock whose B warrants are reported to have been cornered by a Victoria man.

The exchange stopped trading about mid-morning in the B warrants of Ardo Mines Ltd., for which the last posted sale was $1.40.

No reason for the suspension was given, but a report published earlier suggested there may have been short selling by dealers without covering stock as required by law.

The report from Vancouver said David A. Elrix, and about 25 other Victoria investors, had been able to purchase a substantial number of warrants, Elrix claimed today they bought more than 26,000 over and above the 71,250 issued warrants.

If such is the case, dealers from whom the purchases were made would be liable for the discrepancy.

The B warrants entitle a holder to buy one common share of Ardo Mines for an additional 71 cents up to Oct. 2. The common stock was quoted today at 31 cents.

SHORT SALE

A dealer wishing to cover a short sale in the suggested situation would be forced into buying from the Victoria investment group, who would be in a position to turn a profit.

According to the VSE bulletin for July, there are 300,000 B warrants authorized and 88,250 issued. The year's previous high was given at 44 cents, the low 11 cents.

Elrix said he had investigated the matter closely and found there are actually only 71,250 outstanding B warrants.

He said the common stock also was being sold short, with the effect of keeping the price down, which he said was "hurting the guys who are trying to build the company.

People Must Start Legal Action—MP

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said from Ottawa today that court action against the U.S. government is a hypothetical possibility being investigated in the fight to prevent proposed oil tanker traffic from Alaska to Puget Sound.

But any such action would have to be launched by citizens rather than the federal government, he said.

At the moment the question of oil transportation from Alaska is being studied by President Nixon following an inquiry in Washington earlier this year and a report prepared by the U.S. department of the interior.

Meanwhile said Anderson, all other avenues for blocking marine transit of the oil which he considers a grave threat to the ecology because of the possibility of huge spills are being investigated.

Canadians are now able to take action in American courts under long-standing legal agreements if they suffer from pollution generated in the U.S.

It may be that under the American Environmental Protection Act, passed in 1969, or under the older legislation that a case could be brought against the tanker traffic because of the threat it represents.

Lawyers and others in Vancouver Toronto and Washington have volunteered to look into the matter, said Anderson.

"Regardless of how weak the case is we want to check it out and we have no idea right now how strong or weak it is."

Meanwhile, fighting the tanker proposal through diplomatic and political channels is far from through he said.

Should a court action eventually arise it might be initiated by a group of concerned Canadians possibly in concord with Americans. Asked if he might be among the originators, he said that was a possibility.

Waffle Leaders Nabbed in Ont.

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Fourteen persons, including leaders of the New Democratic Party's radical Waffle group, were arrested early today outside the Texpack Ltd. plant where workers have been on strike since July 16.

Charged with obstruction included Mel Watkins, a founder of the Waffle group; Robert Laxer, father of James Laxer a defeated Waffle candidate for the NDP federal leadership; and Steve Penner, the NDP's nominated candidate for Toronto Dovercourt in the next provincial election.

Kent Rowley, president of the striking Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, and Michael Taylor were charged with intimidation.

The other men, all from Toronto, were charged with obstruction or mischief.

Brantford police told pickets Wednesday they would be charged with intimidation if they impeded traffic at either entrance of a street leading to the plant.

Early today, 50 members of the Ontario NDP Waffle group from Toronto and a small group of Texpack strikers were in the area where buses carrying non-union workers arrived.

A picket line began forming and Mr. Rowley was immediately arrested. The crowd moved toward the 30 police on the scene and several fights erupted.

The Waffle group began organizing a meeting but was told to disperse.

Mr. Laxer said later in an interview that the Waffle group came for a peaceful demonstration and will come again to protest "the strike-breaking tactics used by the police and the company."

The arrests brought the total since 150 workers went on strike July 16 to more than 60.

A spokesman for the Brantford police said today's clash occurred when three buses carrying non-union members to the plant from the Hamilton area arrived at the company gates.

He said 30 police officers were dispatched to the scene, in an industrial area about three miles from the downtown area.

Plant production of hospital supplies such as bandages has continued despite the strike by members of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Workers Union seeking higher wages.

Texpack is a subsidiary of a U.S. firm.

Steelworkers Lay Lives On Line

HAMILTON (CP) — Several striking steelworkers prevented a freight train shipment of 80 tons of parts from leaving the strikebound International Harvester plant here Wednesday night by lying across the railway tracks.

Several members of Local 2868, United Steelworkers of America, sprawled across the tracks, forcing the diesel locomotive to halt. After hurried consultations between police, company representatives and the train crew, the locomotive withdrew, leaving the boxcars behind.

VIP TREATMENT is afforded passengers on Greyhound buses between three major cities in Alberta as new service with two hostesses started Wednesday. Slightly higher fare includes coffee, cold drinks and snacks. (CP Wirephoto)

MAO 'WARDEN' BUT NICE GUY

WINNIPEG (CP) — China is like an experimental prison with a benevolent old warden — Mao Tse-tung — who has given the people security and purpose, a recent China visitor said today.

Charles Attwood, publisher of Newsday, told delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants the Chinese people are guided by a fanatical devotion to Mao and the highest ideals of the Communist movement.

"In America, we have these people called 'Jesus Freaks.' Well, the Chinese are Mao Freaks.

"But the Chinese are not barbarians," said Attwood, who visited the country in June shortly after China lifted a ban prohibiting U.S. journalists from entering the country.

"They are the most industrious people in the world, and they have one of the lowest crime rates of all countries."

Ther "religious fanaticism" makes them believe they will one day "march off and purify the world. I don't feel that will happen because there is something about human nature that will corupt their ideals."

Ad Ban to Be Tested By Four Publications

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least four publications including the New York Times were expected to join Vancouver businessman Robert Malkin today when he seeks a British Columbia Supreme Court injunction prohibiting the distribution of magazines containing tobacco ads.

"TV Guide, TV Guide Inc., Women's Wear Daily and the New York Times have all contacted my lawyer to see if they can be enjoined in the action" Mr. Malkin said Wednesday night.

"Naturally, I agreed. None of us is doing this for his health. We are out to test the law."

Under legislation passed by the provincial legislature earlier this year, all tobacco and liquor advertising was banned in B.C. effective Sept. 1. The ban covers all print and broadcast outlets as well as billboard and other displays.

Mr. Malkin said the injunction would be sought against Eaton's department store where he bought three magazines containing tobacco ads, and against Vancouver Magazine Service Ltd., which distributes magazines to most news-stands on the lower mainland.

He also received a reply Wednesday to a telegram he sent Attorney-General Leslie Peterson last week, seeking advice on how to proceed in the matter.

"The Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act contemplates civil injunctive proceedings being brought to restrain its breach," Mr. Peterson said.

"Procedures for civil proceedings of this kind are well established. Suggest you instruct your own solicitor."

Meanwhile, Frank Ney, Social Credit member of the legislature for Nanaimo, said the ban should not have been introduced until it could work effectively.

"I voted for this in the house because I felt it was a good thing to discourage advertising of liquor and tobacco, and because I believe advertising has a magnetic effect on people's purchasing habits," he said.

"But now we've got to the position where you can't even buy a decent book on the B.C. ferries while this legislation is going through the courts."

'Wriggly' Crabs Diet For Pacific Drifters

MONTREAL (CP) — A French-Canadian missionary, who with six Filipino parishioners drifted for 37 days in the South Pacific in a 14-foot outrigger carved from a tree trunk, says the group survived on anything from communion wafers to crabs that were "still wriggling around."

Father Marcel Loiselle said in Montreal Wednesday that the party—three girls, two boys and a handyman—set out last June 12 for a two-hour trip to Mindanao in the Philippines where the priest was to perform two weddings.

When the outboard engine broke down, a current thwarted frantic efforts to paddle ashore and they began to drift, losing sight of land for good on the fourth day.

There was no food on board.

"The children were scared so I promised them a big party when we reached shore so they would think positively," said Father Loiselle, on his way home to Quebec City after a stay in a New Guinea hospital.

"We were about 99.5 per cent confident we would be rescued but the big question was when," said Father Loiselle, a member of the Montreal-based Foreign Missions Society.

"I was worried because I knew the boat couldn't hold up under a bad storm," he said. "Then we started to pray and meditate."

MAKE FISH NET

They also tackled the food situation, fashioning a fishing net from wire and cloth and stretching it over the side.

"First the fish were very small," he said, "but the better we got at it, the bigger the fish."

They also ate several tubes of toothpaste, stomach pills, a few mangoes, one coconut, a tortoise, crabs and the barnacles that grew on the side of the boat.

They trapped rainwater on a canvas which also protected them from the scorching sun.

Together they lost more than 200 pounds during the five-week journey which brought the added frustrations of a typhoon with 20-foot waves and a ship that blew its distress signal but didn't stop.

"Maybe they thought we were carrying guns," said Father Loiselle. "It doesn't make sense."

They were finally rescued by a Japanese freighter 1,500 miles off their original course.

Yoga to Touch Football Sidney Fall Program

Activities ranging from yoga to touch football are included in a fall program organized by the Sidney Recreation Commission for which registrations are now being accepted.

The program also offers square dancing, bridge, badminton and basketball for adults. Children can participate in many sports such as soccer, touch football, gymnastics and tumbling, drama games, creative movement and chess.

There is even a twice-a-week morning program for pre-schoolers during which mothers can attend Keep Fit classes.

"We plan for participation and involvement of all age groups," said Commission secretary Eleanor Sowerby. "We need a minimum of 10 persons in each course to keep it going."

Sanscha community hall on Beacon Avenue is being rented by the Commission on a 50-hour a week basis for three months and if the program is a success, the schedule will be extended to next spring.

Square Pegs—Round Parks

THE SUGGESTION FROM Saanich recreation committee that 60 acres of the Regionally-owned Elk-Beaver Lake Park be developed for public amusements is a loaded one. The obvious intention is to add to the park's pleasures, but this type of development could destroy the park as one of the finest outdoor escape areas in the region.

Certainly the proposal, sprung at a time when Victoria is being urged to turn over Thetis Lake Park to the Capital Region, will throw a chill into any thoughts the city might have of putting the Thetis Lake area under Regional control. The regional idea is an excellent one, if it means that Thetis Lake Park would be assured of lasting preservation as a place of natural beauty — the major purpose of regionalization—but not if it means some day exposing the park to a campaign of "development."

Elk-Beaver Lake Park, while not possessing the botanical treasure house that distinguishes Thetis Lake and wins it international recognition, still stands as a choice haven of natural woodland, lake shore and meadow, near to the population centre of the Region and deserving of all the protection that can be given.

An unobtrusive feature such as an archery range might add to the public pleasure, but the thought of a huge black-topped parking area, a zoo and other modern "improvements" should rouse immediate public opposition. A wild animal zoo, in particular — mental captives looking at physical captives — is the last means by which human beings should seek to enjoy a day of freedom in the open air.

We shouldn't push the "development" idea in natural, scenic parks. All the man-made, constructed attractions and amusements should be located in less favored spots. They should not be intrusions into areas which are already beautiful and satisfying in themselves, but additions to less naturally endowed sites where existing assets do not have to be destroyed or infringed on in order to make room for a different type of recreational facility. There are numerous areas which could be bettered by development as amusement and sports parks. We have all too few fully protected areas whose natural beauty requires no artificial decoration, although the Capital Regional parks program is doing an excellent job of acquisition.

It was hardly within the original Regional plan that more than elementary sanitary facilities or water supplies and such improvements should be added to the parklands purchased with public funds. In other types of park — in which attractions such as sports facilities, fairy-tale exhibits, miniature railways, putting greens and similar amusements can usefully be provided, with their financial investments and possible opportunities for revenue — the municipalities or private interests should find legitimate scope for development. But let us not mix the two, to the inevitable detriment of the nature park. Let such developments be truly improvements, in the right place, and not detractions, in the wrong.

The Real Issue

MAYOR HADDOCK'S SPIRITED challenge to surrounding municipalities to contribute funds to assist the city to purchase the Inner Harbor property on which the Reid high-rise development is planned does not quite meet the point at issue.

The point is not that the city should attempt to own all the harbor front, or even that part of it which is now owned by the Reid interests. Nor is it proposed — except as an idyllic thought — that all the waterfront should be made into a park.

The point is that Victoria's civic government should be deciding land use on the basis of an over-all master plan which, among other things would prevent poor siting of high-rise buildings. The Reid property could well be made the site of an attractive building or complex which did not dominate the whole neighborhood, did not cut off the view, did not alter the open light-and-air environment of the city centre, did not sacrifice public interest to that of a few.

That is all. Public ownership is not needed, donations from neighbors are not needed. Just the best city-planning advice that can be obtained from the country's best city planners — and then imaginative, sensible, enlightened application of the plan by council.

How Secure Is Security?

CANADIANS HAVE ALWAYS thought it unnecessary to develop a complicated paraphernalia to assess surbversive activities and to enforce internal security. The Security and Intelligence Branch of the RCMP has traditionally been regarded with misgivings by the average citizen. Its role is an unpalatable if necessary one, a mission which has to be constantly justified in a country which regards personal rights, notably the right of dissent, highly.

The formation of an office of internal security in the Solicitor General's Department, for receiving and assessing information on subversive activities and informing the cabinet, raises once again the fundamental reason for Canada's existence and casts doubt on the high price which is to be paid to keep a section of our population under control. The Defence white paper stressed the need for internal security. Formation of the security group under Col. Robin Bourne is giving substance to the plans of the government.

The present group comprises three men with a budget of $20,000 and this sum is expected to increase tenfold when the group is expanded to 20.

The pursuit of "internal security" against dissident political elements within society invades some very delicate ground. A philosophy can arise that the people are not to be trusted. Col. Bourne's group appears to have a primary interest in Quebec. Yet the whole country will pay for an atmosphere of suspicion which may be generated.

It has yet to be proved that Canada requires additional echelons of official security forces. It will be interesting to see what speakers take up this issue in the Parliamentary session now under way.

Around the Table

THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT representatives of the United States and Soviet navies will meet in Moscow in October to plan ways of avoiding collisions and other accidents between naval vessels is perhaps another sign of the new look in U.S. foreign policy. It suggests a recognition by Washington of the growing power of the Soviet navy and of the general military parity between the two superpowers.

Flexibility is an essential element in any foreign policy and the top-level delegations headed, on the one side, by U.S. Undersecretary of the Navy John Warner and, on the other, by the First Deputy Commander in Chief of Soviet naval forces, Vladimir Kasatonov, indicates the willingness of their countries to sit down for mutual discussion of problems.

Perhaps in that aspect lies the chief value of the planned talks. The public has had little knowledge of any sea accidents involving the two navies, although it is said that more than 100 incidents have been reported "over the years." But the growing disposition of the two nations to communicate at various levels can only be to their benefit and that of the world.

Push and Pull

FROM LONDON — By JAMES RESTON

Unrelenting Hostility Between the Giants

FLYING across the entire width of the Soviet Union is a cinch these days. It is no shuttle ride, and fourteen hours of food and drink between Tokyo and London can be injurious to your health, but for anybody who likes to fly several thousand miles without seeing anything, it is a rare experience. The Soviet government has arranged things so that the British, French and Japanese airlines can make the entire journey in a ten-mile-wide corridor that avoids every community except Moscow.

Reston

Out of Tokyo, the corridor goes 600 miles north over the Sea of Japan and then turns due west across the Soviet coast south of a place called Svetlaya, far north of Vladivostok.

You fly at 36,000 feet, which in these latitudes usually assures a cloud cover between you and the ground, but we have it on the authority of Capt. Tom Bobson, who pioneered this route for BOAC, that we crossed the Alma River two hours out of Tokyo, the Lena River four hours out, the Ob River seven and a half hours out, reaching the Ural Mountains half an hour later and Moscow precisely on time ten hours from take-off.

The sensible thing for a reporter to do is to break the monotony at this point and get a little rest and pick up a little information, if possible. But if you have been in China discussing world politics with the Chinese leaders, getting permission even to stop in the Soviet capital, let alone interview the resident leaders, is a somewhat complicated process.

Beastly

Soviet and Chinese officials are being particularly beastly to one another in print these days. In Peking they complain that Moscow's propaganda is more anti-Chinese than anti-American and that it is often personally villainous. Soviet officials are not only accused of departing from the true Marxist-Leninist line, of social revisionism and even of connivance with Washington in a superpower plot to run the world, but of threatening the security of China with a million men on China's northern frontier.

In the last few days, Moscow propaganda has been particularly waspish in charging that the Peking government was stressing its hostility to Moscow in its recent overtures to Washington and was breaking the unity of the Communist movement by its policies toward Rumania, Albania and Poland. More than this, Pravda and Trud have been criticizing Peking's internal policies on the ground that they were keeping the Chinese people from getting a fair return for labor and from learning anything about the true policies of the Soviet government.

Nothing has surprised this reporter in a long journey of inquiry more than this mutual hostility between the two vast Communist states, whose common frontier and interests would seem to recommend a little more restraint. But while the Chinese have made very little propaganda out of the forthcoming Nixon visit to Peking, and are indeed now explaining to their people how the president could be condemned one day and invited the next, the Russians sound almost paranoic about this Washington move to normalize relations with their ideological antagonists.

For example, if you want to go to Moscow to try to understand what this is all about, it is not advisable to start making arrangements from Peking after you have been discussing these matters with Chou En-lai.

I have been going to the Soviet capital ever since 1943 when the Germans were beyond Smolensk and when Moscow seemed like a city under siege. But their attitude this time was less welcoming.

The Soviet charge d'affaires in Peking was very pleasant, listened to my request for an interview with Mr. Brezhnev and asked me to call back three days later from Shanghai. By then he thought he would have an answer in time for me to catch the Wednesday plane from Peking to Moscow. No answer Monday. No answer Tuesday.

In Tokyo the process was more prolonged. The Soviet charge d'affaires there was "too busy" to discuss the matter. Four days later, after innumerable cables to Moscow, still no reply, but on the morning of departure, the news was better, visas would be granted, but you have to have a "voucher" to stay at a hotel. You can't get a visa without a voucher, and you can't get a voucher without a visa and a confirmed hotel reservation in Moscow, "which takes a week or more," and it is "forbidden" to stay with friends in the Soviet Union.

Of course, maybe the stop in Peking had nothing to do with it. After all, reporters are a nuisance at difficult times like these, and who needs them?

Still, the vehemence of this propaganda war between Moscow and Peking is a puzzle. Even in Peking, where courtesy is regarded as a virtue, it was not possible to get access to the men who were directing or writing the mystifying clarifications of Chinese policy.

Past and Future

In this field, the West is particularly different from the East. President Nixon has shown a willingness to change and even forget his old policies and concentrate on the future, but the Communists in Peking and Moscow can't leave the past alone.

They are even arguing with one another now about the Soviet Union's role in the war against Japan, as if this were somehow important to the vast common problems and interests they have in organizing a peaceful world. It is not good even to ask for an explanation of this. People who forget the past, I was told, in an old cliche out of the West, will be condemned to relive it. It's enough to make London look even better than usual, especially since the sun is shining.

FROM WASHINGTON — By CHARLES BARTLETT

'This Illusive Diplomacy'

IT IS ironic that Richard Nixon's two most tangible successes in foreign policy, the opening to China and the agreement on Berlin, should generate some serious doubts. The administration claim, as Secretary of State Rogers put it in Houston, is that "the president's policy of negotiation is succeeding." He points to China, Berlin, the good prospects on the SALT talks, and the possibility of a European security conference.

Bartlett

But there are thoughtful and non-partisan experts who have grown skeptical as to where Mr. Nixon's policy is headed. They fear that his anxiety to put, for re-election purposes, the brightest possible face on his diplomacy is causing him to facilitate the Communist strategy of encouraging the United States to conduct a strategic retreat from its world responsibilities.

The Berlin agreement, on its face, is a solid gain in guaranteeing Western access. Its price, the creation of a Soviet presence in West Berlin, does not seem prohibitive. Yet the skeptics perceived in the negotiating process a White House eagerness which they deem unhealthy, a readiness to make concessions wholly for the sake of agreement. Secretary of State Rogers acted at times, it is said, as a restraining force.

Withdrawal

Further there is a view that the most important consequence of the agreement may be an acceleration of the momentum to get American forces out of Europe. Keenly aware that Washington's policy is to pull back whenever possible, the Soviets can be suspected of giving a little ground to stimulate the mood of withdrawal.

The perils of the China policy have been heavily stressed. The president and Henry Kissinger have talked hard in private sessions to persuade restless conservative leaders that much can be gained and nothing will be lost by the trip to Peking.

But it is reported that the visit will be made this autumn instead of early spring, a more politically propitious time. This suggests that Mr. Nixon now shares the concern which many feel, that his dealings with Chou En-lai may yield more complications than fruits. The tight secrecy veiling his initiative has stirred anxieties at home and among the allies.

Some in fact argue that he has already committed a major diplomatic fumble by sacrificing his credibility with friendly nations in the Far East. He has made the Japanese uncertain and angrier than they show. In other Far East capitals, there is reportedly a new readiness to believe that Washington policy-makers now put the pressures for withdrawal far ahead of their commitments.

Taiwan

Some of this credibility will be salvaged by a dogged effort to keep Taiwan in the United Nations. But this remains a highly uncertain undertaking and some will argue that Taiwan was a victim of its habit of reliance on Washington. Chiang took his cue so long from the American government that he may well have lost his capacity to muster a strong case on his own.

The eagerness to put an illusive, bright face on events is noted in the frantic American effort to stage a contested presidential election in Vietnam. No realist expected, when the constitution was forced on the South Vietnamese five years ago, that democracy would spring like a full-blown Venus from that tortured soil.

The strenuous manoeuvres to find an opponent for President Thieu were efforts to deal with the aspect of the situation, to obscure the realities. It is this illusive brand of diplomacy, more tempting as the election nears, which troubles the skeptics.

President Nixon has won and deserved high marks for his past conduct of foreign policy. But the key to his success has been a consistency which ought not to be jeopardized by domestic politics.

Advertising Ban

May I congratulate you in the midst of the turmoil about the provincial ban on tobacco and liquor advertising, for your sane and balanced approach to this question, from your first editorial to the current issue of "Weekend," appearing without cigarette advertising.

The public has suffered an affront, the way I view it, from the aggression of tobacco and alcohol interests which have too long flaunted and pushed their specious material to human disadvantage.

It's hard to understand why some are rushing to the aid of these well-heeled exploiters of human failings in the attempt to embarrass a government that cannot help but find its course extremely difficult at the very best.

Since all three party leaders voted in the legislature these criticisms are equally directed at their probity.

The law may well need improvement. It will show its worth when federal and other provincial governments follow suit. — Harold T. Allen, 2140 Kings Rd.

Environmental Issues

I wish to thank The Times for its several recent good editorials on local environmental issues, such as land use, high rises, lakes and parks. These editorials have been of a high order and are really helpful to the reader in evaluating the respective issues. Indeed, it is to be hoped that our City Council members take note of them.

Your paper's contribution to better understanding of these issues is something I feel should be publicly acclaimed. — L. Ryan, Victoria Labor Council.

Why No Plebiscite?

It has made me happy to read your editorials criticizing the Reid plan for high rises on Wharf Street. What is the city council thinking about? Don't its members realize they are destroying the charm of Victoria?

We have a beautiful city here, but when it becomes like any other city in Canada, or America, it will cease to be an attraction for tourists, who are Victoria's main industry.

Why not hold a plebiscite to ascertain the wishes of the people? The high rises we already have are a blot on the landscape.—An Old Timer.

'Militancy Is Justified'

In reply to "A Former Sympathizer," letter of August 31, it would appear that this person (who does not wish to reveal his or her name) has very shallow principles. While at one time he was in sympathy with the Sandringham workers, as soon as the situation took on a belligerent air his principles went out of the window.

These strikers have received the backing of many groups, including the Voice of Women, who have attempted to intercede both with the Department of Labor and the owners of Sandringham on their behalf to no avail. This strike has brought into the open the plight of female employees in general in other services and industries where exploitation has been rampant for many years.

As for the "antics" of the labor movement, if he would delve into labor history he would find such tactics as these have been used by both sides in many labor disputes which have resulted in improved conditions for workers, better quality products and a better standard of living for all citizens. This is what working for a living is all about. If it is necessary at times to take a militant attitude to ensure this then this militancy is justified.

Evidently "Former Sympathizer" has never been involved in a labor dispute, is not prepared to back up his sympathy with his principles (if any), and is only a fence sitter who has fallen off on the wrong side of the fence. — Owen D. Williams, 3167 Alder.

Headline

There are many fine things about your paper and I have written before, always in a constructive way.

I was impressed with the headline and front page of the Times of Saturday, August 28: "MOVE OVER SATCH . . . HERE COMES LIL!".

I was born in 1918, and I have long been an admirer of old Satchmo — Louis Armstrong — and felt badly when he died, even though he was playing his trumpet and growling out his songs, and sweating, almost to the end.

I thought the item, already mentioned, about the passing of Satchmo's first wife, was very well done. If you have local headline writers, please congratulate them. "Move Over Satch . . . Here Comes Lil" — it is certainly the Negro way and the jazz-man way.

The only reason I mention my age is to tie me in with the appreciation of Satchmo.

Very well done, Sir! — Bill Morgan, 2200 Aldeane Avenue.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Sept. 9, 1911:

It is at least amusing to find the Tory organ, mad in an endeavor to reinstate itself in public favor, abandoning the cry of disloyalty and repudiating the danger of annexation. At last public sentiment has so strongly manifested its revolt from the insult which has been heaped upon it sufficiently to force the Colonist to turn another breakneck somersault. Today, for the first time since May 9, it proclaims Canada loyal. It is too late. The insult is resented and no evasive explanations can now re-establish the defamers of loyal Canadians in the confidence of the electors.

Four-Day Week Gaining Favor

More time for this . . .

Good for Business And Labor Likes It

By RIVA POOR

(Mrs. Poor edited the book "Four Days, Forty Hours: Reporting a Revolution in Work and Leisure," which first called attention to the 4-day week last year. She wrote this article for the Washington Post.)

In terms of the numbers of firms that have adopted the four-day week, this movement which has been heard of around the world is still miniscule.

Out of 5 million or more business organizations in the United States, a mere 670 have converted. Out of a work force of more than 83 million persons, only about 130,000 are employed at firms that have converted.

Measuring in terms of the way the movement is growing, it's another story, almost overwhelming. A year ago at this time there was hardly one conversion a month. Then in November, after the publication of our book, the rate shot up to about one every three days.

In January it climbed to one a day. In June it hit two a day. Now, as we rapidly approach five a day, there is no sign of abatement. Although it could abate at any moment, the signs point to continued growth.

To add perspective to the rapidity of this growth, the five-day week itself appeared only as recently as 1908, and in 1929 only 5 per cent of the U.S. work force was on it. It was not until the 1940s that five days really became the new standard work week, the one that we are breaking away from now.

1,500 Articles

Aside from the increasing growth rate of conversions, there are many indicators of the concept's impact of the social scene and of its potential for further impact. Over 1,500 articles have been written this year on the movement, and almost every businessmen's association in the U.S. has had or is about to have a panel discussion on the subject.

The four-day management consultant has emerged, and even some prophets of doom. Victor Riesel alone has written three columns panning the movement, the last one announcing its "obituary." Companies advertise for help with headlines about four-day jobs. Employment agencies get requests for four-day jobs. Products are advertised in terms of the longer weekends.

Why has it caught on so well? Most of all because the innovation works well. Companies report it increases their productivity. Employees who experience it report they enjoy it. It appears advantageous to both parties.

Those who are not yet on it are watching with interest to see how these experiments go, so they can decide whether or not to try it.

Background circumstances are important, too. Part of the reason for firms' interest is the profit squeeze in the past few years. The squeeze prompts many firms to search for ways to improve productivity and to be more receptive to an innovation that has shown itself to be a useful tool.

Part of the reason for employees' interest is that people tend to find longer stretches of leisure time more productive for pursuing their leisure interests, and they increasingly want to pursue these interests.

Still another factor is the emergence of a break-the-mold attitude in our society. A climate receptive to change has been developing the past few years, and with it, a search for better ways to do things.

Not a Panacea

While the four-day week works well in most places that try it, that does not mean it is a panacea. It will not end unfriendly employee relations, nor make boring jobs more stimulating. It merely makes the firm more profitable and the employees' leisure more useful.

A number of other "red herrings" have cropped up as concern about the new movement outpaces the public's information about what's happening. For example, I still hear such statements as "the 32-hour week would never work at our firm," although most of us now realize that this movement is not about reducing work hours but about rearranging normal work hours to enhance productivity.

Some firms, however, do achieve sufficient productivity boosts from the rearrangement so that they can cut hours as well.

Here's a list of misimpressions that I think it useful at this point to try to correct:

● "Four ten-hour days will not work at our firm. We need to be open five days a week." Four-forty is just a pat term for the more complex concept of rearranging for increased productivity. The key concept is rearranging — to suit the needs of the individual firm and its individual set of employees.

Catch-All Term

While many firms are open only four 10-hour days, we also find firms open five, six or seven days: it is their manpower scheduling that is on a four-day basis. Secondly, we find many firms whose manpower scheduling is not four 10-hour days, but four 9-hour days, or is on a three-day week, or on four days on, four days off, and so on.

The concept tying all these variations together is trading off a longer work day for a longer weekend so as to make the work schedule work for the firm instead of against it. As is obvious, with a concept as varied as that, you need a catchall term: hence four days, 40 hours, or four-forty.

● "Only small companies are on it, so it's only good for small companies." The mean average number of employees at four-day firms now is still 190, which is sizable — although not enormous. Smaller firms have an advantage in converting — their decision and communication networks are smaller, so it is easier for them to change.

Secondly, smaller firms tend to be operated by their owners — by people who have the authority to make radical changes and have an immediate interest in profits.

Pilot Programs

Larger firms have more complex structure and a good deal less motivation to change. At this point, after a year of discussion, a number of large firms have announced forthcoming pilot programs to test the effiency of rearranging their work weeks.

● "It's a management movement." It certainly started out as one, but now workers are with increasing frequency suggesting the move to management. A number of managers report finding the "4 Days, 40 Hours" book placed on their desks by workers as a hint.

It's easy to see why the movement would begin with management though. The communication network among managers is far larger than that among workers. For instance, managers have and regularly read scores of management magazines.

● "What about the Hawthorne effect? (This is the idea that change—any change —will bring about gains in productivity, but that these gains will erode with time.)

Contrary to expectations, companies do not report erosion of gains. This is probably because relatively few of the gains achieved are based on "soft" changes in worker moods. Most of the gains seem to come from "hard" scheduling changes such as longer production runs, better customer hours, better coverage of peaks and valleys in workloads, and so on.

● "Surely, fatigue from the longer work day is either unbearable or, if bearable, erodes productivity gains." Workers mention few problems with fatigue, and where they mention fatigue, they claim it is more than made up for by the longer weekends. Managers report that any ill effects of fatigue are compensated by the overall gains from the rearrangement.

● "Leisure is burdensome or harmful for people." Our research clearly shows that people know what to do with the leisure they get. They enjoy it, and do not find it boring.

There apears to be a definite trend away from pursuit of the puritan work ethic and toward accepting leisure as wholesome. But pronouncements designed to discourage leisure on the basis that it is not wholesome for people are a clear sign that we still have a long way to go.

So-called experts cite the idea that people will not use their leisure "properly" — with the clear implication that just plain loafing is inadequate or even reprehensible, and even that the expert's taste should dictate peoples' use of leisure.

These things are nonsense. Leisure is an opportunity to choose to do what you want to do. It is a democracy's obligation to provide choice and it is the citizen's privilege to use the opportunity as he sees fit.

What are some of the flies in the ointment? The major one is that most firms' experiences are so new that we don't have sufficient facts to predict accurately what will not work. Things are at a hit-or-miss stage, because it is a pioneering stage, and further analysis is required.

Another problem is the existence of structural barriers that inhibit this sort of innovation. Two prime examples are state laws that restrict the number of hours women are permitted to work each day, and provisions which require government contractors to pay overtime rates for work over eight hours in a day.

We simply cannot afford such barriers to innovation if we are going to achieve increased productivity.

Anti-Inflationary

Four days, forty hours is an innovation that increases productivity. As such, it is anti-inflationary; and, since it is also appealing to many workers, it appears to be worth encouraging.

Four days, 40 hours could herald a new era of innovation in which this particular innovation in work scheduling is only one. The rapidity with which the public has adopted this new idea could be a harbinger of increased receptivity to change and improvement. Many of us devoutly hope so.

. . . and productivity goes up

PROTECT OUR KIDS!

Grey Flannel Sports

By JIM TAYLOR
The Sun

In the mail comes a pencil with a wart on it.

No, wait! It isn't a wart. It's a football. A little wooden football instead of an eraser, with writing on the pencil below:

Do your thing—participate
Turn this pencil into ink
We need you on our team
CAFA
Amateur Football Week
September 18

And, at the other end of the pencil, another inspirational message:

made in U.S.A.

In the same envelope, three "suggested" radio commercials and a list of 11, "suggested ideas" how I can support Amateur Football Week. These include "written statements by name players, such as "This is Angelo Mosca, reminding you that this is Amateur Football Week in Canada'."

●

I've got a better idea. How about something like "This is Angelo Mosca reminding you that this is Amateur Football Week in Canada. Take a half-back to hospital."

However, should we in the media grow short of catchy phrases in our onslaught against those who consider minor football something less than the ultimate thrill, the CAFA provides a list of five slogans:

"To keep a boy out of hot water, run the steam off playing organized football."

And:

"Take your son to an organized football team — don't send him to the dangerous sand lot."

I'd give you the others, but after two I get the heaves.

●

Migawd, does every national sports organization have to come down with the grey flannels? Must minor football go the same way as the CAHA? Every year the men behind minor hockey send me a large yellow pencil stamped with the message "Not to Be Used to Cut Minor Hockey Copy." When I worked the desk in Victoria, I saved it for cutting minor hockey copy.

See, I LIKE minor hockey. Minor football is marvellous. Little League is . . . well, two out of three isn't bad.

But the people who run it are out of their trees. Amnesia must be a prerequisite for office. They've forgotten what it's like to be a kid.

"Don't send him to the dangerous sand lot." If the fathers who run things now had any boyhood at all they GREW UP on the sand lot. They learned their baseball and football there, and they didn't need a PR man to tell them they were having fun.

I suppose you're saving your boy from some small measure of potential danger by keeping him off the vacant lots — assuming he can find one. You could also pack him in styrofoam, feed him intravenously and keep him there until he's 21.

Somehow, in our zeal to keep kids playing games while the population explodes faster than athletic facilities, we have managed to base the entire philosophy on two false premises:

● Kids have to be organized to the nth degree to play children's games.

● Unless they are rewarded with reams of publicity for every goal, touchdown or home run hit by every kid from age 10 on up, we have all somehow failed as parents.

It is garbage. So is the theory that kids need their parents in the stands — as ludicrous as the accompanying idea that if said parents aren't there, they must be knocking back double martinis in some gin joint.

By all means, protect your boy. Protect him from win-or-nothing coaches, and bureaucratic national sports bodies. And if you believe he needs publicity to play, protect him from you.

The Straddle Game

COMMONWEAL

C. L. Sulzberger recently described how the U.S. follows a "straddle" policy toward the apartheid government of South Africa; on the one hand, Washington denounces apartheid in philosophical and moral terms; on the other hand, the U.S. maintains diplomatic and economic ties with the object of our opprobrium.

In the concrete, this involves a $4.8 million sugar subsidy, a NASA space tracking station, support for South African gold, no pressure against and some encouragement for U.S. firms investing in South Africa, etc.

In similar ways, Washington "straddles" the fence between Portugal and the native liberation movements in its African colonies.

A straddle is a straddle is a straddle, so why don't we try an alternative policy, say, for years ending in even numbers.

During those years, Washington could formally announce its moral and philosophical disapproval of the ends and methods of African black liberation movements.

At the same time the U.S. would supply them with $4.8 million in subsidies, raise money for their arms purchases, support their propaganda efforts, etc. That, we think, is only a modest proposal.

Epitaph for October

TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

The Great October Crisis in Quebec, which opened with the grisly melodrama of kidnap and murder, fizzled out last month in anti-climax. The Quebec government's decision to suspend most of the remaining defendants charged under the War Measures Act — including separatists Michel Chartrand, Robert Lemieux and Pierre Vallieres — was the last act in the drama that began with the kidnapping of James Cross and the murder of Pierre Laporte.

The decision not to go ahead with prosecutions was taken in almost a shamefaced way. Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette signed the "nolle prosequi" orders on July 31, then went quietly off to Old Orchard Beach for the holidays.

Days later, according to Premier Robert Bourassa, "someone showed me the Journal de Montreal with a story about this while I was eating my bacon and eggs. How was I to know?"

The imposition of War Measures was probably the most drastic action ever taken by a Canadian government in peacetime. The question has to be asked: Was it justified? In retrospect, the short answer is clearly no. Its proclamation put arbitrary powers in the hands of the police, powers that have to be used with common sense and restraint. They were not so used.

According to the most reliable figures available, the police made more than 5,000 raids under the authority of the act, and more than 500 persons were detained in jail for periods ranging from a minimum of two days to a maximum of about six months.

Yet, by the time the courts recessed for the following summer, only 23 persons had been convicted of criminal charges connected with the crisis. Nine of these were convicted on charges arising from the kidnapping and murder of Pierrre Laporte, and the remaining 14 on special charges created by the emergency legislation, such as "publicizing the objectives of the FLQ." 494 persons who had been detained were released without any charges being laid.

A case could be made for these procedures if they had in fact helped to solve the Cross and Laporte cases and break up the FLQ. But there is no real evidence that they did. Paul Rose and his accomplices in the kidnapping and murder of Pierre Laporte were caught by ordinary methods.

Yet, in fairness, we must consider the atmosphere that prevailed at the time. Political kidnappings of this kind had no precedent in Canada; in other countries they had been the prelude to large-scale political violence.

★ ★ ★

The actual crimes touched off a wave of demonstrations, especially in Montreal, in which various fire-eaters — some of them quite prominent — condoned the actions of the FLQ.

The weak Bourassa government in Quebec seemed to be disintegrating, and there was an unsubstantiated official story of an "apprehended insurrection." The public expected the federal government to do something to "restore order" and the government obliged.

The real purpose of its action may well have been not to solve the crimes or smash the FLQ, but to "cool off" Quebec. In this it certainly succeeded. The wholesale arrests threw a pall of fear over the radical separatists and the whole left wing of Quebec politics. Political activity slowed down and has only now begun to revive.

★ ★ ★

But there is always a price to be paid for this kind of success. Among the public and potential jurymen. The harsh and arbitrary measures taken seem to have created a feeling of sympathy, not indeed for actual FLQ terrorists, but for the radical separatists and nationalists who were the targets of the police raids. They are in danger of becoming martyrs.

If this sympathy translates itself into political action, we may still have a heavy bill to pay for the War Measures Act.

From PGE to BCR via WAC

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) — The Pacific Great Eastern Railway will become the British Columbia Railway next year, Premier Bennett announced Wednesday night.

He said the name of the government-owned line will be changed officially at the next session of the B.C. legislature, which sits again in January.

Bennett made the announcement as his private PGE car rolled northward for Friday's official opening of a 253-mile PGE extension to Fort Nelson from Fort St. John.

Bennett said the 950-mile PGE has opened up all of the province to railroad access and resource development. It was time to scrap the old name which had served since 1912.

He said the name Pacific Great Eastern has caused confusion throughout North America and PGE cars that find their way down into the U.S. have often been delayed in their return because of confusion among American dispatchers as to the origin of the line.

Starting next year, PGE freight cars will carry the familiar map of British Columbia, but underneath the map the initials PGE will be switched to BCR.

Time Losses Down a Lot

Working time lost in the first seven months of this year from strikes and lockouts in Canada amounted to 1.5 million days compared with 3.4 million days in the same period last year, the federal labor department reports.

There were 327 work stoppages in effect involving 173,353 workers compared with 381 and 171,778 workers in the corresponding period last year.

Second-Rate Decisions By Judges—Professor

TORONTO (CP) — A former University of Saskatchewan law professor says Canadian judges often hand down second-rate decisions because they lack sufficient knowledge about law.

E. A. Tollefson, now with the federal justice department's law research section, made the comment in an article he wrote in the current edition of the University of Toronto law journal.

Mr. Tollefson said the judicial system is set up with the expectation that judges should be experts in the entire field of law, but "a modest knowledge" of two or three branches of law is all anyone should be expected to have.

Mr. Tollefson also said that a comparison of judgments handed down by Canadian courts compared with those of British courts "would almost certainly be far from complimentary to the Canadian judiciary."

But he said Canadian judges are asked to decide questions "from practically every area of the law" while British judges are free to specialize in one aspect of law.

Mr. Tollefson suggested Canadian courts ought to undertake more specialization.

Lighters Missing At The Bay

About $100 worth of cigarette lighters were discovered missing from The Bay department store following a break-in during the weekend, police said Wednesday.

Police speculated children may be involved. Investigators found a pair of used running shoes on a staircase.

A store employee found the lighters gone from containers in a cabinet, police said.

Before the Judge

William A. Butler, 47, of 2290 Brighton, was fined $250 Wednesday by Judge William Ostler when he was found guilty of stealing merchandise from The Bay June 19.

A security officer said she stopped the accused after he had taken four items worth a total of $5.82.

Donald L. McLarty, 66, of 932 Rovils Crescent, was fined $250 by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent. He was banned from driving for two months.

George Becker, 50, of 440 Bay, was fined $400 for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for five months except when working.

City Man Gets Post At Stanford

A Victoria man leaves this week to take up post-doctoral research at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Centre at California's Stanford University.

John Matthews, 26, of 2895 Ashley Road, is a graduate of Esquimalt Senior Secondary. He majored in physics at the University of Victoria, winning the Governor-General's Medal as Uvic's top science student in 1966.

He won a University of Toronto fellowship and was awarded his master's degree in 1967, studying nuclear physics. In June of this year he completed his doctorate at the U. of T., after winning a National Research Council fellowship and a $4,500 Gulf Oil scholarship.

His doctorate is in elementary particles, a branch of physics.

The appointment at Stanford is for two or three years. The institute is supported by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and conducts studies in pure and applied physics.

Beach Drive Plan Gets Special Bylaw

Oak Bay council decided Wednesday to exclude two properties on Beach Drive from its proposed tighter restrictions on construction and draw up a special bylaw to deal with them.

The properties are at 1446 Beach and the lots immediately adjacent to the Rudyard Kipling apartment building, corner of Windsor and Beach.

Developers of these properties have been consulting municipal officials for several months on the plans and voiced objections when a public hearing was held Aug. 30 to a bylaw that would insist on non-combustible instead of frame construction, demand wider setbacks and underground parking.

USED OLD BYLAW

Their lawyers contended that large amounts of money had already been spent with the developers using the old bylaw as a guideline.

Following a meeting between the developers and the zoning committee Wednesday morning, council agreed to certain relaxations.

Also on Wednesday evening council withdrew the proposed bylaw for the area. Another will be drawn up, including similar requirements but with some amendments.

Ald. Douglas Watts said the area could not be covered by a blanket policy with some of the properties backing on apartments, others on residential properties and a lane.

He suggested it appeared necessary that each future development would have to be considered on its own merits.

OWN MERIT

A rezoning bylaw will also be prepared to allow construction of a two-storey office and retail building on the southeast corner of Estevan and Cadboro Bay. Plans call for a bank and two stores on the ground floor and 16 small offices on the second storey.

Council also decided to hold a public hearing Sept. 30 at 7:30 p.m. on a rezoning bylaw that would declare a block on Newport opposite Windsor Park a development area.

Plans have been submitted to council for the building of two high-rise towers containing stores, an underground service station and apartments.

Because of the great number of residents expected to attend the public hearing, council will want a larger meeting place, possibly at Monterey School.

A "strongly worded" telegram will be sent to U.S. President Nixon, urging him to cancel the nuclear test on Amchitka Island, scheduled for October.

Two representatives of Oak Bay council will meet with Victoria and Saanich council representatives to work out an acceptable formula for the rental value to the Greater Victoria Library Board of the centennial branch libraries now under construction.

Bennett Says Job Reaction 'Hard Hearted'

Premier Bennett today described as "hard-hearted" the labor leaders who have criticized the provincial government's wage subsidy program to put welfare recipients into jobs.

He said he is sure they do not speak for the common worker, just as he was sure that industrialists who criticized the plan didn't speak for the ordinary businessman.

Bennett, northbound for the opening Friday of the PGE extension to Fort Nelson, said the reaction shows a lack of sympathy for the plight of welfare recipients, who haven't had a job for several months, when it is said these persons now are a privileged class.

Union Given Seven Days To Agree to Arbitrator

B.C. Hydro told the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Wednesday it has seven days to agree to appointment of an arbitrator, or the B.C. Supreme Court may appoint one.

Hydro Chairman Gordon Shrum said because the two sides have been unable to agree on an arbitrator, it was serving the union with the seven-day notice in accordance with the Arbitration Act.

He said the crown corporation has "conscientiously tried" to reach agreement with the IBEW on a successor to Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, who was to arbitrate the contract dispute but had to withdraw because his wife is ill.

"We have proposed over 20 names of persons not connected with Hydro or the management side of industry. All have been rejected by the union repersentatives," he said.

Since last Friday, the 2,200 electrical workers in the utility have been working to rule and banning overtime except in emergencies.

Shrum said there is an "urgent need" to conclude the arbitration because of the "action of some of the union members in refusing to repair outages on weekends and evenings. Last weekend several of our customers were without electric power for up to 48 hours."

MP PLANS WEEKEND OF MEET-THE-PEOPLE

David Anderson, MP (Lib. — Esquimalt-Saanich) will be collecting ideas and comments from constituents in a meet-the-people schedule Friday and Saturday.

He will use a house trailer which will be at the Esquimalt Plaza from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Friday and at the Colwood Plaza from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Anderson will be at the Royal Oak Plaza from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, at the Brentwood Plaza from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and at the Safeway parking lot in Sidney from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Cyclists Given Medallions

Four Oak Bay senior high school students were presented with inter-municipal medallions Wednesday in recognition of their bicycle trip from Victoria to Halifax, N.S. as a centennial project.

The presentation took place at the meeting of Oak Bay council with Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich awarding a medallion to Saanich resident Malcolm McConechy and Mayor Frances Elford presenting medallions to Tom Dohan, Donald Macartney and Peter Saunders, all of Oak Bay.

Jury Rules Haney Deaths 'Unnatural, Accidental'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — After deliberating for 4½ hours, an inquest jury ruled Wednesday night that the deaths of five members of the Ronald Johnson family of Haney were "unnatural and accidental" in a Boxing Day highway crash.

The Johnson car was involved in a collision with a car driven by an off-duty RCMP constable.

The jury of six men and one woman said Constable Orville Nickel was proceeding at an unsafe speed for the area and the Johnson vehicle entered the intersection of 221st Street and Lougheed Highway misjudging the speed of the Nickel car. It said both were contributing factors.

The jury said all the questions raised at an earlier inquest last January have been answered. It said there was a lack of supervision and assistance by the senior officer at the scene, but added that under the circumstances, remaining officers handled the situation to the best of their ability.

The jury said Keith Johnson, one of three children killed, should have been taken to hospital in the first ambulance, in the belief that everyone is alive until he is certified dead.

Outside the courtroom, Constable Nickel said:

"I hope that the public is satisfied with the proceedings. There have been many witnesses who have voiced their opinions, who have given their testimony, and I just hope that these people realize what has transpired here and the man hours and the expense that the government has gone to to satisfy the public."

The original inquest, held in Haney, returned a verdict of accidental death, but it was quashed by the B.C. Supreme Court following a series of complaints and questions in the news media and from residents of the area.

Earlier Wednesday, Constable Nickel ignored the advice of his lawyer and declined protection of the Canada Evidence Act in testifying.

Just before the accident, he said, he had decided to follow an RCMP cruiser which was on an emergency call through Haney.

Constable Nickel, off duty at the time, said he was just pulling away from a traffic light westbound on Lougheed Highway at 224th Street when the police car passed him at between 40 and 50 miles an hour, with its emergency light and siren on.

"All I wanted to do was follow along to see if I could render assistance," he said.

Constable Nickel said he accelerated in an attempt to follow the cruiser and had reached a speed of between 40 and 50 miles an hour when he realized he could not catch it.

He geared down, he said, and was driving toward the intersection of 221st Street on Lougheed.

Suddenly, Constable Nickel testified, a car appeared across his lane at the intersection about one-and-a-half car lengths from his own.

"It could very well have been parked there," he said. "I didn't have time to do anything."

Defector's Bid Heard

VANCOUVER (CP) — A young Russian seaman who swam through a storm to reach the British Columbia coast from his ship was given a four-hour immigration department hearing Wednesday on his bid for political asylum.

A spokesman said a transcript of the closed meeting would be sent to Ottawa where any decision would be made.

Serge Kourdakov, 20, an officer cadet in the Soviet armed forces, abandoned one of 11 Soviet fishing vessels taking shelter from a storm off the Queen Charlotte Islands and battled choppy seas for hours before reaching the mining town of Tasu on Moresby Island.

Lyall Hawkins, regional director of immigration, said the hearing was concluded without a decision.

"We don't come to a decision on something like this," he said. "The information obtained in this formal hearing . . . must be recorded accurately and the whole bit will be sent to Ottawa."

He said Kourdakov would be detained pending a decision.

However, it was understood Vancouver lawyer Jerome Paradis, who represented Kourdakov at the hearing, was working to have the Russian released on bail. He was being held for illegal entry.

Kourdakov, a radio operator aboard a Soviet trawler, jumped into the cold water off British Columbia's north coast early Saturday morning. It was daylight before he reached Tasu.

And you thought economy meant compromise.

It's the things you don't have to give up that make the Mazda 1600 c.c. Sedan. Like driving. You can go all day without aching in your bones. Or in your pocketbook.

The Mazda 1600 is the most comfortable car in the class. It has a longer wheelbase. A wider stance. And the finest suspension system at any price.

For performance, the overhead cam piston engine is tough and efficient. You can climb mountains and cross prairies without strain. And you'll get top mileage on regular gas.

You don't have to give up on the interior. The Mazda 1600 is luxurious and roomy. With body contoured bucket seats. Wall-to-wall carpeting. Padded dash and fine instrumentation. And a back seat with plenty of legroom.

And unlike a lot of imports the Mazda 1600 Sedan doesn't give up on the outside. It's graceful with lines that flow instead of angles that jar. So it doesn't look like you're driving a bargain.

You could buy a lot of little cars for less. If you don't mind a lot of little compromises. Or you could buy a Mazda 1600 Sedan.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Vic. Mortgage

Prospect of a new high in annual earnings is seen by Victoria Mortgage Corp. Ltd., president Douglas Hawkes, reporting for the period ended July 31.

He said the surplus account rose by $3,800 to $53,969 and total assets were valued at $2.42 million. The company had invested $203,634 in its holdings, in which there was total investment of $493,584.

Dividend payout remains the same as for the previous three quarters of 1971, including the extra paid on preferred shares.

Brascan

Brascan Ltd., a Canadian company with extensive interests in electric utilities and other industries in Brazil, reported an 18.6 per cent increase in consolidated net income for the first half of 1971.

The firm reported a consolidated net income of $41.4 million (U.S.) for the six-month ending June 30, 1971. The 1970 total for the same period was $34.9 million.

J. H. Moore, president, said the increase was largely due to improved earnings in Brazilian investment and to a non-recurring reduction in taxes.

Giant

A second drill has been moved on to the site of Giant Explorations Ltd. recent nickel discovery near Hope in a joint venture with Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. in order to step up the pace of information.

Indications are that the ore body contains 200,000 tons per vertical foot in the 564-claim property, which is suited to open pit mining and has little overburden.

The low grade discovery is more than 2,000 feet in length, 800 feet wide and 700 feet deep.

Traders

Net profit rose 25 per cent from $2.69 million to $3.38 million in the six months ended June 30, reports Traders Group Ltd., which had income of $61 million including gain on sale of securities, vs. $58.4 million a year ago.

An exchange of shares provided a further capital gain of $8.4 million to bring net profit finally to $11.8 million, compared with $2.69 million, or 62 cents a share before the extraordinary item and $2.50 a share after the gain. A year earlier the net was 47 cents a share.

Royal

The Royal Bank of Canada balance of revenue dropped to $101.66 million in the nine months ended July 31, from $109.99 million in the comparable 1970 period.

For the last quarter, balance of revenue was $36.27 million, up from $34.64 million in the third quarter of 1970.

Balance of profit in the last nine months, was $31 million (94.5 cents a share) compared with $32.68 million (98.2 cents) in 1970.

Total assets July 31 were $12.46 billion, an increase of 15.1 per cent.

Midland

A statement issued by Midland Petroleums Ltd. for the six months ended June 30 shows working capital dropped from $29,000 Jan. 1 to $14,500.

An interest in Bambrick Creek property and administrative outlays accounted for the majority of expenses.

Midland said there was no comparison with a year ago because of a different basis of accounting.

Litton

Litton Industries Inc. reports net income for the year ended July 31 fell to $50 million from $68.75 million the previous year. Sales totalled $2.46 billion against $2.4 billion.

The diversified company attributed reduced earnings to slackness in its industrial systems and equipment group. The business systems and equipment group reported gains in both sales and earnings.

For the fourth quarter, ended July 31, Litton had net income of $13.8 million, down from $15.6 million a year earlier on sales of $681 million vs. $665.6 million.

Chrysler

Chrysler Corp. increased ownership of Chrysler France, formerly Simca, to 96.7 per cent from 77.1 and is making a public offer in France in an effort to buy all remaining outstanding shares.

Chrysler bought a 25-per-cent interest in the French auto firm in 1958 and became a majority shareholder in 1963.

Silver Price Continues Plunge

LONDON (Reuter) — Silver which has been hoarded by speculators for five years in a gamble that it would eventually sell at a big profit was being hastily unloaded on the London market Wednesday as the price of the white metal tumbled.

For years silver, and gold, have been regarded by speculators as hedging investments when paper currencies are in trouble. Invariably, this has meant that a currency crisis has increased the market value of gold and silver.

But the routine has been upset during the current dollar crisis. Instead of bullion increasing in value, it has been losing and the speculators who are relying on it as an insurance cover now have decided that the risk of holding on is too great.

On the London market Wednesday, silver lost another seven cents U.S. an ounce, to slip back to its lowest for four years.

It was being quoted Wednesday at 55.8 pence an ounce. This is an equivalent of 137.2 cents and is well below Tuesday night's New York Commodity Exchange price of 145.2 cents.

Speculators frequently sell their silver to buy gold, but as the future of the gold price now is as much a gamble as silver, they are believed to be taking more interest in shares.

In London Wednesday, gold fell by a quarter of a cent to $41.40 ounce.

The price also dropped in Zurich, Beirut and Hong Kong.

Pipeline Ruptured

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The American-owned pipeline that carries oil from Saudi Arabia to the Mediterranean was ruptured in north Jordan, apparently by an explosion, a company spokesman said today.

The Trans Arabian Pipeline Co. said, in a statement the rupture occurred Wednesday night near Jordan's border with Syria, where Jordanian army forces and Palestinian guerrillas skirmish periodically.

The spokesman said repair of the line "already is under way and should be completed in 24 to 48 hours."

The 1,000-mile line carries an average of 480,000 barrels of oil a day from Ras Tanura, Saudi Arabia to the Lebanese port of Sidon.

BILL WALKER

This is short order day, or if artificial playing surfaces don't bring on added injuries, particularly to the legs, then why is the University of Washington football field watered down before practices?

It's true. And if it doesn't exactly soften the impact of the players on landing, at least they will skid a foot or two. Meanwhile, the manufacturers of AstroTurf, Polyturf, and Tartan turf, have withdrawn claims that injuries will be lessened because of the synthetic surfaces. There also has been the complaint of "erstaz elbow," some of the turf apparently working its way under the skin of footballers who fall on their elbows. Still, the mod sod is definitely here to stay, because it is impervious to wear and tear, and can be used continuously. Besides, the expensive maintenance of grass is eliminated. And there is no doubt it is better for the spectator. So bring on the water, lads! And the Huskies plan to do just that in games, unless ordered otherwise.

THE KISS OF DEATH — Sports Illustrated is a great magazine, but it certainly can't pick winners. The latest case of bad timing was the front-page headline "Here Come the Cubs," describing the National League East pennant race. Well, before the issue hit the street, the Cubs had gone into a tailspin there was a minor player rebellion, owner Phil Wrigley said he still loved manager Leo Durocher, and suddenly the Chicago pennant drive was all but over . . . Meanwhile Sport mag has an interesting piece on the NFL and the picks there are for Kansas City Chiefs to take the AFC title, and either Detoit Lions or San Francisco 49ers to win in the NFC . . . Also, named as top performers of the last 25 years by Sport, are Rod Laver in tennis, Rocky Marciano in boxing, John Unitas in football, and Willie Mays in baseball.

A NOTE FROM THE PAST — "It's not that I play the whole game badly, but there's a quarter, spaced through the game, when I do things that are absolutely awful." The speaker? Paul Brothers, no longer the first-string quarterback of the B.C. Lions, or anybody. That was two long years ago, and give Paul credit, he held on much longer (about two years) than most critics ever believed possible . . . Actually, Eagle Keys took the only way out. Paul was either No. 1, or nobody, and he certainly wasn't any No. 1 at Regina on Monday.

ON THE WAY BACK is Victoria baseballer Pete Duncan. Pete had an operation on his pitching arm this year, has had the arm examined by the Kansas City board of health, has passed that test, and is getting set for a season of winter ball in Florida . . . After that . . . "It all depends on how I do." . . . Meanwhile, Lorne Bunyan is off to join the RCMP, Mike Souchak (remember him?) made all of $175 on the pro golf tour last season, John Morgan may become the best of the lot of all Victoria pro golfers (witness his latest feat), and the idea of US. football announcers giving the name of the player who is responsible for a penalty is an excellent one.

Death of Phil Edwards this week, one of Canada's premier runners, stirred fond memories in former Olympic track and field coach Archie McKinnon: "He was a fine man," said Archie, "and I thought the world of him." Edwards was a member of the 1936 Olympic team, which Archie coached, and also the 1928 and 1932 teams. He won five bronze medals for Canada in that time, two of them in the 800 and 1,500 metres in Berlin to help destroy Hitler's total Ayran approach to athletics . . . "I was only a little guy from nowhere," Archie recalled, "and I was scared, honestly. But when Phil put his arm around me on the boat going over, I knew then I had been accepted, and we became great friends."

Archie also recalled the feat of another Victorian in the pre-Olympic meet in 1936. Bill Dale was only 17 years of age at the time, and he was up against Edwards in the trial. "I told Bill that Edwards would go out like crazy, and that he wasn't to follow, but to stay about halfway between Edwards and the pack. Then about 200 or 300 yards from the finish he could make his run, if he had anything left. Bill made that run, a great one, and the Montreal papers said he closed a 70-yard gap to only seven at the finish. Bill didn't make the team, and we often wonder if he would have beaten Edwards, if he had been closer to the pace."

FACT also is that in the 1936 Olympics, Canada had a finalist in every running event up to the 1,500 metres except the 100 metres. Howie McPhee barely missed qualifying in the sprint. Can any other Canadian team match that record?

MONTREAL (CP) — Can a United States Olympic track star be classified as a non-import in the Canadian Football League?

Yes, if he has the right notarized documents.

So, John Carlos, the U.S. sprinter who won a bronze medal for that country in the 200-metre sprints at the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City, will be suited up as a "Canadian" for Montreal Alouettes when they play Ottawa Rough Riders in an Eastern Football Conference game here Saturday night.

Carlos, 26, signed a contract with the Als Wednesday as a non-import wide receiver, after weeks of dickering about his non-import status.

CATS SIGN SMITH

Carlos and Tommy Smith gained world-wide notoriety in the Mexico City Olympics when they raised clenched-fist Black Panther salutes wsile receiving the bronze and gold medals, respectively.

Ironically, Smith also joins Carlos in Canadian football today. Hamilton Tiger-Cats announced the signing of Smith, a wide receiver recently cut by Cincinnati Bengals of the National League.

While he refused to discuss terms or length of his contract, it was learned that Carlos had signed a one-year pact.

To make room for Carlos on the roster, coach Sam Etcheverry put Canadian Brian Kelsey on waivers.

DALLA RIVA BACK

The Als also reactivated Canadian tight end Peter Dalla Riva, out since training camp because of a knee operation, and placed flanker Garry Lefebvre on the disabled list. Lefebvre, a Canadian, has a disc problem in his neck.

Carlos became a Canadian when CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur approved the notarized documents supporting Montreal's claim that Carlos qualified as a non-import because of a provision laid out in section 8 of league bylaws.

Gaudaur ruled that "the league was required to use training, not nationality, as the criterion for defining or limiting the non-Canadian player." Red O'Quinn, general manager of the Als said.

Section 8, paragraph 10 says that a player who has received training in football outside of Canada by having participated as a player in a football game outside of Canada prior to his 17th birthday is an import.

USES RULES

Also, any player who has received training in football outside of Canada after his 17th birthday, but has not received football training in Canada prior to his 17th birthday is also ruled an import.

O'Quinn said that by signing Carlos, the Als were not trying to circumvent CFL rules but only taking advantage of them as they exist today.

But it is unlikely that Carlos will get a starting assignment in Saturday's game.

Meanwhile, Ottawa coach Jack Gotta congratulated the Als and said "they should get plusses for an outstanding job of recruiting." "And it's all within the rules," he said.

LEHEW LAMENTS

In Calgary, Stampeders' general manager Rogers Lehew said Gaudaur is making a farce of the rule.

"This rule was designed to protect the rights of the Canadian player. But in Carlos we have a man who signed a professional football contract . . . who took bonus money to sign that contract and it is my understanding he attended two Philadelphia training camps.

"About four years ago . . . two boys were disqualified, a kicker in Montreal and a kicker in Vancouver. One was English, but both were disqualified as non-imports because they had been in NFL training camps."

Gaudaur emphasized that no league judgment was involved in declaring Carlos a non-import. Having presented the legal documentation, Carlos was eligible under league rules, the commissioner said.

South Africans Facing Isolation

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — South Africa faces the chilly prospect of being pushed to the world's sporting sidelines following the cancellation of the Springboks cricket tour of Australia.

The Australian Cricket Board of control's cancellation decision, announced Wednesday, means that South Africa is left without any major opponents among Commonwealth countries where cricket is a leading sport.

The decision followed mounting anti-apartheid pressure in Australia to call off the tour this year.

Anti-apartheid protests failed to stop a Springboks rugby tour of Australia earlier this year, but it was dogged by demonstrations.

A cricket tour of England was called last year and now with New Zealand almost certainly ruled out as competition for a whites-only South African squad, the Springboks do not expect to make an overseas tour in the foreseeable future.

Other cricketing nations, the West Indies, India and Pakistan, are ruled out from playing cricket with South Africa on the grounds of color.

The side to tour Australia contained many of the players which defeated the Australian Tourists in four successive tests here last year.

Ironically, it is the cricketers more than any other South African sporting group that have actively opposed the enforcement of apartheid in sports. But all their moves to change the system have been bluntly turned down by the government.

South African leaders frequently and adamantly have said they are not prepared to sacrifice their political standing for the sake of sport.

Former 'Peg Coach George Trafton Dies

LOS ANGELES (CP) — George Trafton is dead. The football world will never sound the same.

Trafton, a member of the National Football League Hall of Fame from the pioneer days of the Chicago Bears and the voluble coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League in the early 1950s, died in Los Angeles Sunday at 74.

Trafton, who died in a convalescent hospital Sunday, had a career that was an American classic before he ever hit Canada.

He played under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame and then played both offence and defence with the primeval Bears of George Halas. He was an all pro lineman with the Bears between 1921 and 1933. He coached for Green Bay Packers and Cleveland Rams before he moved to Winnipeg in 1951. He left in 1953 after the Bombers were beaten 12-6 by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Grey Cup game.

His career parallelled that of his old team-mate and coach George Halas, dating back to the old Decatur Staleys which became the keystone of the National Football League Chicago Bears.

Trafton is credited with initiating the one-hand snapback of the ball to the quarterback.

Trafton had several ring fights as well as many unscheduled saloon matches. Two were memorable.

Howe Retiring After 25 Years

'Mr. Hockey' Cites Wrist Legs and Age

DETROIT (AP)—Occasionally during his 25 star-studded years with Detroit Red Wings, Gordie Howe would receive fan mail addressed simply: "Mr. Hockey, U.S.A."

Now holding more National Hockey League records than any other player in history, Mr. Hockey is stepping aside to let some of the younger talent have a chance.

Red Wings owner Bruce Norris had invited reporters to a news conference this afternoon but, saying he "couldn't hack it once they sent out the invitation," Howe started telling reporters his retirement was official about 18 hours early.

ON THE OTHER HAND . . .

The six-time NHL most valuable player had been arguing the pros and cons of hanging up his skates for months. He catalogued the arguments again in a phone interview Wednesday night.

"Age for one," he said. "I'm 43 and it's a young man's game . . . some wrist trouble, and my legs aren't what they used to be.

"One thing I've stuck to pretty much throughout my career—when it becomes more work than fun, I've had it. I've found practice extremely difficult and I just don't get up for a game anymore.

"When you see your own son embark on his own career, you know you're getting old," he added, referring to his 17-year-old boy Marty who signed this year with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

"And it was my mother's wish gefore she died that I get it (retirement) out of the way before I got seriously hurt."

Howe said the only point against his retirement was "selfishness—maybe go for 800 goals.

"But I don't think that's as important as being honest with the fans." One of the NHL records he holds outright (he also has three ties) is his lifetime 786 scores.

STAYS IN OFFICE

Already a vice-president of a Norris-owned insurance company and owner-operator of a suburban ice rink, Howe confirmed he would be staying with the Red Wings front office but added he would "let the big fellow do some talking" on that score.

With the permission of the team management, Howe said he would like to help out with training-coaching duties and "learn all phases of the business."

Obviously relieved by the disclosure of his tortuous decision, Howe was buoyant as he added: "Colleen (his wife) said I'm just going to stay home and make love to her."

After 25 years of continual travel with the NHL club, Howe is known to want a slower job to give him time to spend with his wife and his sons Marty, Mark, 16, and Murray, 11, and his 12-year-old daughter, Cathleen.

His league tenure is a record, and in recent years every time he scored, assisted or did practically anything else on the ice, he extended a record he already held.

Howe won the Hart Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player and the Art Ross Trophy as the top scorer in the NHL six times each. He was chosen for the league's all-star team in all but four of his seasons. He was among the league's top five scorers for 20 consecutive seasons—from 1949-1969.

STARTED AT FIVE

Born in Floral, Sask., Howe got his first skates when he was five, and a year later he was playing "sandlot" hockey. Oddly, he couldn't skate well at first so he started as a goalie.

Mild mannered, almost shy, Howe was a deceptive figure on the ice, one of the roughest, toughest players of all time in the NHL. He participated in some of the game's more memorable fights.

Dodgers Sweep Crucial Series

By The Associated Press

Remember the Miracle of Coogan's Bluff?
Well, brace yourself.
Now the Miracle of Chavez Ravine appears to be unfolding in the wild, wild West.

Coogan's Bluff was, of course, the site of the since-demolished Polo Grounds where the old New York Giants, trailing the old Brooklyn Dodgers by 13½ games in August, 1951, came on with a frenzy to tie for first place in the National League, then beat them in the playoffs on Bobby Thompson's home run, the "shot heard round the world."

Now, one generation and 3,000 miles later, Los Angeles Dodgers are trying to reverse the roles—and in the last three nights they've succeeded admirably against their still-rivals, San Francisco Giants.

Only last weekend the Dodgers trailed their upstate foes by 8½ games.

GIANTS STUMBLE

Then the Giants strutted into Dodger Stadium. They stumbled out of it Wednesday night, their West Division lead slashed to five games as Los Angeles completed a three-game sweep with a 3-0 victory.

In other games, Pittsburgh Pirates walloped Chicago Cubs 10-1 Montreal Expos trounced New York Mets 10-2 and Cincinnati Reds swatted San Diego Padres 4-1.

In the American League, veteran Jim Kaat stood up to deprive Chicago's Wilbur Wood of his 20th victory as Minnesota Twins edged the White Sox 3-1.

Elsewhere in the American, New York Yankees edged Boston Red Sox 2-1 in 11 innings, Detroit Tigers beat Washington Senators 5-3, Milwaukee Brewers outscored Kansas City Royals 7-6 and Oakland Athletics trimmed California Angels 3-1.

Bill Singer silenced San Francisco on just two hits before wilting in the ninth inning. He allowed Ken Henderson's firstinning double and a single by Chris Speier in the second, then retired 20 batters in a row.

After Henderson and Willie Mays got on base in the ninth, Bobby Bonds ended the spine-tingler by slapping into a double play.

Wes Parker singled and scored the Dodgers' first run in the first inning then tripled home a run and scored again in the third.

The victory was the Dodgers' first this year against Juan Marichal and only their 14th over him in 50 decisions.

It was also the Dodgers' sixth straight victory over the Giants, their longest such streak since the two teams moved to the west coast at the start of the 1958 season.

Mynott Brothers Spark Spartans

VANCOUVER — Burnaby Spartans got their first Big Four Junior Football League win of the season Wednesday night, defending the still-winless Vancouver Blue Bombers, 14-0.

The Mynott brothers shared the touchdowns, Steve scoring from eight yards in the first quarter and Al returning the second-half kickoff 80 yards.

Jack Steele kicked the convert each time.

Prominent Blacks Seeking NFL Club

BOSTON (AP) — A group of blacks, including several prominent in entertainment, are planning to ask for an expansion franchise in the National Football League, the Record American said Wednesday.

The paper said the group is planning to locate the team in Memphis, Tenn., and to call it Memphis Kings, in honor of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The backers include Sammy Davis Jr. and Sidney Poitier of the entertainment world, and black-owned enterprises such as Parks Sausage of Baltimore, Ebony magazine and Johnson Cosmetics of Chicago.

If the franchise is granted, the proposed new team would be the first black-owned major sports team in the United States.

The NFL now has two conferences of 13 teams each and plans for 16 teams in each conference during the 1970s.

The Record American said the group did not plan an all-black team, but planned to have ownership and management positions such as head coach held by blacks.

The paper said that Jimmy Brown, former Cleveland running back who was inducted into the pro football Hall of Fame recently, and John Mackey, veteran tight end at Baltimore, are being considered for top jobs.

City Golfers Collect Titles

QUALICUM BEACH — Victoria-area golfers packed off most of the silverware Monday in the Qualicum Beach Golf Club's annual Labor Day tournament.

Greg Barnes of Cedar Hill captured the men's title in the three-day event while Nita Moody of Gorge Vale won the women's crown.

Barnes downed Randal Robinson in the 18-hole match-play final. Dan Lewis of Quilchena fired the low gross score while John Hall of Nanaimo took low net honors.

Mrs. Moody beat Irene Horne in an all-Gorge Vale final and also captured the gross medal.

Quarterback Hunt Speeds Up

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions announced Wednesday that they had released Paul Brothers, 26-year-old first-string quarterback who was almost midway through his fourth season with the Western Football Conference club.

The action reportedly came about 24 hours after the former Oregon State University star had gone to coach Eagle Keys and requested to be cut or be assured that he was still the No. 1 quarterback. The answer speeds up the search that has been going on ever since Joe Kapp defected to the National Football League.

Brothers, relieved at times by rookie Don Moorhead and, in the last game, by Rusty Clark, had managed a 3-4 record this season.

Early losses to Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos were the result of field-goal failures. The Lions then balanced their record by defeating Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Eskimos but a 32-1 trouncing by Calgary Stampeders and Monday's 35-14 rout by Riders put Brothers on the spot again despite an unexpected in-between victory over Toronto Argonauts.

Lions can choose between Moorhead, Clark, and former Argo Tom Wilkinson for Sunday's game against Calgary Stampeders. And they're taking a look at Mike Cavan, a rookie who arrived Tuesday for a five-day trial.

Also announced Tuesday was a five-day trial for Pete Newell, a defence-end from University of Michigan who was drafted fifth by Detroit Lions last year, and the acquisition of the playing rights to defence-back Jim Tomlin from the Argos. Tomlin, who starred with Argos for two years, comes in exchange for future considerations.

Richmond Rolls To Junior Final

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Richmond Roadrunners scored twice in overtime Wednesday night to beat Burnaby, 14-12, and become the western representatives in the Canadian junior lacrosse championship for the Minto Cup.

Richmond meets Peterborough PCDS in the best-of-seven national final beginning here Monday.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

Stormy wet weather coupled with dense fog dampened the spirits and efforts of many upland bird hunters on the opening day of the blue grouse season. However, wet weather appeared to be of no consequence to the grouse. Those ardent hunters who braved the storm found the birds still on their summer ranges, exposed to all that the elements had to offer.

As expected, only a very few adult cock birds were shot as singles. Brood covies were the rule creating sporadic but exciting shooting when, after much searching, they were flushed.

Covies are general during these first few weeks of September until the birds are scattered by hunters. In mid-September when they begin their vertical migration, the birds will tend to clump into small flocks.

The fact that the covies were still conspicuously near nest markers on the summer range should be an indication that there are at least two good hunting weekends on these ranges before they are lost on their migration into heavy timber.

Opening day is always the day for mistakes and I found myself making plenty of these, including a few of the classics. Fortunately my experienced Brittany spaniel, Shane, flushed seven separate covies during the day as we hunted the Browns River Blue Grouse study area.

Of all the mistakes a hunter can make on blue grouse the unforgivable is to be uphill when the dog is working hot bird scent. Almost without exception, blues will fly downhill when flushed. Being caught uphill with a big fir between me and a flushing covey early in the day reinforced this prime lesson.

The next covey caught me ready to make a head-on shot but I held until they flew over and past me, allowing classic straight-away shots. The third rule — working back through the area where a covey flushed produced a number of singles and more classic shooting in the open slash and small second growth where we found the birds.

★ ★ ★

In the Wolf Lake-Browns River study area, hunter success during the opening day averaged out at one bird per hunter with 150 hunters checking through 155 birds. Surprisingly, of these, 40 were banded birds, making a total of 25 per cent of the birds taken as being study birds. This, however, was only 10 per cent of the 400 birds banded in this study area this summer. It must also be remembered that a number of these banded birds were also banded in the previous nine years of the study.

Using this percentage an interesting projection would show that there is a conservative potential of 1,500 blue grouse available for hunters on these eastern slopes of Mt. Washington.

★ ★ ★

Sept. 1 saw the season opening of another game bird on Vancouver Island, the Band-Tailed Pigeon. Surprisingly, serious bandtail hunters on V.I. are almost non-existent. This is unfortunate for these high-flying speedsters provide outstanding pass shooting. Unpredictable and erratic is the only description for the action of the bandtail when fired upon. Swooping, diving and even spiralling flight provides a challenge unmatched by any other Island game bird.

If there is one primary rule for the shooter with these speedsters it is to lead — and then add an extra foot or two to make sure.

Band-tails are very early migrants, starting their southern journey usually late in August and travelling south down the Island in small but innumerable flocks. Concentrations of these flocks occur along various ridges throughout the lowlands of the Island as the main migration begins.

These concentrations are easy to locate and once found a shooting stand near a high snag or a clump of sentinel trees along the ridge provides superb action. During the early weeks of September as the birds are concentrating for migration small flocks and singles will constantly fly across the ridge throughout the day with no particular time being the best.

Crabapple swamps, the estuaries of the smaller creeks throughout the Island and berry-laden slopes in open slash areas are also major areas where these birds can be found. The open slopes are primarily migration stops while the swamps and estuaries are feeding and roosting areas for resident birds.

Chris Keeps Winning, Open's Gate Swinging

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Chris Evert, the exciting little court princess from Fort Lauderdale, extended her winning streak to 46 matches Wednesday by beating Lesley Hunt of Australia 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 to gain the women's semi-finals in the U.S. Open tennis championships.

With the absence of many leading pros, including defending men's champion Ken Rosewall and Rod Laver, the Florida girl has been the gate-saving attraction.

A crowd of 10,000 poured into the concrete horseshoe stadium at West Side Tennis Club to see if the 105-pound dynamo could do it again.

She did.

Now she must go against top-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, the three-time Wimbledon winner who advanced with a 6-3, 7-5 victory over Laura DuPont of Charlotte.

Miss Evert defeated Billie Jean in the spring in three sets on clay in St. Petersburg during her phenomenal streak of victories which has covered 12 tournaments dating back to Feb. 21.

The other semi-final sends second-seeded Rosemary Casals of San Francisco against Australia's Kerry Melville.

In the men's division, seventh-seed Clark Graebner of New York looked the most impressive of the seeded players who blasted their way into the quarter-finals.

Showing the same form that won him the Pennsylvania and Eastern grasscourt titles, Graebner smashed long-haired Ray Moore of South Africa 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Graebner was joined in the round of eight by second-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, who was leading Milan Holocek in the second set 7-5, 3-2 when the self-exiled Czech had to retire because of a pulled hamstring muscle, and flashy Tom Okker of The Netherlands, who won over left-handed Roger Taylor of Great Britain 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Graebner will play Okker, seeded No. 4, in the quarter-finals Friday and Smith will meet the winner of the match between Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Nicki Pilic of Yugoslavia.

In the other bracket, to be played today, third-seeded Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., meets Manuel Orantes of Spain and 6-foot-5 Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale faces Jan Kodes, the Czech who eliminated top-seeded John Newcombe in the first round.

Crown Prince Delivers; Books Climb Bandwagon

LONDON (CP) — British racing observers agreed today that Canadian-owned Crowned Prince is the best two-year-old around after the highest-priced colt in history delivered a convincing win in the Champagne Stakes at Doncaster Wednesday.

Frank McMahon's big chestnut was a resounding failure in his debut at Newmarket Aug. 21, starting as odds-on favorite and finishing sixth, but he made up for that by floating home easily in the Champagne's seven furlongs.

The bookies promptly reinstalled him as favorite for next year's Epsom Derby and the Two Thousand Guineas, two of Britain's annual classics. He is 3 to 1 for the Guineas and 6 to 1 for the Derby, both extremely short prices this far ahead.

Kentucky-bred Crowned Prince was bought as a yearling by McMahon, Vancouver industrialist, for $500,000. He recently sold one-quarter shares to Lord Rotherwick and Mimi van Cutsem, wife of Crowned Prince's trainer, for a reported $130,000 apiece.

Today The Sun newspaper's horsepicker, Templegate, says flatly:

"Crowned Prince is the best two-year-old in Britain. He has fully redeemed the reputation he tarnished so badly on his debut at Newmarket."

Bernard van Cutsem, the trainer, said Crowned Prince "had them all murdered a furlong and half out."

Crowned Prince was ridden by Lester Piggott, Britain's champion jockey.

Glen's Sting Not Enough For Hornets

Despite a four-touchdown performance from Glen Davies, Saanich Hornets had to settle for a 26-26 Vancouver Island Bantam Football League tie with Oak Bay Invaders on Wednesday night at Royal Athletic Park.

Davies accounted for 24 of the Hornets' points while Iggy Kadar provided the other two with a pair of converts.

Bohdan Hryb led Invaders with two TDs while Ian Benson and Christie Sinclair each raced across the line once. Sinclair also booted two converts.

The tie left both teams deadlocked for third spot.

Next games are Sunday with Knights of Columbus meeting Chargers at 1 p.m. and Hornets tackling Juan de Fuca Tigers at 3 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park. Invaders will play Chiefs in Duncan the same day in a game scheduled for 11 a.m.

PAR POINTS WINNERS

Muriel Osborough and Freddie Simons have won a women's par points competition at Victoria Golf Club while Evelyn Brown and Margaret Mayhew were runners-up.

Errant Driver Chases Errant Runaway Car

LONDON (AP) — Nyuk Fong Pang was poorer by $200 but the world was richer for the story of the first time he drove an automobile.

It's a tale of a Chinese waiter who doesn't speak English crashing a French car into a bus driven by an Indian. And that's only part of it.

Magistrates in the Kentish town of Rochester gave up trying to look serious as this story unfolded in court Tuesday:

Nyuk, the 19-year-old waiter, borrowed the Renault car and went for a joyride down Rochester's busy main street. In due course, he found himself running backwards down a hill and into the double decker bus driven by Sahidir Rahman.

The Indian backed off and got out to remonstrate with the Chinese, but quickly found himself in language difficulties. While he was trying to make himself understood, Nyuk reversed into the bus again.

HEADED WRONG WAY

Then his car shot forward and entered a one-way street—the wrong way, of course—heading directly for a policeman on a motorcycle.

Inspector Mike Percy told the court: "The motorcycle officer had to swerve violently to avoid a head-on collision."

On drove Nyuk Fong Pang, gaining confidence. He turned unerringly into another one-way street, the wrong way again, and his car stalled with the clutch almost burned out.

Nyku's biggest mistake was about to happen.

He began pushing the auto, forgetting that it was on a steep downward slope called Star Hill. The car picked up speed and ran away from him.

Passers-by watched Nyuk chasing the car, waving his arms, but failing to catch up before it crashed into the offices of the local Conservative party.

In court, he pleaded guilty to 11 separate offences and handed over the $200 fine. He admitted taking the car after its owner had lent him the keys.

Plane Ready in '73

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet deputy civil aviation minister, Alexander Aksyonov, said Tuesday in a newspaper interview that the TU-144 supersonic airliner will enter service in 1973. The newspaper Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya quoted Aksyonov as saying tests on the aircraft will be completed in two years, after which the Soviet airline Aeroflot will start using it on regular routes.

Environmental Group Will Question Policy

TORONTO (CP) — After working in silence for more than a year, a group active in environmental affairs is planning to become vocally critical of Canadian natural resources policy.

The Canadian Association on Human Environment will meet in Ottawa next month in its first national conference, and plans then to articulate proposals for energy and resources management.

The association acts as a coordinating body for environmental action groups in Canada. Its member groups—which number almost 100—are concerned with more than simple cosmetic clean-ups of the environment; they are interested in projects to further the public understanding of environmental problems. Samples of this summer's projects are an air pollution study in Fredericton, N.B., carried out by the Conservation Council of New Brunswick; compilation and printing an information pamphlet for high schools by the Saskatoon Environmental Society, and a resources inventory study by the Hamilton Federation of Environmental Groups.

Many of the 173 projects are resource-oriented because, association President Peter Middleton said in an interview Wednesday, "we regard pollution as a symptom of an attitude toward resource management."

Mr. Middleton sees the Ottawa conference as the first step in achievement of one of the association's three key objectives: Development of a strong national voice on matters pertaining to the environment.

The other two objectives are funding for projects and providing a means of information exchange.

Part of the last objective will be met with the establishment in about two months of a full-time executive director in Ottawa in order to have access to government departments and members of Parliament.

"These people are expected to keep up to date on so many things, they simply can't do it unless someone feeds them the information," Mr. Middleton said. "Part of our function will be to feed them information on the environment."

The Ottawa conference will be held Oct. 14-16, during National Environment Week. But officers are meeting in Vancouver this weekend to lay plans for the conference and to sort out priorities. "And energy and resources policy will be high on our list," Mr. Middleton said.

CO-ORDINATES PROJECTS

Last summer, the association, using a grant of $150,000 from John Labatt Ltd., co-ordinated projects employing 270 students.

This year the contribution from industry was $125,000—including $100,000 from Labatt — with $700,000 coming from the federal Opportunities for Youth Program. A total of 630 students was employed.

Mr. Middleton feels the contribution from industry would have been much greater, but just as fund-raising was getting started, the Opportunities for Youth program was announced, causing many companies to back away.

The federal funds were paid directly to the groups involved after the association had acted as a sort of clearing house for ideas. The association also handled actual administration of the opportunities program in New Brunswick, Ontario and Saskatchewan.

Brecht Topic Of Studies

The life and works of the 20th century German playwright Bertolt Brecht will be studied in an evening course for adults at the University of Victoria this fall.

Presented by the university's division of continuing education and its department of Germanic languages and literature, the sessions will be held in Room 161 of the Elliott Building Tuesdays at 8 p.m., beginning Sept 20.

Fee for the 12 sessions is $15.

Anti-Pollution Costs Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Pulp and paper manufacturers are being surveyed by the federal government on the impact of costly anti-pollution measures on their international markets and domestic business. A government official said Wednesday that in addition to complying with an international study of pollution control, the information gathered could lead to more federal aid for the industry in Canada.

Industry sources said it might cost $700 million in the next 10 years to stop all environment damage by pulp and paper manufacturers.

The average $70 million a year would be in addition to approximately $300 million now spent each year on new capital works and repairs, and could cripple many of the smaller mills.

What is really worrying government officials is the impact on small, one-industry towns in eastern Canada that depend on mills, many of them antiquated.

FINISH THIS MONTH

The survey was initiated in response to an international study of pollution by the 22-member Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, based in Paris. Of 147 Canadian mills involved, 92 have replied so far. The survey is to be completed by Sept. 30.

In addition to general requirements under the Fisheries Act, the Clean Air Act, and the Canada Water Act, mills in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia are subject to stringent provincial regulation.

Even after the $700-million outlay, the industry faces an annual additional cost of perhaps $40 million for operating antipollution equipment. And the industry regards such expenditures as, essentially, non-productive.

They would result in cleaner atmosphere and waters, but they wouldn't add much to output of pulp and paper. They would add dollars to the cost of a ton of newsprint.

The important impact would be on international markets. Canada's pulp and paper industry has been hit hard in recent years by the economic slowdown in the United States, Canada's principal market.

The federal government has a five-year, $5-million program of helping research into pulp and paper pollution abatement.

Navy Pact Not Meant To Offset China Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S.-Soviet agreement to seek an end to harassment of each others' navy is not part of any Russian effort to offset China's increasingly active diplomacy, American officials say.

Nevertheless, some foreign diplomats are questioning why Moscow picked this week to approve an October visit by an American delegation to discuss ways of preventing what the state department described as "collisions and other incidents at sea."

The timing is only coincidence, high state department officials said, and has no direct relations to recent Soviet agreements easing tension with the United States and its European allies.

In fact, one source said, the Soviet Union agreed last November to the principle of seeking accords on joint naval matters. He denied any delay was involved in waiting until Wednesday to announce the talks would open Oct. 12. "It was only a matter of working out the details and then setting a date," he said.

State department spokesman Charles Bray told reporters Wednesday that Navy Undersecretary John W. Warner will head a high-ranking American delegation to Moscow "to discuss how to avoid incidents at sea between our two nations."

Explaining that the hoped-for understanding would cover "rules of the road" for naval vessels of both countries, Bray said only the desire to prevent recurrence of the 100 incidents reported during the past several years is behind the talks, Bray said.

Tip Top asks six ladies what they like – and what they don't like – their men to wear

"... buy nothing but knits."

He's got a couple of pairs of pants and three or four knit shirts. They're so easy to look after. Just wash them and hang them up. Terrific."

"Putting it together ..."

It really takes a lot of taste to put the right things together. Some guys can ruin a great pair of pants by wearing a narrow, little old belt."

"Not that super-neat look."

I like rugged looking things... that look like he really enjoys wearing them... sort of 'lived-in'. Like denim jackets and those faded jeans."

"There's so many great colours ..."

I bought my husband one of those wildly patterned shirts. It took him a month to work up his nerve to wear it. Then he bought two more of them."

"Sweaters. I just love sweaters."

V-necks, turtle-necks ... those skinny new vests. I love them all. There's nothing nicer than a shirt collar showing over the top of a sweater."

"I like things with texture."

Corduroy jeans have always been my favourites. And things like suede or leather coats. Even some of the new fur coats are OK on the right man."

A lot of what you wear you wear to please someone else. Probably your wife or girlfriend.

And practically every woman has a different idea of what's best...of what 'turns her on'.

Tip Top makes it easy to find just the right things. Because we're bigger than most men's stores we can offer you a bigger selection.

Our casual slacks for instance. Practically unlimited.

Fabulous new knits, earthy tweeds, fine wools, bold corduroys, and of course jeans. The wide range of colours comes in geometrics, plaids, checks, solids...every pattern. From $10.00 to $30.00. Quite a choice.

Our shirts run from handsomely patterned knits to crisp and classic cottons. From $8.00 to $14.00.

Sweaters? Bulky turtles, sleeveless pullovers, brightly striped body-sweaters...from $12.00 to $20.00.

Father Kills His Children To Keep Wife

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A truck driver has been accused of killing four of his five children and then asking a television station to announce their deaths so his wife would come home.

Sheriff Harold Willetts said Robert Atlas Johnson, 47, of Wilmington was charged with four counts of murder and one of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill his fifth child.

Police said Johnson led officers to a wooded area where the five children, aged 3 to 9, were lying in a row. Two girls and a boy were dead and another boy died afterward in hospital.

The fifth child, a girl, was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital after being treated for massive head injuries.

Investigators said the children apparently were bludgeoned with a tire tool.

Police Chief H. E. Williamson said Johnson telephoned police to report the murders and then called station WECT-TV to ask that news of the deaths be telecast so his 29-year-old wife, Bonnie Louise, would learn of them.

Ken Murphy, news director, said a man identifying himself as Johnson told him his wife had left home during the weekend because the children worried her.

Murphy said, the man told him: "I want you to tell my wife to come home because I have killed the children."

Rare Illness Claims Boy

SEATTLE (AP) — A rare skin disease, eased only when the body is wrapped in white silk cloth, has claimed the life of a three-months-old Lewiston, Idaho, boy.

Travis McFall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. McFall, was buried here Tuesday, one week after being given a blood transfusion in a Seattle hospital for epidemolysis bullosa dystrophica.

Doctors told the family that only five cases of the disease have been reported in the United States in the last 100 years.

Shortly after the infant was born June 9 in a Lewiston hospital, doctors discovered he had the incurable skin disease.

The only thing that relieved his suffering was having his body wrapped in pure silk cloth. Even the slightest friction caused his skin to erupt in painful blisters.

Bounty On Officers —Prisoner

HONG KONG (AP) — A Hanoi broadcast, allegedly by an American prisoner, said U.S. servicemen in South Vietnam have placed bounties of up to $10,000 on the heads of their own officers and NCOs.

The Radio Hanoi message from "John A. Young, captured U.S. serviceman against the war in Vietnam," was described as a U.S. soldier's view on "fragging", the practice of disenchanted soldiers tossing grenades into quarters of superiors. There have been several such cases in South Vietnam, some resulting in deaths.

It referred to one reward being offered for the death of a lieutenant-colonel and said:

"It's a well-known fact that the front-line troopers are fed up with the war and have placed bounties on other Gung Ho officers and NCOs in a large number of units in South Vietnam, with bounties ranging from $50 to $10,000 to the man who rubs them out."

Disarmament Talks Urged

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) —The Soviet Union has proposed a conference on disarmament to include every country.

The suggestion was made Wednesday in an item submitted to the provisional agenda of the upcoming General Assembly.

A memorandum from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko referred to a recent Soviet proposal for a nuclear disarmament conference of the five nuclear powers, rejected by China, as the most realistic approach to the problem.

"At the same time," it added, "the course of events on the international scene makes it desirable to encourage more active efforts on the part of all countries in the world, both nuclear and non-nuclear, to solve the problems relating to disarmament."

The memorandum said the proposed conference could concentrate on nuclear disarmament if that was the wish of the participants.

'MOST UNSEEMLY OUTBURST'

Frampton Demands Curtis Apologize

FRAMPTON
charges discourtesy

Ald. Percy Frampton of Victoria has demanded a public apology from Saanich mayor Hugh Curtis for his criticism of the city's planned tax relief for senior citizens.

In a prepared statement, Frampton, who is acting mayor in Courtney Haddock's absence, said he "must publicly rebuke Mayor Curtis for his most unseemly outburst."

The plan, disclosed last week by Haddock, would allow homeowners 65 or over the option of deferring payment of increases in property taxes until their homes are sold, before or after they die.

* * *

Curtis criticized the plan Saturday, saying any real tax relief for senior citizens should be province-wide and have the leading support of the provincial government. He called Haddock's plan a "fuzzy proposal."

"If Mayor Curtis has any concern for older people at all," Frampton said, "one would think he would at least want to learn more of the results of the plan rather than to criticize it as sloppy thinking. Obviously he is not thinking at all but indulging in his usual disparaging remarks about Victoria.

* * *

"At no time to the best of my knowledge has any elected official of Victoria criticized another municipality, its administration or its members of council.

"For Mayor Curtis to refer to a plan endorsed by Victoria's senior aldermen, its finance committee and which has the unqualified support of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, is, to my view, a gross discourtesy and one which calls for a public apology.

"Mayor Curtis has no responsibility for the operation of this city but he shows great irresponsibility in his remarks."

Rest Homes Will Accept Fee Plan

A long-standing argument between rest home operators and the provincial government over grants to cover guests on welfare has been resolved, a spokesman for the operators said today.

John Hanrahan, vice-president of the B.C. Rest Home Association, said members at a meeting of the Victoria chapter Wednesday night endorsed a plan worked out earlier by both sides.

Under the plan the basic rate the government will pay for welfare guests remains at $150 a month but higher allowances may be granted for individual cases requiring extra care.

A rest home operator with a welfare case he believes warrants payment of a higher rate must make application, listing all the details of extra care required, and this must be signed by the person's doctor. It will then be evaluated by a social worker.

NO CEILING

Hanrahan said there is no ceiling on any extra allowance to which the government may agree. He speculated the grant might reach $225 a month if the extra care a patient required warranted it.

Should the province not be willing to pay what a rest home operator believes is warranted for a special case, then it will be the responsibility of the appropriate welfare agency to find other accommodation for the guest, he added.

Some rest home operators may try charging outrageous rates and will be turned down, he said. How well the plan works is in the hands of the operators for the time being. He said there is the possibility of further conflict if reasonable extra allowances are not forthcoming.

The rest home operators had sought an increase to $185 a month in grants for welfare guests. During the lengthy dispute their association threatened mass evictions of welfare cases and collectively turning in their licences.

These threats have all been removed by the new agreement, said Hanrahan.

Man Dies Week After Car Mishap

An 88-year-old man knocked down by a car at Bay and Wilson last Thursday died in hospital today.

Harold Smith, 1338 Coventry, suffered multiple fractures to his pelvis and had been listed in fair to poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital since he was admitted.

The driver of the car, police said, was Leonard Lancaster, of 1127 Wychbury, Esquimalt.

No Law Remedy For Dry Wells

There is no legislation covering ground water use which could be applied to the problem of drying up wells on domestic property in Central Saanich, a spokesman for the provincial department of lands, forests and water resources said today.

Howard De Beck, comptroller of the water rights branch, said the Water Act can be applied to ground water by order-in-council, but this has never been done in British Columbia "because we have never had a problem which seemed to require such action."

Several residents in the East Saanich Road area have complained that their water supply has dwindled since a large well started pumping in early July on property owned by commercial bulb farmer Geoff Vantreight.

A week ago the residents wrote to the provincial department urging a survey, and after their complaint was aired at the Central Saanich council meeting Tuesday the municipality also decided to ask for an immediate investigation of the water shortage problem by the department.

De Beck said in an interview today he was not aware of the council's request but when it was received there would be "an investigation of some sort."

He said the provincial government is not "anxious" to get into the field of ground water licensing until situations arise which may require this.

"We are aware that such a situation can arise at any time," he said. "In fact, this (the Central Saanich problem) may be a case in point."

Without commenting on whether there was any justification for the complaints against the Vantreight well, De Beck added: "It is worth noting that after two extremely dry summers there has been a general lowering of ground water levels in the Saanich area."

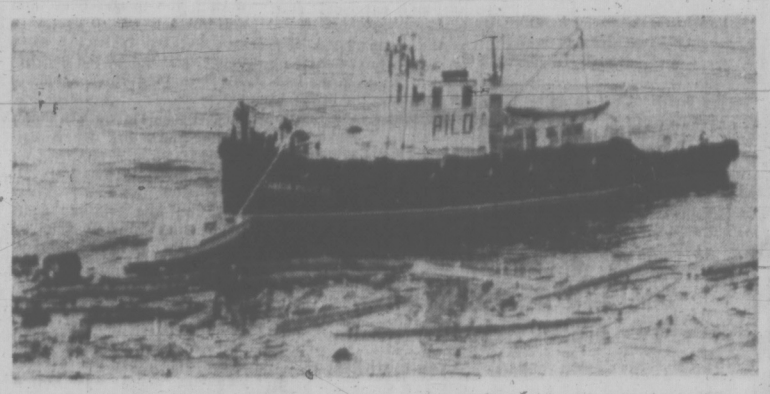
Meanwhile, Vantreight himself denied today that his new 570-foot well has anything to do with drying up wells on neighboring property.

"I am using subterranean water which cost me $3,500 in geologist's fees to find," he said. "My well has nothing to do with surface water. I stopped pumping one week ago and the domestic wells have not come up."

But in at least one of the affected houses the supply is reported back again.

"The water has come back in the last few days but it's far from good," said Mrs. Doreen Bishop of Blink Bonnie Farm.

The supply was cut off completely from the Bishop residence for about one month, and they were forced to fetch all their water in containers from friends' homes.



Holed pleasure boat towed to safety by pilotage boat.

Man Scrambles Ashore

A 15-foot boat with a small cabin on top, believed to be one that ended up on rocks off Dallas Road Monday after her owner had struggled for hours to repair her outboard, was towed to safety today.

Victoria police officials are still trying to trace the owner of the craft, which although holed, is repairable.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reeves of 640 Dallas reported earlier this week seeing a man about 11 a.m. Monday in such a craft, trying to repair his motor.

Watching his struggles they informed B.C. Pilotage. After waiting some time, they phoned again.

They say the wind was blowing strongly and the man in the boat was forced to try and paddle away from the kelp beds and reefs.

By the time the pilot boat arrived, they say that in spite of the man's struggles to keep off the rocks, the wind and tide had pushed him too close for the pilotboat to be used.

They tried to call to the man to see if there was anyone they could notify at his home. The wind drowned out his answers.

Finally, at about 4 p.m., the boat was pushed so far inshore the man was able to scramble to the rocks and make his way ashore.

The Reeves said the boat drifted free from the rocks during a high tide Wednesday afternoon.

This morning she was taken under tow by a pilot boat and brought into the pilotage wharfs near Ogden Point.

There is no number or identification in the boat and her outboard is gone from the rack on her transom.

JOHN NEWBERRY . . . 'financial boondoggle'

City Hall Picketing Aimed At Stopping Harbor Plan

An attempt to rally opposition to the proposed Reid waterfront development began today in front of City Hall.

John Newberry, 17, of 349 Wildwood, appeared this morning wearing a placard calling for a halt to the Reid development, and distributing information sheets urging citizens to attend today's 2 p.m. council meeting.

Council is expected to approve in principle a twin-tower development for the Wharf Street property below Bastion Square.

The information sheet says Ald. Tom Christie and Peter Pollen "are urging citizens to declare war on the proposed Reid centre."

The sheet quotes Christie as saying the development "will tax our sewage system beyond capacity."

It says the 21 and 24-storey towers proposed for the development will "overshadow" the 17-storey high-rise apartment at View and Quadra.

MORE PROBLEMS

"Big developments only bring more problems, environmental and financial. It will not bring in more money. New York is bankrupt and very expensive to live in.

"Stop this visual encroachment and financial boondoggle, show up Thursday at 2 p.m. at the council meeting, city hall," the sheet says.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, meanwhile, has said he is "solidly and irrevocably" committed to the Reid proposal.

"I have done a lot of thinking and I have come to the conclusion that the Reid centre will be good for Victoria."

He added that the development would bring the city $400,000 a year in tax revenues.

Asked what he expected his efforts would accomplish, Newberry said he doesn't hope "to win" because "there's too much money behind it."

He said sufficient protest might bring attention to the sewage problem involved, and perhaps cause the towers to be shortened.

$100,000 Riding on Race In Calgary for Local Man

A Victoria man stands to win the $100,000 first prize in Saturday's Stampede Futurity Stakes to be run at Calgary's Victoria Park.

When he was told the news today, John Shirley, 31, of 3292 Rutledge, kept repeating: "Gee, gee — it's wonderful."

A carpenter at Dominion Motors Ltd., he and his wife, Pam, are expecting their first child.

* * *

Shirley is one of 11 from British Columbia who remained in the running for the money after a draw made Wednesday. Among the others are Chester Smith of New Westminster, James Crossland and Mrs. Starr Vaylong of Vancouver, Madelaine Barbour of North Vancouver, Keith Comyn of Half Moon Bay, and John Ruotsala of Salmon Arm.

* * *

On Saturday another draw will be held, trimming the list to the number of horses in the race. The person backing the winning horse gets the major prize.

There is also a second and third prize, worth $22,000 and $12,500.

More than 200,000 bought tickets on the race, which is the 11th annual running.

arthur mayse

IN THEORY, THE TRAFfic safety campaign with its warnings, exhortations and preachments should reduce car accidents to the unavoidable minimum. But it doesn't, and I have yet to see a safe driving pitch that fulfilled the hopes of those who mounted it.

I'm not being cynical here — merely stating a fact that is drearily reflected in each week's news. Further, I don't believe that the most convinced and well-heeled sponsor, even when teamed with the ablest publicists in the business, has a cat-in-hell chance of making the standard safety campaign work.

Square in its path, robbing it of effect, is a driver of a sort that was no doubt contributing to the risks of the road long before venturesome man first equipped a buggy with an engine.

There are other names for him, not all of them printable. Call him the accident maker.

In harsh fact, no driver is so expert and careful as to be safe from a killing or crippling car mishap.

Those on whom safety campaigns register know this, and do what they can to minimize the odds against them. They reduce the possibility of mechanical failure by keeping their vehicles in good shape. They take speed limits and highways department signs seriously.

But they are not proof against the accident-makers whom no safe driving precepts can reach, and who reduce the best-planned and most vigorously pressed campaign to an exercise in futility.

The accident maker comes in both sexes and various ages. A couple of weeks ago, one of his clan intruded his car into the smoothly-functioning traffic pattern on a B.C. interior highway.

Several cars and pickups, comfortably spaced, were moving down a long hill. Out front was a tanker. The upgrade ahead would slow this heavyweight, and the drivers behind would then make their safe and easy passes.

Not so the accident-maker. He grasshoppered his way down the line until he was tailgating at the stern of the tanker. Then he darted out, passed, cut in sharply and dropped speed.

The heavy rig didn't jackknife. Not quite. The cars behind dropped back. For something over a minute, we watched a professional driver apply his skill to the horrific task of keeping his wheels on the blacktop.

He made it. At the foot of the grade, he pulled in. When we passed, he was bent over his steering wheel with a face like death warmed over.

His cargo? Gasoline.

As for the accident maker, he was long gone.

If you pilot a car or ride as a passenger, you can match him from your own experience.

He may be a self-convinced hotshot out to make good his boast that he can drive from here to there in half the average time.

He can be a drunk, a psychotic, or an aggressor who uses a car as a weapon to bully and intimidate. She may be a woman with her mind on dinner, her own child beside her, and not a thought to spare for other people's children.

And let's not be self-righteous about it. On a bad day, in a rotten mood, the accident maker could even be you or me.

What to do about this hazard on wheels?

First, catch him. In order to do so, it might be an idea to invest some of the money spent on safety campaigns into beefing up the means of apprehension.

Then, sock him! If present laws are too kind to the accident maker, sharpen their teeth.

If he is ever again caught placing lives in jeopardy, ground him permanently.

At present, these suggestions for dealing with the accident maker in all his versions must be considered academic.

They may remain so for a long time still. But eventually, when enough safe driving campaigns have failed, and sufficient raw meat has been pried loose from accidents that need never have happened, I think we'll come to them.

AMERICANS ASKED ABOUT 'GRASS'

Can Know-How Find Out Why?

Provincial highways officials are going to rely on the legendary good old American know-how to solve the problem of the curling, shrinking plastic grass installed last July at Carey and Douglas.

"We're in touch with people in Washington State who are working on the problem," a highways spokesman said today.

Wednesday the instant grass, which was supposed to require no maintenance and last for years, was showing a disconcerting tendency to shrink and curl at the edges — less than two months after installation.

But the instant headaches were no worry to the department and there are no plans to pull up the 5,000 square feet of brilliant green on three traffic islands at the intersection.

The spokesman didn't like the term shrinking, but explained that expansion and contraction according to temperature are properties of the nylon-type material.

"The trouble is this is happening more than we were led to believe by the suppliers. One reason could be that it was really warm weather at the time we laid it," the spokesman said.

The "grass" is the first of its type to be used on an experimental basis in B.C., although it is not new in the U.S.

Bus Drivers Learn Safety, Child Care

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — A class of professionally trained school bus drivers has finished a course this summer at nearby Debert.

Under a program conducted by Commercial Safety Surveys Ltd. and Canada Manpower, 47 men received extensive training in a five-week course. The sponsors said it was the first course of its kind in Canada.

The students, who came from across the Maritime provinces, learned how to handle a bus safely, first aid and child motivation.

A spokesman for the firm said safety is the most important factor in the training program "but we also develop a professional attitude in our students."

About 80 per cent of the students had previous experience in operating school buses.

The company is a local private enterprise headed by H. G. Marsh. The course has had inquiries from as far away as Manitoba.

Jason Crawford, 3, is now in the driver's seat

After the Bee Sting —A Taste of Honey

By SALLY GLOVER
Times Staff

Jason Crawford was stung by a bee last weekend at the Saanichton Fair.

He cried. At three years of age what can you expect?

To comfort his son, Sandy Crawford bought him a lottery ticket.

Jason was somewhat comforted. He even smiled.

But Crawford laughed — and he's been laughing ever since he learned that Jason, at 3, is the proud owner of a new $2,340 car. His son's ticket was drawn at the fair late Monday afternoon.

Although Jason is more interested in child-sized tractors and dump trucks than in adult-sized cars, he's quite aware of who owns the green fast-back, sitting in the driveway at 3868 Haro Road.

"I'm not big enough to drive a car — but big enough for tractors," Jason said.

"Daddy's big enough to drive cars, and he can drive my car if he wants," he asserted.

Jason is also eager to quiz those showing any interest in his car.

"How do you put on the choke? What happens when you put the gas on? How's the fan go whirrrrr . . . round and round?" he asked.

But he only questioned thing he knew the answers to. He had already looked under the hood of his car.

His mother, Mrs. Beryl Crawford, explained that Jason is an inquisitive little fellow. Just then Jason raced into the living room with a can of spray deoderant and a cloth.

"We don't need the windows washed with that, Jason," his mother said.

He's very mechanical-minded — always building things and taking them apart. He likes his older brother's sports car, for the noise it makes," Mrs. Crawford said.

Because it will be a few years yet before Jason can drive a car, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, who already own two cars, have decided to sell the shiny new car.

"We thought it over Monday night," Mrs. Crawford said. He seemed particularly interested in farm equipment and animals at the fair, so we're going to look for a plot of land out in Saanichton and put it in his and his brother's name."

John, 21 months, is devoted follower of Jason.

"This idea's been in the back of our minds for some time, and now we can do it. It's his win, so we feel it should be used for him," Mrs. Crawford added.

Meanwhile, Jason was busy playing with his tractor.

"At least, someday, he can say he won a car that turned into a piece of land," Mrs. Crawford said.

Food Prices Climbing Again As Supermarket War Fades

TORONTO (CP) — The price-cutting war among Canada's major supermarkets has passed into history, and food prices are climbing again.

But supermarket executives say consumers still are reaping some benefit from the war because prices would be much higher if chains had not slashed their profit margins late last year.

"Rising costs in all sectors of the economy have built up inflationary pressures that are beyond the power of the retailer alone to control," George C. Metcalfe, chairman and president of Loblaw Companies Ltd., said in an interview this week.

Supermarkets had been forced to raise prices again because of increased salary costs, taxes and price increases by manufacturer and producer, but they were "still well below prices before the battle commenced."

Dominion Stores Ltd. started the price war Nov. 1. Other major chains joined and supermarket officials soon estimated that housewives were saving about $5 a week on groceries.

But Thomas McCormack, president of Dominion Stores, agrees with Metcalfe that it has not been feasible to retain discount prices.

'No Way'

"There is no way prices will go but up," he said in an interview. "The country is in rampant inflation."

McCormack said Dominion's gross margins — the difference between what a chain pays for a product, less an allowance for spoilage, shrinkage and pilfering, and the price charged customers — dropped drastically during the war — and are still below "pre-war" levels.

He said the price war was tough on the company's balance sheet. Dominion's annual profit after taxes plunged to $3,322,166 from $9,318,397. Other supermarket chains also reported declining profits.

Longer Lineups

The emphasis on cutting costs last fall and trying to keep prices as low as possible this year has had repercussions.

Chains often were forced to reduce personnel and the longer lineups at checkout counters and the smaller bagpacking and carry-out staff annoyed some shoppers.

Executives suggested that they will have to start paying increased attention to the feelings of shoppers in order to win business.

And Metcalfe said that chains might have to go in for bigger stores to increase productivity and generate the sales necessary to overcome rising operating costs.

Stores Accused Of Ignoring Buying Habits

MONTREAL (CP) — Today's market is a buyer's market but retailers are ignoring the preferences and convenience of shoppers in lobbying for restricted store hours, a study on the benefits and cost of evening shopping indicates.

Dr. Bruce Mallen, chairman of the marketing department at Sir George Williams University, says in the first volume of a three-part report that Canada's retailing community has failed to keep up with changing trends of buying habits.

"The attitude of many retailers is that people will shop when 'we want them to'."

Mallen says research shows that legislation restricting shopping hours was not a major issue until after the Second World War. Many stores were open six full days and at least one evening, with Saturday evening shopping being most popular.

Union Pressure

Stores gradually began shortening their work week, citing reasons such as improved personnel relations, competition for capable personnel, pressure of labor unions and threat of union organization.

But, Mallen notes: "There was no indication that the consumer's interests were taken into consideration."

With construction of shopping centres in the 1950s and 60s, downtown retailers favored even wider-ranging hours controls since consumers tended to patronize suburban shopping stores which were not affected by existing legislation.

By 1968, a survey indicated that at least 47.7 per cent of 465 Canadian cities had some restriction on store hours.

Significant Fact

Meanwhile, the 40-hour work week had been established and unions dropped support of legislation governing store hours. In fact, many employees welcome the chance to work more than 40 hours a week if they are paid time and a half or double time.

A significant fact which Mallen says many retailers are ignoring is that more married women are working today than at any other time in Canadian history.

However, "women who work find it most difficult to do their shopping at the traditional times between nine and six."

"It also seems that many retailers have not taken into consideration the fact that there is a tendency, particularly among young married couples, to do shopping on a family basis. The only time the husband and wife can shop together, if both are working, would be in the evening and on weekends."

Barber Syrt on Hairstyling
The right hairstyle must be combined with a natural look. The hairstyling must not be obvious. This brings up a remarkable difference between a barber and a hairstylist. The stylist's razor cut provides a shaped naturalness: the razor cut's uneven lengths create a smooth, well-shaped look. Particular men gladly pay $3.00 or more for a well-performed razor cut.

Information: It's Free, Easy, Everywhere

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Want to force a rhubarb, cure a thumb sucker, dehorn a calf, or plan a baby?

Information on these and a multitude of subjects is available free of charge in Victoria. You just need to know where to look.

Usually a call to the agency or government department most closely concerned with the problem will yield booklets and advice.

The department of agriculture lists 122 free pamphlets, ranging from advice on brooding baby chicks to tulip bulb culture.

Hardy farmers may be able to take the department's list in their stride, but some of the publications are enough to discourage an urban dweller from moving to a "little place in the country."

A pamphlet, entitled Clover Seed Growers — Why Gamble? — Use Bees, is followed in the list by one describing The Use of Drugs and Antibiotics in Controlling Bee Diseases.

Others deal with club-root in cabbage, fire blight in pears, and the collar and crown rot disease of fruit trees.

A farmer driven to drink by an uncontrollable outbreak of orchard mites or the breakdown of his New Self-propelled Machine for Removing Droppings from Laying-cage houses can call Alcoholics Anonymous at 383-0415 for help and free information.

If he wants a sympathetic listener he can call Need, Victoria's Crisis line, at 386-6323. Trained Need volunteers man the phones 24 hours aday. They find that 40 per cent of their calls involve requests for information.

Information on anything is available, if you know where to look

Drug Abuse to Special Diets

The Need volunteers can provide information on community resources, the names of helpful workers in social agencies, lists of service clubs, and advice on housing.

The Victoria Health Department, 1947 Cook Street, has dozens of free pamphlets, covering subjects such as drug abuse, preparing a child for school, special diets for the elderly, mental health and social assistance.

One useful brochure lists all the public health centres in the province, as well as the addresses and hours of the venereal disease clinics in Vancouver and Victoria.

A booklet from the attorney-general's department explains the rights of the buyer under the B.C. Consumer Protection Act of 1968. The booklet suggests calling the consumer affairs officer at the attorney-general's department for advice and information.

The Greater Victoria School Board has booklets for parents of children entering kindergarten, elementary school, or high school. Information on the financial operation of the school system and the board's annual report are available on request.

Parents may obtain free kits of information on drug abuse and drugs from the school board's division of special educational services.

The school board's community information officer, Bill Stavdal, will answer any questions or refer callers to the appropriate department.

The Times carries a community services information directory, listing telephone numbers of agencies and resources such as legal aid, low rental housing and services for the elderly.

Family and Children's Service has a brochure listing all the services offered by the agency. These include family counselling, day care, aid to unwed mothers, foster homes, adoption and advice to foster and adopting parents.

The agency also has pamphlets for unwed mothers explaining the help that is available and what she should do if she decides to give up or keep her baby.

Advice on birth control, pregnancy tests and how to obtain a legal therapeutic abortion is available from the Abortion Counselling Service at 598-2122. The service can also provide a list of sympathetic doctors in Victoria and some other centres.

Banks offer booklets and pamphlets on borrowing, budgeting, protecting the home from burglars and storing valuables. They give advice on foreign currency and will help clients plan a sensible budget.

Libraries are the best source for anyone wanting a lot of information about a subject. The Greater Victoria Public Library has a reference section and helpful librarians. Although some reference books can't be taken from the library, pages can be photo-copied for a small charge.

The Indian Homemakers Social Group gives help and advice to Indians. An information centre is located in the home of president Violet Thomas.

Victoria's Cool-Aid is well known as a source of information on free accommodation and drug problems. The centre operates two hostels and gives advice on youth hostels and kiosks across Canada.

Cool-Aid holds free medical and legal clinics Monday evenings at 1900 Fernwood. A public health nurse is available at the same address on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings.

The Vancouver newspaper Georgia Straight lists a whole page of community services for both Vancouver and Victoria. Included in the list are the addresses of agencies and churches serving free meals.

The federal department of health and welfare has hundreds of free pamphlets and booklets, ranging from how to stop smoking to how to build a root cellar.

One booklet, The Canadian Mother and Child, has information on pre-natal care, the development of the fetus, child birth and the development of the child up to six years of age. In the far north, many a trembling Mountie has delivered a baby with the help of the chapter on home deliveries.

The B.C. department of conservation and recreation can provide maps giving the location of camping, hunting and fishing areas, and the department of highways is helpful if you want to know how to get there with a minimum of fuss and strain.

The department of health services and hospital insurance has a handy book giving information on diet for travellers and campers. Called Food for People on the Move, it gives well-balanced menus for people cooking over camp fires or using less-than-perfect kitchen facilities. The booklet includes a warning against eating too many dried fruits or "you may spend more time than you anticipated in the bushes."

How to Build a Dog House

If you missed the latest annual report on our province's financial status, presumably Premier W. A. C. Bennett's office will be glad to send you a copy.

Under the Public Bodies Financial Administration Act all major agencies receiving public funds — from hospitals to universities — are required to publish a detailed statement of earnings and expenses each year.

Some agencies levy a small charge for a copy but others provide them free on request.

For pet lovers, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has a range of pamphlets: How to Build a Dog House — Designed for Outdoor Living, Care of Dogs, Dogs are Easy to Train, Your Cat's Care and Training, and The Best Chain and Kennel (that's about how to keep your mutt happy while cooped up in the backyard).

There's also On Being a Good Neighbor, which deals with the stress animals and their owners can inflict on human society.

The SPCA has a club for young children which meets monthly on how to care for and train pets. For adults, there are two dog obedience training clubs in Victoria to which the SPCA refers interested persons.

For those who want more specialized or exotic information on animals the public library will have it.

Zero Population Growth in U.S. Severe Challenge to Economy: Report

WASHINGTON (WP) — With childbearing declining at a record rate, the United States faces the "distinct possibility" of achieving zero population growth within this century, according to a report released this week by the Washington Centre for Metropolitan Studies.

For all its ecological benefits, such a development could present severe challenges to the nation's "growth oriented" economy, warns the 14-page report.

Concluding that a "baby bust" has replaced the post-Second World War "baby boom," the analysis says there were 15.5 per cent fewer children under five years of age in 1960 than 1970. This is the first decrease since The Depression and the largest decrease since such figures were first kept in 1850.

More remarkable, says the study, is that this decrease coincides with the greatest increase in the number of people most capable of having children — a 29 per cent increase between 1960 and 1970 in the 15-34 age bracket.

There also was a 52 per cent jump in the number of people between 20 and 24, the most fertile age range, the study adds.

In short, the report predicts that the huge "war baby" generation may not produce children as abundantly as had been expected. It attributes this largely to contraceptive developments and changing attitudes toward family size.

The increased availability of abortions occurred too late in the decade to substantially affect the figures, but could play a role in further reducing the birth rate of the 1970s.

In Washington alone, for example, some 2,000 abortions are being performed monthly in hospitals and clinics following the relaxation of the local abortion law less than two years ago. Most of the patients are from this area.

Fastest Growing

The centre says that although the Washington area was the fastest growing metropolitan area in the United States during the last decade, it also may attain zero population growth within the century.

The report issued Monday was prepared by George Grier, senior associate, and was jointly funded by the Ford Foundation, the Morris and Gwendolyn Cafritz Foundation and the Eugene and Agnes E. Meyer Foundation.

It concludes:

"It will probably take several decades more for the current fertility trend, if continued, to bring stability or decline to the total population (of the United States). One reason is that the momentum of past rapid growth will continue for a while to come.

"There are so many more young adults than older people that, despite the unprecedented recent decline in childbearing, births still outnumber deaths nearly two to one.

Deaths to Climb

"Within only a few decades, however, today's young adults will be elderly. At that time, the number of deaths will shoot up, and only an exceedingly high birth rate would be capable of equalling them."

The effects of this trend are already apparent in declining sales by the toy industry and in surplus classroom space, the report says, adding that manufacturers of records, clothes, motorcycles and other youth-oriented porducts will soon be hit.

"An unprecedented peak in the number of potential taxpayers is near at hand," says the report referring to today's booming 15-24 age bracket. "It will be accompanied by a sharp decrease in the number of school-age children, who are major generators of tax burdens as well as a drain on individual family budgets . . .

"But for potential taxpayers to become taxpayers in reality, rather than economic burdens, will require that new jobs continue to be generated at a rapid pace.

"Thus, an expansionist economic policy would appear crucial to smooth the transition to a slower growth rate."

50th Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Wood celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently at their home on Lochside Drive.

The couple were married August 24, 1921, at Huntington, Que., at the home of the bride's eldest sister, Mrs. H. K. Fielding, of Hanna, Alberta.

Mrs. Fielding was present for the anniversary celebration, given by the couple's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Connolly.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood moved to Victoria 11 years ago after Wood retired from the agricultural departments of the Alberta and Manitoba governments.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem doesn't really concern your generation, Abby, but the younger generation will understand.

I am a 17-year-old guy who has a souped-up car. My car is nice looking and is pretty noisy, but I'm sure it is legal. The police are constantly following me for no reason at all. I have been driving for nearly two years and have never had an accident or a ticket.

Why do the police bug me all the time? I don't break any laws and I don't intend to. Is it because my car looks fast and I'm a younger guy? —Fed Up.

DEAR FED: I think you've answered your own question. But don't be so sure you're not breaking any law by driving a "souped-up" car that's "pretty noisy." There is a law against disturbing the peace, and a souped-up car has disturbed the peace of many a sick and sleeping citizen.

DEAR ABBY: You contradicted yourself. A husband complained because his wife had a trunk full of old love letters, pictures and souvenirs from her dating days, and she dragged this trunk around the country whenever they move. You said, "It's HER junk, and if she wants to drag it around the world for the next 50 years, it's all right."

Next comes a letter from a wife complaining because her husband still carries a picture of his old girl friend in his wallet, and you say, "Nix! HER picture doesn't belong in your husband's wallet."

To me the principle is the same. Defend yourself. — Howard in Salt Lake.

DEAR HOWARD: Aw, come on! Letters, pictures and souvenirs from dating days represent scads of old beaus. But one picture in a man's wallet is special, and no wallet is big enough for a man's wife and his old girl friend.

Virus Makes Monster Budworms, May End Threat to Spruce

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press
Science Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Centuries long forest depredation by the spruce budworm may be ended by Y virus.

Canadian forestry service scientists, excited about this new biological weapon, bypassed some laboratory testing procedures in favor of field trials this summer.

The virus makes monsters of budworm larvae and cripples their reproductive powers.

In another eight months, scientists will know whether they have planted a biological budworm killer capable of acting as a natural check on this costliest destroyer of forest resources.

If they have, they feel confident of heading off the next big resurgence of budworm attacks, now at a high point in vulnerable stands of balsam fir, white spruce and red spruce over more than 20 million acres from British Columbia to the Atlantic.

One estimate of eastern Canada's loss from budworms since 1909 is 250 million tons of newsprint, the equivalent of $4 trillion at today's prices.

SPRAYING GOES ON

Chemical spraying, costing perhaps $25 million since 1952, will continue as a holding operation while scientists build an arsenal of weapons such as Y virus.

These include use of sex attractants, called pheromones, to lure budworm moths to their deaths or so confuse them that they fail to mate. Chemicals may render the budworm unable to reproduce.

Another defence involves the epicentre concept—that is, keeping a close watch on budworm population to spot concentrations before they reach take-off point.

Besides ground counts of budworm population, this may mean using such sophisticated techniques as infra red scanners in aircraft or, perhaps, earth satellites. These take a kind of picture of infra red radiation. Damaged trees show different levels of radiation.

Y virus itself is merely the latest in a series of bacterial and viral weapons tested.

"Why were we so long in finding it? So they called it Y virus," explained W. A. Reeks of the name. He is program coordinator for entomology in the forestry service, now a key part of the federal department of the environment.

SEARCH SPURRED

The search for biological weapons has been spurred by growing reluctance by the public and scientists to continue relying on chemical weapons that sometimes are found to have undesirable side effects after long use.

One of the first was a bacteria, bacillus thuringiensis, tested in the New Brunswick budworm outbreak of 1970. It is still under study. But its killing power and cost ruled out it being an immediate replacement for chemicals.

Interest shifted to viruses, partly because they have been proved effective against pine-destroying sawflies and because some live in and attack only a particular species. This characteristic lessens the danger of the virus affecting other nonharmful forms of life and upsetting natural balances.

Two types were known to affect the eastern budworm. One is called nuclear polyhedrosis and destroys by attacking the nucleus of the budworm's cell structure.

The other is a cytoplasmic polyhedrosis which works on the protein parts of the cell outside the nucleus.

"If we could use one in the absence of the other, we would have a red hot biological type insecticide," said Mr. Reeks.

This year the scientists isolated the nuclear polyhedrosis and conducted field trials with it.

Almost simultaneously a windfall occurred with the discovery that a virus found in insect larvae in British Columbia could be transferred to the eastern budworm larvae. This is Y virus.

"The really astounding thing is that it causes the affected budworms to become monsters. They grow to twice normal size and their reproductive capacity is crippled."

They continue to feed in the spring on the tender new growth of fir and spruce, but the promise for budworm control lies in the virus effect on reproductive capacity, limiting the numbers in succeeding generations to budworms.

The big question is whether Y virus will reappear more or less automatically in the next budworm generation, transmitted by the parents?

The scientists will see next May when they check emerging budworm larvae on the 400 or 500 acres sprayed with a freeze-dried Y virus mixture this summer.

The trials were held on forest plots near Petawawa, Ont., with materials from the Insect Pathology Research Institute at Sault Ste. Marie, where Dr. F. T. Bird and Dr. J. C. Cunningham did the basic research on Y virus.

So far, there is no evidence of harm to birds, animals or fish, Mr. Reeks said.

Hopes for Y virus were high enough that "we jumped two years laboratory work for field trials," said R. M. Prentice, program director for forest insect and disease surveys.

"We are going ahead now in the assumption that more extensive field spraying can be done next year."

Spray operations with chemicals such as fenitrothion continue—6,000,000 acres out of the 20,000,000 infested were treated this year.

"We are keeping the forests alive while we investigate these ways to stop new outbreaks and prevent the next wave of infestation," said Dr. I. C. M. Place, program coordinator for environmental quality.

Bridge Plan Reconsidered

OTTAWA (CP) — A modified plan is being prepared for a new bridge linking the city of Vancouver and its new airport site, transport minister Don Jamieson said Wednesday.

He was replying in the Commons to Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who asked whether the federal government had received representations about the original plans to make the bridge a toll link.

Jamieson said he had a recent meeting with officials from suburban Richmond. Opposition had been expressed to charging tolls on the bridge and a modified plan was being drafted.

Stanfield said the government might have saved itself some trouble by consulting local authorities in the beginning. Jamieson rejected this contention, saying that he had spent a whole afternoon with Richmond officials before the original plan was drawn up.

Cabinet Okays $3 Million For Hospital

The provincial cabinet has approved a request from the capital regional hospital board to borrow $2.96 million without referendum approval.

Regional directors voted a week ago, at the suggestion of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, to seek such authority.

The money will be used in part to buy land alongside St. Joseph's Hospital for its expansion as well as a 35-acre site near Helmcken Road and the Trans-Canada Highway where a hospital for extended care patients will be built.

...AND THERE WAS A PARTY IN OSHAWA

Grand Old Car Man Hits 100

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — They paid tribute to "Colonel Sam" in Oshawa Wednesday.

And while the grand old man of the Canadian auto industry celebrated his 100th birthday in private with members of his immediate family, 250 guests turned out in a downtown Oshawa hotel to celebrate the centennial of R. S. McLaughlin.

No one really knows how much money the shy Canadian philanthropist has given away to what he considers worthwhile causes in the last few decades.

John J. Deutsch, principal of Queen's University in Kingston, told of the McLaughlin personality before a testimonial dinner. Colonel Sam, as he is known, was one of those who made Canadians realize that they could become a great people and a great nation, he said.

He referred to Mr. McLaughlin's characteristics of imagination, energy, optimism, and dedication to quality which "made it possible for this country to move from a handicraft society to one of the most modern industrial countries."

The millionaire was honored with a scroll by the provincial government and the warm feeling of the city he made and the people who live in it.

Mr. McLaughlin started in his father's carriage factory as an upholsterer and was known to his family as a boy "with wheels in his head."

He began building automobiles in the days when Oshawa had a population of about 4,000 but in 1918 sold out to General Motors and became a GM vice-president.

Today, General Motors provides more than 10,000 jobs in Oshawa, now a city of about 80,000.

And speaking of just one of the many areas Col. Sam has supported, Dr. Deutsch said his money was used to train young Canadian doctors.

"He completely revolutionized Canadian medical education and set a standard and level of attainment that Canadian medical schools now take for granted," Dr. Deutsch said.

Not bad for a man who started out in a horseless carriage company.

NO SIGN OF JACKIE BUT OTHERS CAME

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Jacqueline Onassis did not turn up, but three generations of Kennedys, former and present government officials and the cream of Washington society graced the formal opening here of the John F. Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts.

There was no sign of Mrs. Onassis, widow of the late president, to whom the $66 million theatre centre was dedicated. It was Mrs. Onassis who commissioned Leonard Bernstein to compose the Mass that officially launched the cultural centre Wednesday night.

Ethel Kennedy, widow of the late Senator Robert Kennedy, arrived with six of her children, wearing a three-quarter length white gown.

"We've been waiting a very long time for this," she said.

Her sister-in-law, Joan, Senator Edward Kennedy's wife, wore a plain blue almost see-through, lavender crepe dress. She was with two of her sons.

Rose Kennedy, the family matriarch, who shared the presidential box with Bernstein and composer Aaron Copeland, wore an irridescent, mute, multi-colored silk gown.

Other Kennedys included her daughter, Eunice Shriver, wife of former ambassador Sargent Shriver, and Jean, wife of Stephen Smith.

It was the third performance this week at the centre of the two-hour theatrical oratoria with singers, dancers, chorus, orchestra and a cast of about 140.

Dief Spends Good Night In Hospital

LONDON (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker spent a comfortable night in a Welsh hospital and his condition remains satisfactory, the hospital reported today.

The 75-year-old Diefenbaker is undergoing tests for a stomach disorder which hit him Saturday while he was holidaying in Wales with his wife as guests of Brig. Michael Wardell, former publisher of the Fredericton Gleaner.

He is in hospital at Wrexham, north Wales.

The hospital said Wednesday he is expected to be kept for a few days more.

Film Festivals Painful for U.S. Movie Makers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They started as tourist promotions, gay and giddy events at which starlets vied for notoriety and discovery. In recent years they have become international marketplaces, where fortunes can be made and propaganda purveyed.

In either case, film festivals remain a headache for the American film companies. The firms would like to ignore the festivals, but they can't.

Most major film festivals are over for the year, and Hollywood entrants are turning home, some of them nursing wounds, some bearing prizes. For some film-makers, the festival can be a delightful ego trip; for others, a nightmare.

ESCAPED JEERS

Take the experience of Stanley Kramer, a film festival veteran. He recently showed his new picture, Bless the Beasts and the Children, at the Berlin and Moscow festivals. Moscow was a splendid experience, he reported, although the Russians customarily respond to all films with restrained enthusiasm.

Berlin was something else. Reported Kramer:

"The youth of Berlin are undergoing an even greater change than young people in this country. That's because they are responding to a society in which parental control was suppressive. As a result, the kids come to the festival showings in bare feet and barechested. They hoot at anything they don't like.

"I was given the choice of speaking before the film, in which case I would be considered a coward, or appearing afterward, when I might be booed."

Kramer appeared afterward and managed to escape the jeers.

Others are not as lucky. One year when Seconds was shown at Cannes, with director John Frankenheimer and star Rock Hudson, the audience started to whistle and jeer midway in the film.

QUOTA SYSTEMS

Even if films manage to survive raucous audiences, they can be defeated in the balloting for prizes by loaded juries and nationalist sentiments. Why submit to such treatment?

"The companies would prefer not to enter festivals," said a producers' spokesman. "But it becomes necessary to maintain good relations with the countries that give the festivals. In some countries that have quota systems, there is a certain advantage. A company can get an extra film under the quota by entering it in a festival."

Ego plays a role, too. Individual producers like to enter festivals in hopes of snagging a prize or two. Prizes always help a producer's morale, and they may have some commercial value.

Cannes remains the granddaddy of the festivals and it has become an enormous merchandise mart where producers from all countries sell films and make deals. Trailing Cannes in prestige are Berlin, Moscow— alternating with the Czechs— San Sebastian, Brazil, Sydney, Locarno and Cartagena.

MAKE PLAY PAY: PROFESSOR

QUEBEC (CP) — Dr. E. J. Tyler, psychology professor at Brandon University in Manitoba, says recreation should be treated with more respect.

Leisure time should become "an important source of relevant experiences," "recreation should become the main area for the flowering and growth of the human identity and personality," he said Wednesday at the second national conference on leisure.

The generation gap, growing hostility, violence, mistrust and rejection of established institutions were all "symptomatic of the inability of a growing number of people, especially young people, to have pertinent experiences in their work and leisure activities."

Malta Gets U.K. Protest

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain protested to Malta today about its decision to withhold duty-free fuel to foreign forces on the island and requested removal of this sanction.

A foreign office spokesman told reporters that the British high commissioner in Valletta, Sir Duncan Watson, "has on instructions from the foreign and commonwealth office protested to the Malta government about the sanctions which have been imposed by the latter and requested their immediate removal."

British officials said that they consider the Maltese decision to withhold duty-free fuel to British forces on the island is a direct breach of the 1964 Anglo-Maltese defence agreement.

The new Maltese government of Prime Minister Dom Mintoff does not consider this agreement to be valid.

Tiger Kills Man

MURIA, Spain (Reuter) — A tiger belonging to the Berlin Circus mauled to death Wednesday a young French employee who entered its cage, Andre Rene Pierre, 27, who had worked for the circus for about two months, apparently touched the tiger on some sores caused by sunburn, and the animal leaped at his throat.

World Court Action Urged

BURNABY (CP) — A New Democratic Party MLA has asked Prime Minister Trudeau to consider placing before the World Court the proposed United States nuclear test in the Aleutians.

Jamier Lorimer, MLA for Burnaby-Willingdon, says in a letter to Trudeau the World Court at The Hague could rule on whether or not a nation "may experiment in this way to the possible and probable detriment of other nations."

The letter says aggressive action must be taken to present Canada's opposition to "this dangerous enterprise" on Amchitka Island.

VANCOUVER — President Nixon already knows what kind of a telegram he will receive when he arrives in Alaska Sept. 26 for a meeting with Emperor Hirohito of Japan. It will read: "STOP THE EXPLOSION OF THE AMCHITKA NUCLEAR BOMB." Sender: the Canadian Amchitka Coalition. Signatures will be gathered in shopping centres, churches, factories, offices and other locations in the Lower Mainland. (In Victoria, 9,000 signatures have been collected so far by the protest group Amchitka 2.)

HOLLYWOOD — Here comes Peter Lawford, 48, ready to be married Oct. 31 to Mary Rowan, 21, daughter of comedian Dan Rowan, with Chris Lawford, 16, Peter's son, to act as best man, after the actor was divorced by his wife, Patricia Kennedy, in 1966 after 11 years of marriage. Rowan said he would rather Mary were to marry a man "closer to her own age than mine. But they are in love." Hollywood again has a happy ending.

HAYWARDS HEATH, England — Free-lance photographer Ray Bellisario, 35, told a court Lord Snowdon — Anthony Armstrong-Jones, himself a photographer — deliberately rammed his car and endangered Princess Margaret, the lord's wife. Bellisario brought charges of dangerous driving, careless driving and reversing farther than a safe distance against Snowdon. He pleaded not guilty. Later today, Snowdon was found guilty of careless driving and fined £20 ($50). "We feel that on this occasion you did not exercise the skill and care expected of a reasonably competent driver," Cyril Barnett, chairman of the magistrates court told Snowdon.

WORMS, Germany — Poor Martin Luther—dead these 425 years — is still on the papal bad books. Pope Paul has refused a request to lift the 450-year-old ban against the church rebel who refused to recant before a council of German nobility in Worms. Now a group of German Roman Catholic laymen have asked the papal bill, dated 1521, be lifted.

WINNIPEG — Rene Aime Lamoureux was forced to take a little side trip of 55 miles in his Winnipeg transit bus. Three young men pulled a knife on him and made him drive to Portage La Prairie. He though it was a joke. Then he saw the foot-long blade and the joke was over. Lamoureux pulled a trick favored by hijacked airline pilots — he told the men he was running out of gas. After they got off, he took off, and fast.

NORTH VANCOUVER — Mayor Tom Reid bucked the trend temporarily when he voted against a 50-per-cent raise aldermen elected for themselves — retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971. The vote went 4-3, and Reid said he would accept the raise. "I think we have the most unadulterated gall of any council. Here we are offering our unprotected employees a five-per-cent raise tied to the cost-of-living index and then raising our salary by this amount."

NEW YORK — Erstwhile Beatle John Lennon says his second wife Yoko Ono didn't break up the group but if she had "she should get credit for all the nice music we've all made since we broke up."

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Charles Brown, 91 got married to Viola Ownbey, 78, her first time and his vow that love knows no age limit.

OTTAWA — Robert Wayne Eadie has a beef against Canada's mounted finest. Eadie, 21, of Cornwall, claimed the RCMP were going to send him to jail unless he became a stool pigeon. He admitted having taken about $305 over 2½ years from the Mounties for information supplied. He said they threatened to plant drugs on him, arrest him, and jail him. On a CBC television interview he said he was beaten by six men and that, after the incident, he stopped informing.

Rice for Power

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Burma is paying for part of a British-made power station with rice. The builders, John Brown Engineering Co., said two-thirds of a $7.68 million power-plant contract will be paid in rice. The British foreign office is to put up the rice purchase money and send the grain to India to help feed Pakistani refugees.

'PEANUTS—STOP KICKING U.S. SHINS'

Opposition Bombards Bill to Aid Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — There were different arguments from different quarters, but the opposition continued to bombard the government Wednesday over its legislative response to United States import surcharges.

"Going around wringing our hands is not going to impress the hard-nosed protectionists in the United Saes," said Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo).

And Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) dismissed the government's legislation, on which debate continues today at second reading, as a peanut program.

The government's legislation, introduced Tuesday when Parliament resumed after a 68-day vacation, would subsidize Canadian industrial plants which have been hit by the surtaxes.

Meanwhile, as the opposition tore after the government inside the Commons, Finance Minister E. J. Benson was outside telling reporters he thinks Canada will be exempt from the surcharges in due course.

The U.S., he said, has an open mind and is prepared to make moves as the situation changes. Another meeting of officials has been scheduled and he will be meeting personally with John Connally, the U.S. treasury secretary.

The Americans are considering the Canadian argument in terms of being "a quite different case" from other countries, and he was confident that serious study is being given to the request for exemption.

In the debate, Mr. Woolliams said Canada might have received a kinder response from Washington if the Trudeau government had not kicked the U.S. in the shins at every opporunity.

He referred to remarks made by Prime Minister Trudeau in Russia last spring to the effect that Canada wanted to build up friendships with other countries to counter U.S. influence.

Mr. Wolliams suggested Canada should join in an American common market including Mexico and some South American countries. There was a case for showing more friendship to the U.S.

APPROACH DIFFERS

Mr. Saltsman's approach was different. He called for a stronger response from Canada — to demonstrate, through retaliatory measures, the full consequence of the U.S. action.

"To be good neighbors does not mean we have to show weakness when we are being hurt."

But both men agreed on allegations that the government is trying to divert attention from the real issues.

Mr. Saltsman said the legislation substitutes subsidies for a thorough examination of Canada's problems—"a gigantic put-on."

Mr. Woolliams said the measure attempts to draw attention from unemployment, when the country faces a winter during which 1,000,000 Canadians could be out of work.

PRESENTS MOTION

Mr. Saltsman introduced a motion which would, if accepted by the House, have the legislation referred to a Commons committee for further study.

While opposition MPs offered different suggestions for responding to the U.S. surcharges, Mr. Trudeau's parliamentary secretary, Barnett Danson (L—York North) suggested that the "neighborly elephant" be permitted to run off some steam to satisfy domestic political needs.

If the surcharges achieve the desired goals, he said, the Canadian economy would benefit.

AND NOW STARTS MASSIVE CLEANUP

SATSOP, Wash. (AP) — A massive cleanup chore was under way Tuesday at the 77-acre site of the Satsop River fair and tin-cup race, which a festival spokesman described as "a mess of garbage."

He said about 300 persons would remain at the 77-acre site to clear the mounds of garbage and debris left over from the Labor Day weekend event that attracted an estimated 150,000 persons.

Grays Harbor county sheriff's deputies and state troopers were reported frisking some straggiers and making arrests involving drugs.

Parks Close Youth Camp Near Banff

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Echo Creek campground, set up as a stopover for travelling youth, has been closed by national parks officials following a report from Dr. Alastair MacQuarrie of Banff.

"The campground . . . is a serious threat to the public health," said Dr. MacQuarrie, who described the area as filthy.

He blamed pollution of 40 Mile Creek, which runs through the northside of the townsite and located adjacent to the camp, on occupants of the transient youth camp.

"The whole area is litered with garbage and debris of all types, from paper to bottles and portions of garments."

He said samples of water taken from the smaller creeks joining 40 Mile Creek were "stained dark brown and stink."

'AN ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE JOB'

Alberta Socreds Start Rebuilding Party

CALGARY (CP) — A backroom meeting was to be held here today to discuss the future of the Social Credit party in Alberta following its shattering defeat in the Aug. 30 general election.

The meeting, similar to one in Edmonton last week, was called to plan a political comeback which some observers believe will be unsuccessful.

Defeated Premier Harry Strom and candidates, organizers and key workers from the 13 Calgary constituencies were to attend.

"We've got to get started now," a Social Credit spokesman said. "If we hold off for a year, then goodbye Social Credit."

Editorial writers and political opponents feel nothing will help. They predict Social Credit, which governed the province for 36 years, will slide into oblivion.

Social Credit spokesmen naturally disagree but concede some rebuilding is needed.

Bill Johnson, president of the Alberta Social Credit League, said the party will have to reassess vigorously its outlook to meet the voters' cry for change.

That cry elected 49 Progressive Conservatives Aug. 30. Social Credit salvaged 25 seats in the 75-seat legislature and Grant Notley, the 32-year-old leader of the New Democratic Party, took the other.

"We must be a constructive opposition, something new and different for us, but we must show the voter we are still the alternative," Mr. Johnson said.

Mr. Notley said the Conservative victory was "the first step towards the fundamental political realignment that is necessary in Alberta."

"This, of course, means the end for Social Credit."

He predicted the Social Credit party will split into three groups —the opportunists who will defect to the Conservatives; the hardcore members who will join the federal party; and "the diehards" who will hang around Mr. Strom until he retires.

The inability of Social Credit to win urban support was a topic at the Calgary meeting. They lost 29 of 38 urban seats, including all 16 in Edmonton and nine of 13 in Calgary.

"We were crusading for people who were around 35 years ago but now are in hospitals and nursing homes," one party member said. "These people can't swing an election anymore."

MAY BE TESTED

The position of Mr. Strom, a 57-year-old farmer, as party leader may be challenged but one Social Credit MLA said "it would be better to wait and get the first legislature session over with before we do anything about the leadership.

"We've got the nucleus of a good opposition group, and our first job will be to get that organized."

The Calgary Albertan, in an editorial, said the election not only dislodged Social Credit from power after 36 years, it also raised some large questions about the future of all four of the province's political parties.

The editorial said one problem facing the Social Credit party is that, as a small-c conservative entity, it is fundamentally undistinguishable from the Conservative party which toppled it from power.

"It poses for the Social Credit party the challenge of demonstrating, in its new role as the official Opposition, that it is a credible alternative to the Tories—which means credible in terms of personalities and styles. If it cannot do that during the next four years it may indeed go into irreversible decline."

SIDNEY CENTRE OPENS SUNDAY

Silver Threads Need Volunteers

Volunteer help is urgently needed by Sidney Silver Threads organization which moves into new headquarters after the official opening of the Resthaven Drive centre Sunday.

Director Pauline Barker expects an influx of new members when the nine-to-five daily program gets under way in the Restahaven Drive building. There are 300 members to date.

Kitchen facilities will allow serving of a light lunch (probably soup and sandwiches for the present) as well as morning coffee and afternoon tea.

Volunteers are needed to help transport members from Brentwood Bay and Saanichton. Help is also needed to serve coffee and tea.

High on the list of activities requested by senior citizens is a course in basketry. Mrs. Barker hopes a volunteer teacher can be found on the peninsula.

5th Douglas Registration

Scouting resumes Monday at Garden City United Church with registration of both Cubs and Scouts of the 5th Douglas group.

The group committee requests that at least one parent accompany the boys for the registration from 7 to 8 p.m. in the church basement.

Regular meetings of the Cubs and Scouts start the following week.

Human Relations Course Offered

Don McKinnon, principal of North Saanich Junior High School, will co-ordinate a new night school course in Sidney on communication and human relations.

Director of adult education Frank Baxter said the course is arranged in collaboration with local churches.

Designed to explore communications within the family, the six-session course will be held Thursday evenings, starting Sept. 30.

Leading discussions will be Dr. John Wood, Saanich Mental Health unit psychiatrist, Dr. Pierre d'Estrube, private psychiatrist, Dr. Vance Peavy University of Victoria, Dr. Les Navran, Royal Roads Military College, a representative of Saanich Police Department and a team from Port Alberni Family Counselling Centre.

Peak Conquered

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (Reuter) — A 13-man Polish expedition has conquered the previously unclimbed 25,760-foot peak of Khiangyang Kish in the Karakoram range, a report said.

Sidney Plaza Expansion Plan Bared

Two covered malls, a department store and 11 shops will be added to the shopping plaza on Beacon Avenue in Sidney this year.

At a cost of $500,000 the plaza extension will include Robinson's department store, Shoppers Drug Mart (formerly Cunningham Drugs), a branch of the Bank of Commerce, Norgetown coin laundry and dry cleaners and The Daisy Pot beauty salon.

Space is available for a wool shop, florist, bakery, shoe store, hardware and photographer.

Buena Vista Holdings Ltd. owners of the complex, expect construction to be completed Dec. 5.

BILL 'TOO COMPLEX'

OTTAWA — The Canadian Chambers of Commerce says new taxation legislation is so complex it will be difficult for many taxpayers to fill in their returns without professional assistance.

The chamber made the statement in a special brief presented to Finance Minister Benson today.

Roy Bennett, vice-chairman of the group's executive council, said the language in the new law is much too involved. Many taxpayers will not be able to understand their own tax position without getting additional help.

However, H. P. Crawford, another chamber executive, told Benson his group was pleased that only half of capital gains in income rather than all capital gains will be taxed.

And he said he supported tax cuts for low income workers as this served a useful purpose in helping to stimulate the economy.

The chamber also praised the government's decision to remove federal and estate gift taxes. But officials said they hope the provinces will not act to frustrate this new policy.

Nevertheless, the chamber continued to hammer away at the vagueness of many regulations. It said the absence of some regulations made it difficult to analyse the proposals and criticize them constructively.

BorowskiQuits, All Guns Firing

WINNIPEG (CP) — A sign on Joe Borowski's office wall when he was Manitoba's highways minister pictured a turtle and said simply: "He makes progress only when he sticks his neck out."

Both the sign and Mr. Borowski vacated the office Wednesday after the minister chose resignation over retreating from his stand on abortion which had made his position in the cabinet untenable.

Mr. Borowski's bitter anti-abortion campaign of recent weeks culminated with Premier Ed Schreyer's virtual ultimatum Tuesday that he stop criticizing government policy on the subject or resign.

Mr. Borowski said Wednesday in a letter of resignation to cabinet he could not "in good conscience" remain.

"While I appreciate the wide latitude and tolerance of my colleagues to allow me to speak out on most moral issues, often contrary to the majority view, I just cannot bury or abort my principle on this paramount and very basic issue . . ."

HAD CRITICIZED

The 37-year-old minister had criticized the provincial government for its financial support of the Mount Carmel Clinic in Winnipeg which he accused of illegally referring patients to New York for therapeutic abortions.

He continued opposition after the cabinet rejected his appeal to cut funds to the clinic.

Mr. Schreyer said in a news conference that "in the last few days it became apparent that there was an irreconcilable difference of opinion between Mr. Borowski and the cabinet."

The premier named Tourism Minister Peter Burtniak to assume Mr. Borowski's highways portfolio and Russell Doern, minister without portfolio, for public works, also held by Mr. Borowski.

WANTS HOSPITALS

The letter suggested the federal government should provide abortion hospitals, similar to veterans hospitals, to "carry out the intent of their abortion law."

Nor should provincial medical care pay for abortions when needs of the elderly are disregarded, it said.

Mr. Borowski later told reporters he will take his seat in the legislature when it reconvenes, and will remain the representative of the northern constituency of Thompson at least until the next election.

"Then the party in Thompson will decide," he said.

Mayor Harassed

CALGARY (CP) — Kenneth Henry Stromberg, 59, of Calgary was convicted in provincial court Wednesday of making harassing telephone calls to Mayor Rod Sykes and fined $100.

If the fine is not paid by Sept. 22, imprisonment would be for one month.

The offences occurred between Nov. 4, 1970, and Jan. 20, 1971. The accused was arrested in January after the calls were traced.

Poison Cost

REGINA (CP) — The provincial government estimates it will pay out between $480,000 and $500,000 in compensation to farmers who used the poison Lannate in the fight to save rapeseed crops this summer from the bertha army worms.

A new release Wednesday estimated that farmers used about 150,000 pounds of Lannate at cost of $9.75 a pound, or about $1.95 an acre.

Arson On Rise

EDMONTON (CP) — An increasing number of people appear to be trying to set fire to their homes or businesses to collect insurance because of "a slowdown in the business cycle," Austin Bridges, provincial fire commissioner, said Wednesday.

"Fraud has become a more common cause of arson," he said in an interview. Other causes were mischief and attempts to cover up other crimes.

Campground Closed

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Echo Creek campground, used for hitch-hiker and transients during the summer, has been closed for health reasons.

A parks spokesman said problems with water contamination, sanitation and garbage would have to be "all cleared up" before the area is re-opened.

KY, THIEU RIFT MAY SPARK ROUND OF COUPS

SAIGON (Reuter) — The rift between South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky is deep—possibly dangerously so.

The staffs of the two men studiously avoid speaking to each other inside the presidential palace and their attitudes point up the problems of the war-ravaged country's present political crisis.

Their relationship has often been strained. President Thieu, 48, a former army general prominent in the coup against the late Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963, gained the presidency in an election in 1967 only after a power struggle with Ky.

A flamboyant pilot and air vice-marshal, Ky, 41 next month, was at the time premier. He reluctantly bowed out of the race and accepted the vice-presidency.

Now a new power struggle seems to be developing in this country of more than 15 million people, most of whom have known only a war situation.

Presidential elections are set for Oct. 3 and President Thieu is the only formal candidate.

Ky, originally a candidate again for the presidency, found his nomination first challenged on legal grounds. When that hurdle was crossed he announced he was withdrawing, accusing President Thieu of electoral fraud.

KY STILL FIGHTING

But though officially out, he is far from being down in the Saigon leadership race.

Early in September, he announced a new political platform for running the country, adding that only a complete change of leadership could carry it out.

He followed this up in a briefing of some foreign reporters at which, while asking that the information be attributed to sources close to him, he threatened the president with a confrontation of force if he did not call off the one-man election within two weeks.

Many thought he was threatening another coup. But almost immediately after the story hit headlines around the world, Ky's press office began issuing denials saying the reports were inaccurate and false.

But many people noted that the denial was too late to get the remarks of the vice-president—well-known for his political bravado—out of print.

If Ky led a coup it would be the seventh such attempt since 1954 and there are few people close to South Vietnamese politics willing to rule out the possibility completely.

9 IN MEMORIAM

WEBBER — In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Clara H. Webber, who passed peacefully away Sept. 9, 1944.
Dearer still as years depart
Her memory lives within our hearts.
A cheery smile, a heart of gold,
One of the best this world did hold.
And when old times we do recall
'Tis then we miss her most of all.
—Always remembered by Ann and Andy Haggart, Cassie Pippitt (Calif.) and their families.

WILSON — In loving memory of dearest Dad and Granddad James Wilson, passed away Sept. 9, 1966.
I hide my tears when I speak your name
But the pain in my heart remains the same.
I loved you dad but we had to part
Sometimes in the busy hours
Or in a crowded place
There comes a floating vision
Of a dear remembered face.
A passing word may strike a chord
On memory's golden strings
And wake the echoing music
Of unforgotten things.
So many things can break your heart
So cruel life can be.
But if you grope through tragic nights
There breaks at last the morning light.
—Remembered always, your loving daughter Evelyn, son-in-law Lucky, Donna and Garry Greene.

WILSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, "James Wilson" who passed away Sept. 9, 1966.
You gave us your love in fullest measure,
Care, devotion, memories to treasure
In our hearts you will always live
The dearest husband and father, God could give.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife Blanche, sons and daughters.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

"ADIAS SMITH AND JONES." 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) The network devotes its entire evening to two pilot movies that were winners. The first half is "Alias Smith and Jones." Pete Duel and Ben Murphy starred, setting the stage for the continuing project as two former desperadoes trying to turn legit but encountering situations that threaten their chances of amnesty. Featured in the pilot film are Susan Saint James, Forrest Tucker and James Drury.

NBC ACTION PLAYHOUSE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "The Enemy on the Beach." It's finger-biting time in North Ireland during World War II as two Allied officers are assigned the hair-raising task of deactivating a German mine. The problem is the mine has a new, secret detonating device which must be solved. To complicate matters, the officers, Robert Wagner and James Donald, are billeted at the home of an embittered and hostile war widow, played by Sally Ann Howes.

LANCER. 8 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) Scott Lancer's life is in jeopardy when an outlaw mistakes him for his half-brother Johnny and holds him hostage. Warren Oates and Teresa O'Brien have featured guest roles.

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "The Happy Dreams of Hollow Men." A tense, well-acted drama has Ironside and friend stranded by a blizzard in a mountain retreat. Ironside's friend, played by Joseph Campanella, turns out to be a drug addict. The weekend turns into a nightmare when Campanella runs out of drugs and can't replenish the supply.

THE CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES. (Rerun.) 9 p.m., Channel 7. "Harpy" stars Hugh O'Brian and Elizabeth Ashley in a suspense drama. O'Brian plays an architect and sportsman who is about to marry, much to the objection of his embittered first wife who is plotting to prevent the wedding. She intends to use "Harpy," a trained eagle, in her plans.

"LONGSTREET." 9 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) The second part of this ABC double feature stars James Franciscus as an insurance investigator who is blinded in an explosion that kills his wife. Jeannette Nolan plays his mother. John McIntire, a psychiatrist who helps him, and Bradford Dillman is an adjustor who assists in finding the one responsible for the bombing.

AN EVENING WITH JULIE ANDREWS AND HARRY BELAFONTE. 10 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) Viewers get another look at a delightful hour of music featuring two splendidly talented performers. They offer songs they have long been identified with, such as Miss Andrews' Broadway association with "My Fair Lady" which brought out "Wouldn't It Be Loverly" and "I Could Have Danced All Night," and "Chim Chim Cheree." Belafonte does "Mr. Bojangles" and joins Miss Andrews in a number of duets.

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

Of late I have read descriptions of new methods of controlling a chronic pain that does not respond even to strong pain-killing drugs. For example, I read that doctors at the Duke University Geriatrics Centre in Durham are now treating selected patients with severe, chronic pain due to such troubles as spinal injuries, disc operations (a disc is a rubbery-like cushion between two vertebras or spinal bones), severe back pain or cancer, by using electrical impulses to "fool the brain".

The doctors implant a small device, consisting of platinum electrodes and a radio receiver, beneath the patient's skin on the back of the spinal cord. When the patient feels pain, he places an antenna over the device and a radio signal from a small battery-powered transmitter activates the receiver. These radio signals, which the patient can control, interfere with the pain messages being transmitted to the brain and the patient feels only a tingling or a slight vibration in the painful region.

Dr. George J. Matthews, of the Hahnemann Medical School of Philadelphia, describes a way they use of relieving pain, especially that due to cancer, by injecting very cold solutions of salt into the space around the lumbar spine (the low back region). This treatment is now being used for some non-cancerous conditions, such as pains due to injuries to a nerve, or that terrible neuralgic pain that in older people commonly follows an attack of shingles, sometimes for as long as a year after the person no longer has any visible signs of the disease.

The patient is first made somewhat drowsy with injections of a small amount of a sedative drug into his veins. Then, with the patient seated, a needle is placed in a certain space at the base of the brain (if the pain is in the upper half of the body.) If the pain is in the lower end of the body, another needle is put into the area around the lower spine. Then for about 10 or 20 seconds, the spinal cord and nerve roots are irrigated with the salt solution.

Of eight patients so treated, four had total relief of pain so long as they lived.

Such methods of relieving pain are very interesting, and I hope that before long they will be widely and successfully used.

NOMAD
The reception to the new Nomad line of travel trailers at Coastline Trailer Centre has been terrific. Most people can't believe how a trailer of Nomad's quality can be sold at such unbelievably low prices. The Skyline Corp. which manufactures Nomad is the world's largest builder of mobile homes and travel trailers. That's one reason. Coastline have pared their profit margin to an absolute minimum as an introductory special, so that we can get as many Nomads on the road as possible this Fall. That's reason number two. We invite you to drop into Coastline and compare the fabulous new Nomad quality and price with any other competitive make. We think you'll agree Nomad comes out on top.
Compare this 19½ Tandem axle Nomad for value.
Completely self-contained shower, hot water, toilet, heater, 4-wheel brakes. Many other extras too numerous to mention.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open daily, Monday through Saturday 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you call.

Crash Kills 3rd Youth

BURNABY (CP) — The death toll rose to three Wednesday from a grisly collision Tuesday between a pickup truck filled with 17 teen-agers and a loaded flatbed truck.

Peter Francis Christman, 17, of Burnaby died in hospital in New Westminster.

David Robert Welsh, 16, and Michael Karpins, 15, died soon after the crash. Three youths remain in critical condition in hospital.

Elderly Cool On Tax Plan

A spokesman for Victoria's elderly citizens says they will not be helped by Mayor Courtney Haddock's property tax deferral plan.

Catherine Horne, director of the city's Silver Threads Service, says senior citizens are branding the tax plan as "another election gimmick."

Mrs. Horne whose work brings her into contact with about 2,500 Victoria pensioners, said Wednesday she has yet to hear any positive reaction to the plan from Silver Threads members.

"We have been inundated with phone calls from irate members who live in Victoria and who don't want anything to do with the proposal."

Haddock's plan, revealed last week, would give home owners 65 and over the option of deferring payment of tax increases on their homes until sale of the house before or after they die. Tax arrears would be charged 8 per cent interest each year, however.

Most senior citizens are forced to move into institutions of some kind before they die, Mrs. Horne said, and the tax arrears plus interest requiring payment at that time would hurt users of the plan.

Only a tax relief plan with no strings attached would have any value, Mrs. Horne said.

"If the rest of the community were willing to pay for a reduction of property tax for senior citizens the old people would really be helped," she said.

Cowichan Backs District Merger

DUNCAN — Amalgamation of Cowichan school district and part of Ladysmith school district has been supported in principle by Cowichan school board.

The recommendation was contained in a report by R. B. Stibbs on the reorganization of school districts, which also urges that the remaining Ladysmith area be amalgamated with the Nanaimo school district.

School board chairman Dave Haywood said amalgamation would be "an economic and educational benefit" for students in the area.

The Stibbs report also urges that Cowichan and Lake Cowichan school districts discuss the possibility of Lake Cowichan students in Grades 11 and 12 attending classes at Cowichan High School.

A second report, called the Coleman report, was heard by the board at its regular meeting Tuesday. It urges that Ladysmith, Cowichan and Nanaimo school districts be amalgamated into one district.

The board also gave first reading to a resolution that school trips off the Island, involving air travel or overnight accommodation be first approved by the board.

Also accepted was a change in the format of primary grade report cards, eliminating the "extra effort shown" column from the student's personal achievement record.

Course In Drugs Offered

British Columbia elementary schools may teach a new health sciences course involving discussions of drugs, Education Minister Donald Brothers said today.

In a press release, Brothers said the course is optional. Schools may wait a year to give teachers time to familiarize themselves with its content, he said.

The course deals with drugs and the human body. Information about alcohol and tobacco is introduced in the program.

NEW APPROACH

Brothers said the drug study does not have a specific course plan but involves integration of the material with other subjects. He said an integrated learning approach is becoming more commonplace in B.C. schools because teachers now believe students benefit more when material from one discipline is linked with material from another.

Other new elementary programs this year included a revised social studies course for Grades 1 and 2 which will use pictures extensively.

Brothers said this course is unique in Canada. Pictures used with a variety of other materials are expected to create more discussions than printed materials have been able to do.

Oil, Gasoline Price Hike General

Shell Canada and Texaco today joined other major marketers in raising most wholesale fuel oil and gasoline prices in most of B.C.

Shell said its 0.7 cent a gallon hike applies to all motive fuels and heating oils in all parts of the province except the Peace River block.

Texaco said all but home furnace oil is affected and in its case the wholesale price rises one cent.

Imperial Oil and Home Oil also increased prices by one cent a gallon last week.

Shell said its 3 per cent increase was to cover generally higher operating costs.

The firm has no control over retail prices, but experience has shown that dealers raise their pump prices by approximately the same amount as the wholesale increase.

FALLERS RETURN TO WORK

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Fallers at MacMillan Bloedel's Sproat Lake logging division near Port Alberni returned to work today, ending a walkout that started in mid-July over the interpretation of Workmen's Compensation Board safety regulations.

Under previous arrangements, each faller was accompanied by a scaler, who watched for hazards as timber was felled. The arrangement was ended because board regulations prohibit any other workmen from working within 300 feet of a tree being felled.

A company spokesman said crews are working at the Sproat, Cameron and Kennedy divisions although it would be about two weeks before Sproat is in full gear.

At Franklin River, however, he said the men showed up for work but there was apparently a difference of opinion over a man's duties and the men walked out.

Political Repression Rises in 'Enlightened' Portugal

The London Observer

LONDON — A wave of political repression is sweeping through Portugal. Over the past four months a 100 or more people have been arrested throughout the country, according to information given Amnesty International.

Faced with an upsurge of political demonstrations, sabotage and arson, Premier Marcello Caetano is adopting the tactics of his ruthless predecessor, Antonio Salazar. The "enlightened" rule he promised within the framework of Portugal's one-party corporate state is not consistent with what many Portuguese consider freedom for the individual.

Reports in the Portuguese press of arrest of unspecified persons for "Acting against the security of the state" are now as frequent as those of "incidents" attributed to the ARA (Armed Revolutionary Action) and the Communists.

The regime sees a Communist behind every political agitator. But what began as sabotage not aimed at human life is now changing character and giving cause for alarm. When a munitions dump exploded at Santarem a few weeks ago, one person was killed and 14 injured, and two train derailments resulted in casualties.

These are the violent aspects of revolutionary action, associated with the fanatical fringe. Much more deep-seated and alarming for the regime is a hard core of labor unrest that is spreading downwards through the sindicatos, the state-controlled trade unions.

FIRST TIME

This is the first time the sindicatos have specifically put their loyalty to the regime in question, but the arrest of the secretaries of several of them and scores of their members indicates that Caetano does not intend this to be the thin edge of the wedge.

True, strikes for better wages and conditions have occurred from time to time in car assembly plants, shipyards and cork plantations, but the sindicatos have been reluctant to give them their blessing. Lately, however, the sindicatos have taken an active stand against the regime, demanding higher wages and the right to strike, illegal in Portugal.

DEMONSTRATIONS

It was the arrest of Daniel Cabral, secretary of the Bank Employees' Union, two months ago, that brought the discontent to the surface. It sparked off a series of demonstrations by bank staffs in Lisbon and Oporto, and on July 27 nine bank employees were injured and others arrested during a clash with the police in a Lisbon square. Attention was focussed on the incident becasue bank employees are considered unemotional and law-abiding citizens.

In defence, the political police, DGS, said there were "strong indications that Cabral belonged to an executive body of the outlawed Portuguese Communist party and was "active in plotting crimes against the security of the state."

ON SUSPICION

Some idea of the omnipotence of the police comes from a declaration recently by the minister of the interior, Goncalves Rapozote, that DGS has "legal power to imprison citizens merely on suspicion of acting against the security of the state."

He was no doubt justifying his use of the $876,000 granted him by the government to investigate underground activity in Portugal, which by all accounts is fairly well entrenched.

Since DGS admitted that despite government pressure to speed up inquiries into the armed revolutionary action group it was a "long and difficult process," there have been suggestions that the return of Portuguese emigrants from France has contributed to the rise in "subversion." In any event, Major Silva Pais, head of DGS, was in Spain a couple of weeks ago on a working visit.

Sabotage is one thing, workers' unrest another, but the fact that the official labor organ has got teeth into its disporportionate relationship between salaries and living costs is something the government cannot ignore.

A Podded Pea That's Edible

By HILDA BEASTALL

If you have the chance this month of tasting the edible podded pea, do so with the idea of growing them yourself next year.

Hilda

You may come across a plate of the pods at a fall show, so keep your eyes open and ask the vegetable exhibitors about them. They are seldom grown commercially for sale in stores since the freshness is not durable.

It has always seemed rather wasteful to put on the compost such a large part of the pea crop once it was grown. Quite often I would cook some of the youngest pods together with the young peas for the added sweetness and flavor in the pods.

At the end of the season, the undeveloped pods have always been picked from the browning vines for adding to fall soups.

This year for the first time we have tasted the kind of pea grown specifically for their edible pods.

Supplied from a friend's prolific garden, we have been able to savor the delicacy of flavor with different vegetable combinations, on different days. It seems too bad to smother such fine flavor with more robust things like carrots, meat or turnip.

The small Scalloped Squash (St. Pat Scallop), or Patty-pan Squash, was chosen, with only a smidgeon of sour cream for bringing out more flavor. Yogurt is a trifle too definite for this.

Flavors are hard to describe, so that's why I suggest tasting whenever you get the chance.

The pods are picked when the peas inside are visible but have not enlarged the pods, which may be about two inches long and rather broad for that length. They are perfectly flat. To cook, they need only the flower end cut off; then cutting either into small squares, or Frenched thinly as is done with beans.

Drop into enough boiling, lightly salted water to barely cover, and cook for eight to 10 minutes after boiling is resumed.

I find two listings in catalogues of edible podded peas. One in a Canadian seedlist is called Super-Sweetpod; this grows a vine four feet high which needs staking. With the same culture of plentiful moisture-holding humus as required by ordinary peas, these vines are said to bear heavy crops over a long period.

And English catalogue lists Dwarf Sugar Pea, with no height given.

Another edible pod pea is Asparagus Pea, quite ornamental with reddish brown flowers and pods which develop into rectangular shapes as they reach the one-inch recommended eating size.

This kind belongs to a different genus to our familiar garden pea. Native to India, with a tuberous root, it name is Psophocarpus tetragonolobus; in spite of this, consider growing a few next year in warm soil for a new taste in vegetables.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

At the top echelons, there is an expression known as a "justifiable deviation." This phrase is evoked (in self-defence) when one makes a bid that is not a systematic one, and it turns out badly. When partner then calls on the user to explain why he made it, the answer almost invariably takes this form: "Well, partner, I know we play 16-18 point opening no-trump bids, but they were vulnerable and we weren't, so I thought that by opening one notrump on my 14 points, I'd confuse them."

Here is a deal in which a justifiable deviation was justified only if one is a pragmatist and accepts the final result as the yardstick. The hand arose in a rubber-bridge game.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♡	4 NT	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	6 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

South's opening one spade bid is a deviation from accepted criteria, and it would be well nigh impossible for him to justify if he were called upon to do so. Happily for him, no explanation was asked for by North, for one does not quarrel with success.

Against South's slam contract West opened the heart king, dummy's ace winning the trick. It was rather obvious to declarer that he had two heart losers staring him in the face. But when play had ended, one of them had disappeared.

After capturing the opening heart lead, South gathered in the outstanding trumps. Then followed the king of clubs, the ace of clubs, and a third club, South ruffing the latter lead.

Next came the ace of diamonds, the king of diamonds, and the five of diamonds. When West discarded a heart on the diamond five, declarer tossed away one of dummy's two remaining hearts. East, of course, captured the trick — and, simultaneously, he became the victim of an end-play.

If he returned a diamond, declarer would trump in his own hand and, on this trick, discard the board's remaining heart. If, instead, East played back a club, declarer would similarly trump it in his own hand while tossing away dummy's last heart. In either case, the rest of the tricks would belong to declarer.

Had East possessed a second heart, then declarer would have gone down, since the defenders, in this case, would have cashed a heart trick. But, from the South seat, the chances were good (based on West's heart overcall) that East had started with just a singleton heart. And, from a practical point of view, declarer really had no alternative but to indulge in the wishful thinking that East possssed only a singleton heart. And, on this day, South's wishful thinking materialized.

Fun with figures

By J.A.H. HUNTER

Greg had a sheet of paper in his hand. "You know Dad's age," he said, "I just figured out something special about it."

"So what?" Mary smiled. "He's very special anyway."

The boy grinned. "Sure, but listen to this. If you multiply together the figures of his age you get two thirds of what his age is."

What do you make of it?

Nixon May Halt Amchitka N-Test

WASHINGTON (NYT) — President Nixon, according to knowledgeable officials in the White House and state department, is giving serious consideration to the cancellation, or at least the postponement, of the underground test of a five-megaton anti-missile warhead scheduled for next month on Amchitka in the Aleutians.

Obviously weighing heavily in the president's consideration, officials suggested, was the opposition of the Canadian and Japanese governments.

Last February Canada's external affairs minister Mitchell Sharp sent a formal note to the state department protesting the explosion which would be by far the largest ever detonated underground by the U.S. Environmental risk was the basis of Sharp's protest.

The Japanese government, officials said, while registering its concern has not yet lodged a formal protest.

The Atomic Energy Commission, in an environmental impact statement last June, said the test "is expected to have only a minimal long-term impact on the environment" because the radioactivity released "will be trapped underground," because the possibility of the shot triggering an earthquake in this area of geologic faults is "very unlikely," and because the possibility of the explosion "causing a damaging tsunami (seismic sea wave) is even more unlikely."

Despite these assurances, there is concern lest something go wrong with consequent impairment of relations with Canada and Japan.

Charles Bray, a state department spokesman, said Wednesday that Nixon had not yet made a decision. When asked whether this could be interpreted as meaning Nixon was considering cancellation, Bray said his answer could be so read. Bray also emphasized that no date for the explosion had been set.

These remarks have given rise to speculation that Nixon might announce the cancellations just prior to, or during, his meeting with Japanese Emperor Hirohito in Anchorage next week.

Port High-Rise Curb Proposed

New zoning regulations for the Victoria Inner Harbor waterfront will be proposed to city council today, limiting building heights to eight storeys, and curbing offices and industrial operations.

The new regulations will apply to all normal construction in the area between the Johnson Street Bridge and the Bapco Paint Company property at the end of Belleville Street on the south side of the harbor.

The new C-3 zone does not, however, prevent a developer from building according to a special development section of the Municipal Act, under which any construction approved by council is possible.

For example, the Reid development, incorporating twin apartment towers of 21 and 24 storeys, can still proceed despite the new zoning.

IN WORKS

The bylaw has been in the works for several months, but may be amended by council before final approval.

It was expected that the bylaw, while limiting development to size and bulk less than allowed by the former zoning, will still give landowners a "fair return" for their land investments.

The bylaw requirements would permit buildings, using the maximum allowable limits, of the size normally associated with medium density apartment structures in the city, a planning department spokesman said.

NOT ALLOWED

Industrial uses in the new zone will not be allowed. Office space in any new structure will not be allowed to exceed more than 15 per cent of the space in the building. This provision was designed to prevent the high car traffic

No Freeze Extension Nixon Tells Country

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced today his 90-day wage-price-rent freeze will not be extended beyond the Nov. 13 expiration date but said some form of stabilization machinery will be necessary after that.

In an unusual appearance before a joint session of Congress, Nixon also set as a national goal the creation of 100 million additional jobs during the next 10 years.

He said such a program was needed to cope with a new era in the U.S.'s international economic relationships which have seen a radical shift in the balance of economic power and "new challenges to our leadership and to our standard of living."

After telling the assembled senators and house members the freeze will end Nov. 13, Nixon declared: "But I assure the congress and the American people that when this first temporary and necessarily drastic action is over, we shall take all the steps needed to see that America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation.

CO-OPERATION

"The system of wage and price stabilization that follows the freeze will require the fullest possible co-operation not only between the executive and legislative branches, but also by all Americans."

Nixon urged the Democratic-controlled congress to enact as its first post-recess priority the $5.9 billion in tax cuts he proposed Aug. 15 when he announced his drastic new economic policies.

The proposed tax breaks — $3.2 billion for private individuals and $2.7 billion for business — will create half a million new jobs in the coming, year, Nixon contended. Some labor leaders have disputed this, claiming the tax approach favored business and will not help unemployment.

THIRD TIME

Nixon's appearance before the joint session was his third since assuming office. It indicated the importance he attaches to rapid consideration of the economic measures which are aimed at cutting unemployment and halting inflation, both of which he claimed were legacies of a war now ending.

As for the 100 million job goal in the next 10 years, Nixon said new tax incentives will be needed and said he will propose a program of tax reform in the next session of congress.

"I shall present new proposals in both these areas: Tax reform to create jobs and new approaches toward ensuring the maximum enlistment of America's technology in meeting the challenges of peace," he said.

WILL MEET

Nixon did not spell out what type of wage and price stabilization will follow the freeze. He announced he will meet with representatives of business, labor, agriculture and congress within the next few days to develop a plan.

Plug Proposed For Litter Law

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan announced today the Litter Act will be amended during the 1972 legislative session to provide penalties for retail stores which refuse to refund soft drink containers.

Kiernan also warned retailers to get in line with the intent of the act and start refunding containers immediately. The government announcement followed by three weeks a dismissal of charges in Victoria Provincial Court against a Canada Safeway Ltd. store which refused to give refunds.

The Litter Act requires retailers to refund containers of brands they sell at the rate of two cents per item. B.C. supermarkets have refused to give refunds at the store. Instead, they have referred customers to depots such as Victoria's Bottle Exchange.

Kiernan said he reviewed the decision of Judge William Ostler and consulted with staff in the attorney-general's department. He said the court found the act's intent clear but found it deficient by the absence of a specific penalty for refusing to make refunds.

"I will recommend to the legislative assembly that this legal loophole be plugged to give the act its full legal weight," Kiernan said.

"And I would suggest to the industry — including the chain stores — that they either get in line with the intent of the act or stop merchandising these products."

He said chain stores should not try to evade the law by trying to find loopholes.

Regulatiins under the Litter Act likely will ge changed, said Kiernan, to allow a person to return up to 24 cans or bottles per day. Existing regulations allow only 18 containers per day per person.

Kiernan said he is studying the matter of refunds for liquor bottles but refused to indicate whether the act will be further amended to permit refunds for them. Beer containers and some wine bottles now are refundable.

The minister said he had not reviewed his decision with representat'ves of Pacific Reclamation Ltd. This is the non-profit company which has created the depot system.

Pacific Reclamation officials have said a refund at the store policy is financially unsound and poor ecological sense. Kiernan dismissed an industry argument against store refunds on health grounds. He said this a facetious argument.

Another case against a Canada Safeway Store in Nanaimo was withdrawn after Ostler dismissed the charges in the Victoria case.

Belfast Guns Keep Shooting

Times News Services

BELFAST — Gun-battles continued in Belfast today, and a British soldier was killed when a bomb he was defusing in a church hall exploded. He was the 101st victim of Northern Ireland's two-year wave of religious-political violence.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Heath recalled the British Parliament from summer recess for a two-day debate on the crisis starting Sept. 22.

Parliament will meet a month earlier than the Oct. 18 schedule. The decision to recall the members is a reversal of a previous refusal to accept a Labor opposition demand for a two-day debate made last month.

The explosion in Belfast came after British troops, bracing for a threatened "offensive" by the Irish Republican Army, came under a hail of sniper fire in Londonderry early today.

More than 100 bullets hit an army post in the Roman Catholic Creggan district of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second-largest city.

Troops returned the fire and gun battles raged for two hours after midnight Wednesday night —the time set by militant provisional wing of the IRA for a new upsurge of violence in the streets.

The midnight deadline was part of an ultimatum by the provisionals demanding the breakup of the Protestant-based Ulster government.

Authorities ignored the ultimatum and troops were placed on special alert for renewed guerrilla operations by the rebels, who want to drive Britain out by force and unite the north with the Roman Catholic-dominated Irish Republic.

OPTIMISM ARISES

On the political front, there was optimism over the prospects of a three-way summit meeting on the Ulster crisis, bringing together the prime ministers of Britain, the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Jack Lynch, leader of the Dublin government, said Wednesday night he will seriously consider the proposal made by British Prime Minister Edward Heath at their talks near London Monday and Tuesday.

CAHILL NABBED

DUBLIN, (Reuter) — Joe Cahill, the Irish Republican Army leader deported from the United States, was detained by police after arriving back in Dublin today.

Detectives led him away after he stepped off the Irish International Airlines (Aer Lingus) jetliner flight from New York.

Authorities later announced he was being held on suspicion of belonging to an illegal organization under a measure that permits imprisonment without trial. The IRA is illegal both in the Irish Republic and in Northern Ireland.

Smoking Ban Not Quite an Order

Provincial government employees have been asked not to smoke in public areas.

A new rule issued by the Civil Service Commission states that "in the interests of courtesy to the public, employees are requested to refrain from smoking in areas where the public is served."

Commission chairman Arthur Richardson denied the rule is an extension of the government's ban on tobacco advertising.

"The rule is there because we had seven or eight complaints from people who said government employees blew smoke in their faces," he said.

The rule, issued in August as part of the manual of personnel administration, would not apply to outside workers such as highways department crews but to inside workers dealing with the public, he said.

He confirmed it is a request, and not an order, to stop smoking in public.

Asked if a civil servant could simply carry on smoking, he said "I suppose so."

STEWARD BANS SUN

A zealous B.C. Ferries steward isn't sure what exactly constitutes a liquor ad, but he isn't taking any chances.

The steward, who declined to give his name, would not allow copies of the Vancouver Sun to be sold aboard the Queen of Burnaby Wednesday because he thought a Bank of Montreal ad and an article on Canadian wines contravened the provincial government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising.

The bank ad, announcing the opening of a new branch, included a picture of a bottle of Canadian champagne smashing against an upright surface.

The article on wines was accompanied by a photograph of the inside of a Vancouver winery.

The steward said he was acting on a directive from the ferry authority's catering supervisor to "scrutinize all editions" of newspapers.

"I'm no judge on this, but we have to protect ourselves too, you know," the steward said.

"I've got too much seniority to be worrying about getting into trouble with the public."

12 Families Flee From Arctic Fire

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — About 12 families were moved from the outskirts of this sub-Arctic town late Wednesday as a 32,000-acre forest fire approached their homes.

Another 20 persons were moved earlier from Paradise Valley, about 18 miles south of Hay River.

Parts of the fire were a little more than a mile from buildings on the outskirts this morning and three to 3½ miles from the town centre, said Rudy Steiner, emergency measures co-ordinator for the Northwest Territories, but there were no immediate plans to evacuate the town of 3,500.

"I don't know of any buildings burned yet. There's just two we couldn't get to—there's too much smoke."

He said the persons who have moved are staying with friends and relatives.

The public weather office in Edmonton predicted lighter winds for the area today with temperatures in the low 60s. Rain expected Wednesday had been stalled north of Great Slave Lake and skies were expected to be sunny.

The town, built largely on a peninsula jutting into Great Slave Lake, is protected by water on three sides. But on the southwest, thick stands of pine and spruce are adjacent to the edge of town where an industrial park and modern homes and shopping facilities have been built.

That area was developed after floods in the late 1960s destroyed parts of what is referred to locally as the old town, three miles away, much of which still is occupied.

The two highways out of the town were blocked and only firefighting traffic was allowed. The fire was threatening a bridge over the Hay River on one highway, to Pine Point 60 miles east where a fire last week came near that mining community.

Uranium Plant Likely for Canada, Perhaps B.C.

A giant uranium diffusion plant in western Canada — possibly in British Columbia — is part of a U.S. plan to release its secrets for producing fuel for atomic power plants.

American experts at the Atoms for Peace Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, this week have been pushing for negotiations between interested countries and the U.S., which holds valuable secrets on gas diffusion techinques.

It was proposed that a western Canada plant serve the atomic power market in Japan and Australia and that one in Norway serve Europe. Both plant sites would have the advantage of cheap and abundant hydo-electric power, which is needed in great quantities to enrich the uranium for atomic power plants.

In exchange for releasing its techniques the U.S. would get a royalty, a share of the plant ownership and a share of control over the uranium and techniques involved.

The U.S. currently processes its uranium at three domestic plants.

Other countries, including France and Britain have gas diffusion facilities, but they are much less economical than the American method. The U.S. is starting to encounter problems handling its own market for diffused uranium and wants to transfer part of the market load on to other plants.

A spokesman for B.C. Hydro said today he had heard nothing about negotiations between the U.S. and Canada on the possibility of a plant being built in Canada. He said any arrangements would probably go through the provincial government if B.C. was involved.

"There's no way I can comment on this without seeing the actual details of a proposal," the spokesman said. "I don't think we (B.C. Hydro) would be as interested in this as would Atomic Energy of Canada Limited."

A. H. Laidlaw, secretary of AECL said the idea of a plant being built in Canada "had been kicked around for a while" by U.S. and Canadian officials and that a Canadian firm had proposed to build the plant if they were able to use the American techniques.

'MOST UNSEEMLY OUTBURST'

Frampton Demands Curtis Apologize

FRAMPTON
. . . charges discourtesy

Ald. Percy Frampton of Victoria has demanded a public apology from Saanich mayor Hugh Curtis for his criticism of the city's planned tax relief for senior citizens.

In a prepared statement, Frampton, who is acting mayor in Courtney Haddock's absence, said he "must publicly rebuke Mayor Curtis for his most unseemly outburst."

The plan, disclosed last week by Haddock, would allow homeowners 65 or over the option of deferring payment of increases in property taxes until their homes are sold, before or after they die.

* * *

Curtis criticized the plan Saturday, saying any real tax relief for senior citizens should be province-wide and have the leading support of the provincial government. He called Haddock's plan a "fuzzy proposal."

"If Mayor Curtis has any concern for older people at all," Frampton said, "one would think he would at least want to learn more of the results of the plan rather than to criticize it as sloppy thinking. Obviously he is not thinking at all but indulging in his usual disparaging remarks about Victoria.

* * *

"At no time to the best of my knowledge has any elected official of Victoria criticized another municipality, its administration or its members of council.

"For Mayor Curtis to refer to a plan endorsed by Victoria's senior aldermen, its finance committee and which has the unqualified support of Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, is, to my view, a gross discourtesy and one which calls for a public apology.

"Mayor Curtis has no responsibility for the operation of this city but he shows great irresponsibility in his remarks."

Rest Homes Will Accept Fee Plan

A long-standing argument between rest home operators and the provincial government over grants to cover guests on welfare has been resolved, a spokesman for the operators said today.

John Hanrahan, vice-president of the B.C. Rest Home Association, said members at a meeting of the Victoria chapter Wednesday night endorsed a plan worked out earlier by both sides.

Under the plan the basic rate the government will pay for welfare guests remains at $150 a month but higher allowances may be granted for individual cases requiring extra care.

A rest home operator with a welfare case he believes warrants payment of a higher rate must make application, listing all the details of extra care required, and this must be signed by the person's doctor. It will then be evaluated by a social worker.

NO CEILING

Hanrahan said there is no ceiling on any extra allowance to which the government may agree. He speculated the grant might reach $225 a month if the extra care a patient required warranted it.

Should the province not be willing to pay what a rest home operator believes is warranted for a special case, then it will be the responsibility of the appropriate welfare agency to find other accommodation for the guest, he added.

Some rest home operators may try charging outrageous rates and will be turned down, he said. How well the plan works is in the hands of the operators for the time being. He said there is the possibility of further conflict if reasonable extra allowances are not forthcoming.

The rest home operators had sought an increase to $185 a month in grants for welfare guests. During the lengthy dispute their association threatened mass evictions of welfare cases and collectively turning in their licences.

These threats have all been removed by the new agreement, said Hanrahan.

Man Dies Week After Car Mishap

An 88-year-old man knocked down by a car at Bay and Wilson last Thursday died in hospital today.

Harold Smith, 1323 Coventry, suffered multiple fractures to his pelvis and had been listed in fair to poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital since he was admitted.

The driver of the car, police said, was Leonard Lancaster, of 1127 Wychbury, Esquimalt.

No Law Remedy For Dry Wells

There is no legislation covering ground water use which could be applied to the problem of drying up wells on domestic property in Central Saanich, a spokesman for the provincial department of lands, forests and water resources said today.

Howard De Beck, comptroller of the water rights branch, said the Water Act can be applied to ground water by order-in-council, but this has never been done in British Columbia "because we have never had a problem which seemed to require such action."

Several residents in the East Saanich Road area have complained that their water supply has dwindled since a large well started pumping in early July on property owned by commercial bulb farmer Geoff Vantreight.

A week ago the residents wrote to the provincial department urging a survey, and after their complaint was aired at the Central Saanich council meeting Tuesday the municipality also decided to ask for an immediate investigation of the water shortage problem by the department.

De Beck said in an interview today he was not aware of the council's request but when this was received there would be "an investigation of some sort."

He said the provincial government is not "anxious" to get into the field of ground water licensing until situations arise which may require this.

"We are aware that such a situation can arise at any time," he said. "In fact, this (the Central Saanich problem) may be a case in point."

Without commenting on whether there was any justification for the complaints against the Vantreight well, De Beck added: "It is worth noting that after two extremely dry summers there has been a general lowering of ground water levels in the Saanich area."

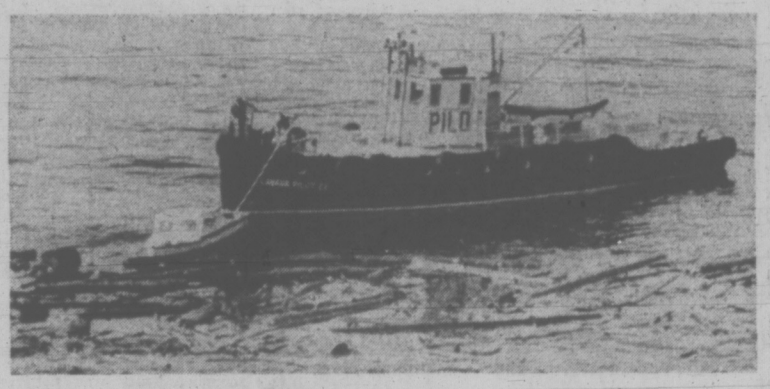
Meanwhile, Vantreight himself denied today that his new 570-foot well has anything to do with drying up wells on neighboring property.

"I am using subterranean water which cost me $3,500 in geologist's fees to find," he said. "My well has nothing to do with surface water. I stopped pumping one week ago and the domestic wells have not come up."

But in at least one of the affected houses the supply is reported back again.

"The water has come back in the last few days but it's far from good," said Mrs. Doreen Bishop of Blink Bonnie Farm.

The supply was cut off completely from the Bishop residence for about one month, and they were forced to fetch all their water in containers from friends' homes.



Holed pleasure boat towed to safety by pilotage boat.

Man Scrambles Ashore

A 15-foot boat with a small cabin on top, believed to be one that ended up on rocks off Dallas Road Monday after her owner had struggled for hours to repair her outboard, was towed to safety today.

Victoria police officials are still trying to trace the owner of the craft, which although holed, is repairable.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reeves of 640 Dallas reported earlier this week seeing a man about 11 a.m. Monday in such a craft, trying to repair his motor.

Watching his struggles, they informed B.C. Pilotage. After waiting some time, they phoned again.

They say the wind was blowing strongly and the man in the boat was forced to try and paddle away from the kelp beds and reefs.

By the time the pilot boat arrived, they say that in spite of the man's struggles to keep off the rocks, the wind and tide had pushed them too close for the pilotboat to be used.

They tried to call to the man to see if there was anyone they could notify at his home. The wind drowned out his answers.

Finally, at about 4 p.m., the boat was pushed so far inshore the man was able to scramble to the rocks and make his way ashore.

The Reeves said the boat drifted free from the rocks during a high tide Wednesday afternoon.

This morning she was taken under tow by a pilot boat and brought into the pilotage wharfs near Ogden Point.

There is no number or identification in the boat and her outboard is gone from the rack on her transom.

JOHN NEWBERRY . . . 'financial boondoggle'

City Hall Picketing Aimed At Stopping Harbor Plan

An attempt to rally opposition to the proposed Reid waterfront development began today in front of City Hall.

John Newberry, 17, of 249 Wildwood, appeared this morning wearing a placard calling for a halt to the Reid development, and distributing information sheets urging citizens to attend today's 2 p.m. council meeting.

Council is expected to approve in principle a twin-tower development for the Wharf Street property below Bastion Square.

The information sheet says Ald. Tom Christie and Peter Pollen "are urging citizens to declare war on the proposed Reid centre."

The sheet quotes Christie as saying the development "will tax our sewage system beyond capacity."

It says the 21 and 24-storey towers proposed for the development will "overshadow" the 17-storey high-rise apartment at View and Quadra.

MORE PROBLEMS

"Big developments only bring more problems, environmental and financial. It will not bring in more money; New York is bankrupt and very expensive to live in.

"Stop this visual encroachment and financial boondoggle, show up Thursday at 2 p.m. at the council meeting, city hall," the sheet says.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, meanwhile, has said he is "solidly and irrevocably" committed to the Reid proposal.

"I have done a lot of thinking and I have come to the conclusion that the Reid centre will be good for Victoria."

He added that the development would bring the city $400,000 a year in tax revenues.

Asked what he expected his efforts would accomplish, Newberry said he doesn't hope "to win" because "there's too much money behind it."

He said sufficient protest might bring attention to the sewage problem involved, and perhaps cause the towers to be shortened.

$100,000 Riding on Race In Calgary for Local Man

A Victoria man stands to win the $100,000 first prize in Saturday's Stampede Futurity Stakes to be run at Calgary's Victoria Park.

When he was told the news today, John Shirley, 31, of 3292 Rutledge, kept repeating: "Gee, gee — it's wonderful."

A carpenter at Dominion Motors Ltd., he and his wife, Pam, are expecting their first child.

* * *

Shirley is one of 11 from British Columbia who remained in the running for the money after a draw made Wednesday. Among the others are Chester Smith of New Westminster, James Crossland and Mrs. Starr Vaylong of Vancouver, Madelaine Barbour of North Vancouver, Keith Comyn of Half Moon Bay, and John Ruotsala of Salmon Arm.

* * *

On Saturday another draw will be held, trimming the list to the number of horses in the race. The person backing the winning horse getting the major prize.

There is also a second and third prize, worth $22,000 and $12,500.

More than 200,000 bought tickets on the race, which is the 11th annual running.

IN THEORY, THE TRAFfic safety campaign with its warnings, exhortations and preachments should reduce car accidents to the unavoidable minimum. But it doesn't, and I have yet to see a safe driving pitch that fulfilled the hopes of those who mounted it.

I'm not being cynical here — merely stating a fact that is drearily reflected in each week's news. Further, I don't believe that the most convinced and well-heeled sponsor, even when teamed with the ablest publicists in the business, has a cat-in-hell chance of making the standard safety campaign work.

Square in its path, robbing it of effect, is a driver of a sort that was no doubt contributing to the risks of the road long before venturesome man first equipped a buggy with an engine.

There are other names for him, not all of them printable. Call him the accident maker.

In harsh fact, no driver is so expert and careful as to be safe from a killing or crippling car mishap.

Those on whom safety campaigns register know this, and do what they can to minimize the odds against them. They reduce the possibility of mechanical failure by keeping their vehicles in good shape. They take speed limits and highways department signs seriously.

But they are not proof against the accident-makers whom no safe driving precepts can reach, and who reduce the best-planned and most vigorously pressed campaign to an exercise in futility.

The accident maker comes in both sexes and various ages. A couple of weeks ago, one of his clan intruded his car into the smoothly-functioning traffic pattern on a B.C. interior highway.

Several cars and pickups, comfortably spaced, were moving down a long hill. Out front was a tanker. The upgrade ahead would slow this heavyweight, and the drivers behind would then make their safe and easy passes.

Not so the accident-maker. He grasshoppered his way down the line until he was tailgating at the stern of the tanker. Then he darted out, passed, cut in sharply and dropped speed.

The heavy rig didn't jackknife. Not quite. The cars behind dropped back. For something over a minute, we watched a professional driver apply his skill to the horrific task of keeping his wheels on the blacktop.

He made it. At the foot of the grade, he pulled in. When we passed, he was bent over his steering wheel with a face like death warmed over.

His cargo? Gasoline.

As for the accident maker, he was long gone.

If you pilot a car or ride as a passenger, you can match him from your own experience.

He may be a self-convinced hotshot out to make good his boast that he can drive from here to there in half the average time.

He can be a drunk, a psychotic, or an aggressor who uses a car as a weapon to bully and intimidate. She may be a woman with her mind on dinner, her own child beside her, and not a thought to spare for other people's children.

And let's not be self-righteous about it. On a bad day, in a rotten mood, the accident maker could even be you or me.

What to do about this hazard on wheels?

First, catch him. In order to do so, it might be an idea to invest some of the money spent on safety campaigns into beefing up the means of apprehension.

Then, sock him! If present laws are too kind to the accident maker, sharpen their teeth.

If he is ever again caught placing lives in jeopardy, ground him permanently.

At present, these suggestions for dealing with the accident maker in all his versions must be considered academic.

They may remain so for a long time still. But eventually, when enough safe driving campaigns have failed, and sufficient raw meat has been pried loose from accidents that need never have happened, I think we'll come to them.

AMERICANS ASKED ABOUT 'GRASS'

Can Know-How Find Out Why?

Provincial highways officials are going to rely on the legendary good old American know-how to solve the problem of the curling, shrinking plastic grass installed last July at Carey and Douglas.

"We're in touch with people in Washington State who are working on the problem," a highways spokesman said today.

Wednesday the instant grass, which was supposed to require no maintenance and last for years, was showing a disconcerting tendency to shrink and curl at the edges — less than two months after installation.

But the instant headaches were no worry to the department and there are no plans to pull up the 5,000 square feet of brilliant green on three traffic islands at the intersection.

The spokesman didn't like the term shrinking, but explained that expansion and contraction according to temperature are properties of the nylon-type material.

"The trouble is this is happening more than we were led to believe by the suppliers. One reason could be that it was really warm weather at the time we laid it," the spokesman said.

The "grass" is the first of its type to be used on an experimental basis in B.C., although it is not new in the U.S.

U.S. May Halt Amchitka Test

WASHINGTON (NYT) — President Nixon, according to knowledgeable officials in the White House and state department, is giving serious consideration to the cancellation, or at least the postponement, of the underground test of a five-megaton anti-missile warhead scheduled for next month on Amchitka in the Aleutians.

Obviously weighing heavily in the president's consideration, officials suggested, was the opposition of the Canadian and Japanese governments.

Last February Canada's external affairs minister Mitchell Sharp sent a formal note to the state department protesting the explosion which would be by far the largest ever detonated underground by the U.S. Environmental risk was the basis of Sharp's protest.

The Japanese government, officials said, while registering its concern has not yet lodged a formal protest.

The Atomic Energy Commission, in an environmental impact statement last June, said the test "is expected to have only a minimal long-term impact on the environment" because the radioactivity released "will be trapped underground," because the possibility of the shot triggering an earthquake in this area of geologic faults is "very unlikely," and because the possibility of the explosion "causing a damaging tsunami (seismic sea wave) is even more unlikely."

Despite these assurances, there is concern lest something go wrong with consequent impairment of relations with Canada and Japan.

Charles Bray, a state department spokesman, said Wednesday that Nixon had not yet made a decision. When asked whether this could be interpreted as meaning Nixon was considering cancellation, Bray said his answer could be so read.

These remarks have given rise to speculation that Nixon might announce the cancellations just prior to, or during, his meeting with Japanese Emperor Hirohito in Anchorage next week.

No Freeze Extension Nixon Tells Country

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Nixon announced today his 90-day wage-price-rent freeze will not be extended beyond the Nov. 13 expiration date but said some form of stabilization machinery will be necessary after that.

In an unusual appearance before a joint session of Congress, Nixon also set as a national goal the creation of 100 million additional jobs during the next 10 years.

He said such a program was needed to cope with a new era in the U.S.'s international economic relationships which have seen a radical shift in the balance of economic power and "new challenges to our leadership and to our standard of living."

After telling the assembled senators and house members the freeze will end Nov. 13, Nixon declared: "But I assure the congress and the American people that when this first temporary and necessarily drastic action is over, we shall take all the steps needed to see that America is not again afflicted by the virus of runaway inflation.

CO-OPERATION

"The system of wage and price stabilization that follows the freeze will require the fullest possible co-operation not only between the executive and legislative branches, but also by all Americans."

Nixon urged the Democratic-controlled congress to enact as its first post-recess priority the $5.9 billion in tax cuts he proposed Aug. 15 when he announced his drastic new economic policies.

The proposed tax breaks — $3.2 billion for private individuals and $2.7 billion for business — will create half a million new jobs in the coming, year, Nixon contended. Some labor leaders have disputed this, claiming the tax approach favored business and will not help unemployment.

THIRD TIME

Nixon's appearance before the joint session was his third since assuming office. It indicated the importance he attaches to rapid consideration of the economic measures which are aimed at cutting unemployment and halting inflation, both of which he claimed were legacies of a war now ending.

As for the 100 million job goal in the next 10 years, Nixon said new tax incentives will be needed and said he will propose a program of tax reform in the next session of congress.

"I shall present new proposals in both these areas: tax reform to create jobs and new approaches toward ensuring the maximum enlistment of America's technology in meeting the challenges of peace," he said.

WILL MEET

Nixon did not spell out what type of wage and price stabilization will follow the freeze. He announced he will meet with representatives of business, labor, agriculture and congress within the next few days to develop a plan.

Plug Proposed For Litter Law

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan announced today the Litter Act will be amended during the 1972 legislative session to provide penalties for retail stores which refuse to refund soft drink containers.

Kiernan also warned retailers to get in line with the intent of the act and start refunding containers immediately. The government announcement followed by three weeks a dismissal of charges in Victoria Provincial Court against a Canada Safeway Ltd. store which refused to give refunds.

The Litter Act requires retailers to refund containers of brands they sell at the rate of two cents per item. B.C. supermarkets have refused to give refunds at the store. Instead, they have referred customers to depots such as Victoria's Bottle Exchange.

Kiernan said he reviewed the decision of Judge William Ostler and consulted with staff in the attorney-general's department. He said the court found the act's intent clear but found it deficient by the absence of a specific penalty for refusing to make refunds.

"I will recommend to the legislative assembly that this legal loophole be plugged to give the act its full legal weight," Kiernan said.

"And I would suggest to the industry — including the chain stores — that they either get in line with the intent of the act or stop merchandising these products."

He said chain stores should not try to evade the law by trying to find loopholes.

Regulations under the Litter Act likely will be changed, said Kiernan, to allow a person to return up to 24 cans or bottles per day. Existing regulations allow only 18 containers per day per person.

Kiernan said he is studying the matter of refunds for liquor bottles but refused to indicate whether the act will be further amended to permit refunds for them. Beer containers and some wine bottles now are refundable.

The minister said he had not reviewed his decision with representatives of Pacific Reclamation Ltd. This is the non-profit company which has created the depot system.

Pacific Reclamation officials have said a refund at the store policy is financially unsound and poor ecological sense. Kiernan dismissed an industry argument against store refunds on health grounds. He said this is a facetious argument.

Another case against a Canada Safeway Store in Nanaimo was withdrawn after Ostler dismissed the charges in the Victoria case.

Port High-Rise Curb Proposed

New zoning regulations for the Victoria Inner Harbor waterfront will be proposed to city council today, limiting building heights to eight storeys, and curbing offices and industrial operations.

The new regulations will apply to all normal construction in the area between the Johnson Street Bridge and the Bapco Paint Company property at the end of Belleville Street on the south side of the harbor.

The new C-3 zone does not, however, prevent a developer from building according to a special development section of the Municipal Act, under which any construction approved by council is possible.

For example, the Reid development, incorporating twin apartment towers of 21 and 24 storeys, can still proceed despite the new zoning.

IN WORKS

The bylaw has been in the works for several months, but may be amended by council before final approval.

It was expected that the bylaw, while limiting development to size and bulk less than allowed by the former zoning, will still give landowners a "fair return" for their land investments.

The bylaw requirements would permit buildings, using the maximum allowable limits, of the size normally associated with medium density apartment structures in the city, a planning department spokesman said.

NOT ALLOWED

Industrial uses in the new zone will not be allowed. Office space in any new structure will not be allowed to exceed more than 15 per cent of the space in the building. This provision was designed to prevent the high car traffic

STEWARD BANS SUN

A zealous B.C. Ferries steward isn't sure what exactly constitutes a liquor ad, but he isn't taking any chances.

The steward, who declined to give his name, would not allow copies of the Vancouver Sun to be sold aboard the Queen of Burnaby Wednesday because he thought a Bank of Montreal ad and an article on Canadian wines contravened the provincial government's ban on tobacco and liquor advertising.

The bank ad, announcing the opening of a new branch, included a picture of a bottle of Canadian champagne smashing against an upright surface.

The article on wines was accompanied by a photograph of the inside of a Vancouver winery.

The steward said he was acting on a directive from the ferry authority's catering supervisor to "scrutinize all editions" of newspapers.

"I'm no judge on this, but we have to protect ourselves too, you know," the steward said.

Belfast Guns Keep Shooting

Times News Services

BELFAST — Gun battles continued in Belfast today, and a British soldier was killed when a bomb he was defusing in a church hall exploded. He was the 101st victim of Northern Ireland's two-year wave of religious-political violence.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Heath recalled the British Parliament from summer recess for a two-day debate on the crisis starting Sept. 22.

Parliament will meet a month earlier than the Oct. 18 schedule. The decision to recall the members is a reversal of a previous refusal to accept a Labor opposition demand for a two-day debate, made last month.

The explosion in Belfast came after British troops, bracing for a threatened "offensive" by the Irish Republican Army, came under a hail of sniper fire in Londonderry early today.

More than 100 bullets hit an army post in the Roman Catholic Creggan district of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second-largest city.

Troops returned the fire and gun battles raged for two hours after midnight Wednesday night — the time set by militant provisional wing of the IRA for a new upsurge of violence in the streets.

The midnight deadline was part of an ultimatum by the provisionals demanding the breakup of the Protestant-based Ulster government.

Authorities ignored the ultimatum and troops were placed on special alert for renewed guerrilla operations by the rebels, who want to drive Britain out by force and unite the north with the Roman Catholic-dominated Irish Republic.

OPTIMISM ARISES

On the political front, there was optimism over the prospects of a three-way summit meeting on the Ulster crisis, bringing together the prime ministers of Britain, the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland.

Jack Lynch, leader of the Dublin government, said Wednesday night he will seriously consider the proposal made by British Prime Minister Edward Heath at their talks near London Monday and Tuesday.

CAHILL NABBED

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Joe Cahill, the Irish Republican Army leader deported from the United States, was detained by police after arriving back in Dublin today.

Detectives led him away after he stepped off the Irish International Airlines (Aer Lingus) jetliner flight from New York.

Authorities later announced he was being held on suspicion of belonging to an illegal organization under a measure that permits imprisonment without trial. The IRA is illegal both in the Irish Republic and in Northern Ireland.

Smoking Ban Not Quite an Order

Provincial government employees have been asked not to smoke in public areas.

A new rule issued by the Civil Service Commission states that "in the interests of courtesy to the public, employees are requested to refrain from smoking in areas where the public is served."

Commission chairman Arthur Richardson denied the rule is an extension of the government's ban on tobacco advertising.

"The rule is there because we had seven or eight complaints from people who said government employees blew smoke in their faces," he said.

The rule, issued in August as part of the manual of personnel administration, would not apply to outside workers such as highways department crews but to inside workers dealing with the public, he said.

He confirmed it is a request, and not an order, to stop smoking in public.

Asked if a civil servant could simply carry on smoking, he said "I suppose so."

12 Families Flee From Arctic Fire

HAY RIVER, N.W.T. (CP) — About 12 families were moved from the outskirts of this sub-Arctic town late Wednesday as a 32,000-acre forest fire approached their homes.

Another 20 persons were moved earlier from Paradise Valley, about 18 miles south of Hay River.

Parts of the fire were a little more than a mile from buildings on the outskirts this morning and three to 3½ miles from the town centre, said Rudy Steiner, emergency measures co-ordinator for the Northwest Territories, but there were no immediate plans to evacuate the town of 3,500.

"I don't know of any buildings burned yet. There's just two we couldn't get to—there's too much smoke."

He said the persons who have moved are staying with friends and relatives.

The public weather office in Edmonton predicted lighter winds for the area today with temperatures in the low 60s. Rain expected Wednesday had been stalled north of Great Slave Lake and skies were expected to be sunny.

Uranium Plant Likely for Canada, Perhaps B.C.

Times Staff

A giant uranium diffusion plant in western Canada — possibly in British Columbia — is part of a U.S. plan to release its secrets for producing fuel for atomic power plants.

American experts at the Atoms for Peace Conference in Geneva, Switzerland, this week have been pushing for negotiations between interested countries and the U.S., which holds valuable secrets on gas diffusion techinques.

It was proposed that a western Canada plant serve the atomic power market in Japan and Australia and that one in Norway serve Europe. Both plant sites would have the advantage of cheap and abundant hydo-electric power, which is needed in great quantities to enrich the uranium for atomic power plants.

In exchange for releasing its techniques the U.S. would get a royalty, a share of the plant ownership and a share of control over the uranium and techniques involved.

The U.S. currently processes its uranium at three domestic plants.

Other countries, including France and Britain have gas diffusion facilities, but they are much less economical than the American method. The U.S. is starting to encounter problems handling its own market for diffused uranium and wants to transfer part of the market load on to other plants.

A spokesman for B.C. Hydro said today he had heard nothing about negotiations between the U.S. and Canada on the possibility of a plant being built in Canada. He said any arrangements would probably go through the provincial government if B.C. was involved.

"There's no way I can comment on this without seeing the actual details of a proposal," the spokesman said. "I don't think we (B.C. Hydro) would be as interested in this as would Atomic Energy of Canada Limited."

A. H. Laidlaw, secretary of AECL said the idea of a plant being built in Canada "had been kicked around for a while" by U.S. and Canadian officials and that a Canadian firm had proposed to build the plant if they were able to use the American techniques.

SIDNEY CENTRE OPENS SUNDAY

Silver Threads Need Volunteers

Volunteer help is urgently needed by Sidney Silver Threads organization which moves into new headquarters after the official opening of the Resthaven Drive centre Sunday.

Director Pauline Barker expects an influx of new members when the nine-to-five daily program gets under way in the Resthaven Drive building. There are 300 members to date.

Kitchen facilities will allow serving of a light lunch (probably soup and sandwiches for the present) as well as morning coffee and afternoon tea.

Volunteers are needed to help transport members from Brentwood Bay and Saanichton. Help is also needed to serve coffee and tea.

High on the list of activities requested by senior citizens is a course in basketry. Mrs. Barker hopes a volunteer teacher can be found on the peninsula.

5th Douglas Registration

Scouting resumes Monday at Garden City United Church with registration of both Cubs and Scouts of the 5th Douglas group.

The group committee requests that at least one parent accompany the boys for the registration from 7 to 8 p.m. in the church basement.

Regular meetings of the Cubs and Scouts start the following week.

Human Relations Course Offered

Don McKinnon, principal of North Saanich Junior High School, will co-ordinate a new night school course in Sidney on communication and human relations.

Director of adult education Frank Baxter said the course is arranged in collaboration with local churches.

Designed to explore communications within the family, the six-session course will be held Thursday evenings, starting Sept. 30.

BILL 'TOO COMPLEX'

OTTAWA — The Canadian Chambers of Commerce says new taxation legislation is so complex it will be difficult for many taxpayers to fill in their returns without professional assistance.

The chamber made the statement in a special brief presented to Finance Minister Benson today.

Roy Bennett, vice-chairman of the group's executive council, said the language in the new law is much too involved. Many taxpayers will not be able to understand their own tax position without getting additional help.

However, H. P. Crawford, another chamber executive, told Benson his group was pleased that only half of capital gains in income rather than all capital gains will be taxed.

And he said he supported tax cuts for low income workers as this served a useful purpose in helping to stimulate the economy.

The chamber also praised the government's decision to remove federal and estate gift taxes. But officials said they hope the provinces will not act to frustrate this new policy.

Nevertheless, the chamber continued to hammer away at the vagueness of many regulations. It said the absence of some regulations made it difficult to analyse the proposals and criticize them constructively.
